SLAUGHTER OF SHADE TREES.

Damage to Concrete Pavements and Gardens—Old Landmarks Disappear.
For several years past there has been a disposition to thin out the beautiful shade trees lining the sidewalks in the residence portion of our city, but in the recollection of the "oldest inhabitant" there has never been such a wholesale slaughter of trees as is now going on in all parts of Salem. There are two reasons given for destroying the trees: First, as the trees grow to large proportions it puts forth immense roots near the base, which are very destructive to concrete walks; second, the smaller roots form a complete network that spreads out in a radius of from 30 to 50 feet, and absorbs the plant-nutrient of the soil and the moisture necessary to the successful growth and development of shrubs and flowers. While it seems a shame to cut down the many beautiful maple trees that abound throughout the city, yet when one thinks of the shrubs, grasses and flowers that will alone the yards in places where now it is impossible to grow even a respectable patch of salt-grass, we are of the opinion that the axe has been used in a good cause.

OLD LANDMARKS DISAPPEAR.
While on a tour in the suburban portion of the city yesterday, a JOURNAL pencil-pusher stopped in front of the residence of J. C. Baker who was whisking away at an enormous stump on the outer edge of his sidewalk as the item-chaser came up, but stopped his work to say "Howdy?" "Taking out an old stump?" enquired the reporter. "I thought these three stumps," said Mr. Baker, pointing to two others a short distance from the one on which he was at work, "had been here about long enough, and concluded to take them out. The trees were planted by Lafayette Moore early in the '60s, and were the first set out on what was then known as the Savage road. The trees grew to immense proportions, being 3 to 4 feet in diameter. They were cut down in 1895, and today I am taking out the old stumps."

On the banks of Mill creek, in the lot adjoining Mr. Baker's stands a relic of Lafayette and John Moore's old foundry erected about 40 years ago. Part of the old building and some parts of the machinery yet remain to mark the spot where the foundry stood. In later years the building was used as a chair factory.

Do Not Miss This Decided Treat

CLOSING OUT MY STOCK AT COST!

COMMENCING today until the entire stock is sold, I will sell everything at exact cost. I have made a radical change in my business and intend closing out my present stock completely. This is a bonanza for buyers, for I haven't any time for foolishness. I want to get out just as quick as it's possible. Not an item in my store that isn't standard quality and we stand behind all we sell. The cost of nearly everything in my line has advanced since I bought them, and at my exact cost there's money in it even for dealers. whom I invite to see me on any line of goods that I carry.

About Mackintoshes
The rains continue for three months yet. I can fit out anybody yet with a good mack.
At Exact Cost to Me.

About Under wear
The cold weather of winter is yet before us. Any and all of my cotton or wool under-wear
At Exact Cost to Me.

About Shoes
I carry Hamilton Brown's complete line of goods. Scarcely a shoe in the lot that wouldn't cost from 5 to 10 or 12 1-2c more today than when I bought. Yours
For Exact Cost to Me.

About Kitchenwear
Notions, Ribbons, Laces, Mittens, Fascinators and every thing else. All these things sold
At Exact Cost to Me.

I Mean Business.
I'm going to get out at once, and if any one wants to buy me out completely there's a good business for him. I will announce in due time my plans for the immediate future.

About Wheels and Sundries,
My new lines will not be in for a few weeks yet, Meanwhile all my carried over ones to close out at Cost. Keep your eye on my new lines.
