ADVANCING TO DEADLY BATTLE

British Forces Across the Tugela Pressing the Boers Severely

BURGHERS RETREAT IN A WAY TO INDICATE A TRAP

All Day Saturday and Sunday the British Advance on the Boers

The Press Censorship Most Severe For News Gatherers -- Some Minor Details of the Fighting -- General Warren Commenced a Flanking Movement -- Every Inch of Advance Contested Desperately

By Associated Press to the Journal.

LONDON, Jan. 22.--Nothing has been received today to indicate that any conclusive result has been reached by the British forces in the region of the Upper Tugela, and the lack of information regarding what men and munitions the Boers have in reserve prevents any accurate determination as to the measure of real success attending the two days of hard fighting. The British seem to be doggedly advancing in the face of an equally stubborn resistance.

At the close of yesterday's fighting the Republicans had merely evacuated the first line of defense to take up another semi-circular position a short distance in the rear, recalling the old ruse by which the Boers previously managed to entice the British into fatal traps.

LONDON, Jan. 22, 4:45 a. m.--The justifiable severity of the censorship at the present moment prevents the special correspondents from giving additional information to supplement General Buller's latest dispatch. The success of the movement depends almost entirely upon how far he proves able to outmaneuver the Boers, whose available forces are doubtless larger than his own. The chief difficulties lie in the ability of the Boers to transport the men, stores and ammunition quickly and to entrench new positions. Secrecy regarding General Buller's progress, therefore, is essential, and the public here is quite content to wait patiently.

The Sunday Fight.

SPEARMAN'S CAMP, Jan. 22.--On Sunday morning Warren commenced a flanking movement on the extreme left of the Boer position. His infantry has advanced along the irregular Tabanyama mountain, which ends at Spionkop. Artillery positions were taken behind on the plain. The British worked along hills until within 1,000 yards of the commanding kopje on which the Boers were concentrated, concealed behind immense boulders.

The artillery opened an attack, and the batteries, worked continuously, pouring tons of shrapnel among the Boers, who devoted their attention to musketry firing on the British infantry. The Boers stuck to the rock fastnesses with the greatest tenacity, and at the conclusion of the day the British had only advanced across a few ridges. The Boers apparently have but few guns, and they did little damage. Captain Henley, a Dublin fusilier, was mortally wounded.

Sunday Morning's News. LONDON, Jan. 22.--The war office shortly after midnight posted the following dispatch from General Buller, dated Spearman's camp, January 20, evening.

"General Clery, with a part of General Warren's force, has been in action from 6 a. m. till 7 p. m. today. By a judicious use of his artillery he has fought his way up, capturing ridge after ridge for about three miles.

"The troops are now bivouacking on the ground he has gained, but the main force is still in front of them.

"The casualties were not heavy. About 100 wounded had been brought in by 6:30 p. m. The number of killed has not yet been ascertained."

It is evident from General Buller's dispatch to the war office and the advice to the Associated Press from Spearman's camp that a big battle is now being fought. As far as can be gathered from these dispatches, the result remains undecided, and unless the Boers withdraw during the night, the engagement on which hangs the fate of Ladysmith, and which may prove the turning point of the whole war, will be resumed this morning.

Slow Progress Sunday.

SPEARMAN'S CAMP, Jan. 21.--10:20 p. m.--After 10 hours of continuous and terrible fire yesterday, Generals Hart and Clery advanced 1000 yards. The Boers maintained an irregular fire during the night, but the British outposts did not reply.

This morning at daybreak the Boers opened a stiff fire. The British stood to the guns where they had slept and the engagement was renewed vigorously. The field artillery poured shrapnel into the enemy's trenches.

A rumor that Ladysmith had been relieved enlivened the British, who sent up a ringing cheer. This was taken for an advance. The first kopje was carried at the point of the bayonet, and the Boers retreated to the next kopje, which, like most others, was strewn with immense boulders, unmounted by mounds on the summit.

The British advanced steadily and the Boers relaxed slightly. The latter did not show such tenacity as previously. Their Nordenfeldts fired at long intervals, and their cannon fired but seldom. Apparently the Boers were short of ammunition. All day the roar of musketry fire continued. The British took three Boer positions on the mountain and found shelter behind the boulders.

How They Crossed.

BOER HEADQUARTERS, UPPER TUGELA, Tuesday, Jan. 16, via Lorenzo Marques, Friday, Jan. 19 (afternoon).--It became known today that 300 English had crossed the Pont drift over the great Tugela and were on the federal side. A display in force had been made toward Colenso and another forward toward Oliver's Hoek bridge, which was blown up by us a few years ago.

Toward 5 o'clock the alarm was given that the Englishman were coming. The lookout observed long successive lines of infantry moving down to the new British position, a brush-covered chain of hills, known as Zwartkop. Their forces were sometimes lost in the trees studding the river bank. At 6 o'clock they emerged in open order and advanced in two lines to the low kopjes on the river bank.

At 6:30 they took up a position amid complete silence on the Boer side, their horses tethered where there was the least danger from chance shells, and the men prepared to make a night of it at their posts.

Night had how fallen. With the gloom came fitful flashes of lightning from the thunder clouds, which had threatened all day. The clouds eventually separated, showing the moon. Simultaneously with the clearing of the sky, well-known Dutch hymns were repeated from kopje to kopje, with a strangely weird effect, highly inspiring both to the greybeards and the beardless youths.

The battle field is full of historical significance. Spionkop hill, whence I am now writing, was a hill from which the Boer trekkers, after crossing the Drakensburg mountains, spied out the then barbaric Natal.

General Warren's Attack.

LONDON, Jan. 22.--The Times has the following, dated Sunday evening, from Spearman's camp:

"All yesterday and today General Warren has been attacking the Boers. Their position is a long ridge, four miles northwest of Richard's drift, ascending

Major Johnson Disperses Filipino Fugitives -- Schwan Will Attack at Santa Cruz

By Associated Press to the Journal.

MANILA, Jan. 22.--Major Johnson reports from Lemery, that he drove the enemy through Batayang, eastward the morning of the 18th. A few hours later he captured four prisoners, killed three insurgents. Johnson drove the enemy through the Lemery on the Tual, where he attacked the southern portion of the city, and Muir the northern portion. The enemy dispersed. Johnson's casualties were one killed, three wounded.

The enemy is reported in a large force near Santa Cruz, Laguna de Bay, and Gen. Schwan is swinging his troops on that point.

from the river. At dawn yesterday (Saturday) our guns occupied a kopje on the east of the range.

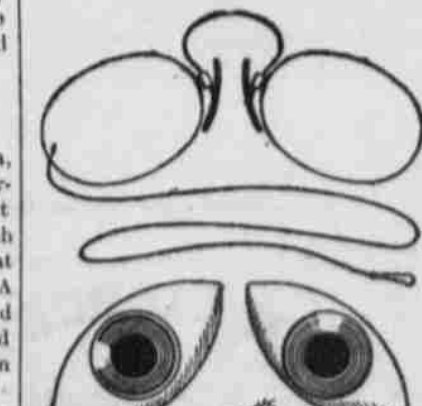

"The enemy's defenses were chiefly stone and sandbags extending forward and right along the spur, making the position semi-circular. At 11 o'clock General Hart's brigade advanced on the left along a rocky, uneven spur into the semi-circle under heavy fire, from three directions. Taking advantage of all possible cover, the troops advanced to a point within 500 yards of the enemy's right wing, but they did not advance beyond the edge of the cover. They remained until dark and bivouaked.

"In addition to Maxim-Nordenfeldts, the enemy fired shrapnel captured at Colenso. Their fire was intermittent and was temporarily silenced by our masked batteries. At night the enemy's right wing evacuated this position."

Boer Sympathizers Meet.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.--The Grand opera house was packed to the doors last night with an enthusiastic audience that expressed its sympathy with the Boers. The speakers included members of both branches of congress, and on the stage were other public men, who came merely to add their moral support.

"The keynote of the speeches was that the Boers were fighting for their independence, as our forefathers had done in 1776. The gathering assembled under

ELEVEN WORKMEN BURIED ALIVE

Eight of the Unfortunates Are Rescued Alive--Foreman Probably Dead.

By Associated Press to the Journal.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 22.--Eight of eleven men entombed by the caving in of earth yesterday were rescued uninjured today. John De Joe is still entombed and injured, but it is not known how seriously. Foreman Crawley is doubtless dead. The sewer broke over the place where the men were working and the water saturating the earth which caused it to fall.

MORE COALING STATIONS ARE BEING ASKED FOR

Col. Bryan's Love Feast in New York Uniting all the Factions of Democracy

By Associated Press to the Journal.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.--A special to the Herald from Washington says:

Rear-Admiral Bradford, chief of the bureau of equipment, will recommend that the number of coaling stations be largely increased. It is understood the house naval committee will approve Bradford's recommendation for an appropriation of $500,000 for the establishment of coaling stations along the Atlantic coast, in Hawaii, Guam and the Philippines.

The Canal Bill Will Pass.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.--According to the Herald's Washington correspondent, the Hephburn-Morgan Nicaragua canal bill will be passed during the present session of congress. Speaker Henderson is in favor of the bill and for prompt action. Senator Frye, president pro tem, wants action by the senate, and expresses the belief that the bill will be passed at an early date.

Bryan in New York.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.--There is a great stir in Democratic circles over W. J. Bryan's visit to New York. Bryan will consult the various leaders, and tonight will be the guest of O. H. P. Belmont at dinner. All factions of the party will be represented. The idea is to unite the warring clans and secure a united delegation to the coming national convention to vote for Bryan.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.--At the investigation of the Clark election today, P. W. Murray, of the legislature from Butte, testified having been approached and having his vote solicited for Clark by Mr. Gallick. He also said George Casey had offered to buy certain of witness's mining property on the condition that he vote for Clark. The prosecution announced that it had no more witnesses on hand, and the committee adjourned until tomorrow.

In speaking of the Belmont dinner Bryan said: "I understand it is merely an informal dinner and I do not intend to speak there. Bryan was asked, in view of the contradictory statements in regard to his policy where he stood.

"I stand on the same line, and am not abandoning my platform or principle. I shall talk on silver, trusts and imperialism."

"You place silver first?" was suggested.

"I make no special order. Any one of them is enough to kill the Republican party."

In the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.--Pritchard, in the senate, called up the resolution relating to the proposed amendment to the constitution of North Carolina, which if adopted, it is alleged, disfranchises a large class of voters of that state.

Pritchard addressed the senate in support of it. There could be no fear of negro domination in North Carolina, he declared, because the whites outnumbered the blacks two to one.

Turner, Democrat, of Washington addressed the senate on the Philippine question. He said, that perfly and had faith were involved in the pretensions put forth by the administration to absorb and govern the Philippine islands without the consent of their people.

In the House.

By Associated Press to the Journal.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.--The house today devoted its time principally to the consideration of district of Columbia business, and adjourned.
