THANKFUL FOR PUNISHMENT R. publican; and Imperialism Discussed With a Free Hand. All good men should rejoice in the victories of the Boers. Not since Washington cornered Cornwallis has a greater service been done the world than now by their little republic.

While England extended her power by right-riding and gave the advantages of modern life and civilization to less fortunate peoples, there was no need that her power and growth be limited. Such in general was her career during the long life of Gladstone, when he was premier, or the practical director of the premier. He attempted, as one of his critics said, to apply the principles of Christianity to public affairs, although there were blunders upon even the policies of Gladstone, showing how dangerous is the possession of great power to even the greatest.

But since the death of Gladstone, and even before that event, there has been growing a most monstrous doctrine, nothing less than that the great powers needed no longer to respect moral obligations. Some have even impudently dared to call this "the higher morality." Faith need not be kept with a weaker people. A strong power, especially England, had a right to "assume control" of the less advanced nations, and organize them into her empire. Their superstitions, or customs, or even her own treaty obligations, need not be considered. This was her "duty," and she was acting in obedience to a high destiny in taking up "The White Man's Burden" and lordling it over those who were "half devil and half child"—to use two almost unparaphrasable expressions of a young Englishman.

It was in this spirit that England fomented the war in South Africa, feeling herself able to attempt "the strenuous life" in the world, her first step was to demonstrate "prestige." She wished to show that an Englishman was somewhat better than any other man; like a Roman of the ancient world. Indeed it was seriously stated that it would be fatal to her pretensions unless the Briton as such should be allowed to be the superior of all others.

Africa, for various reasons, offered the best field of operations. But in order that there should be no really formidable foe England compounded friendships with America and Germany; and even withdrew an antagonistic attitude toward France and Russia. Not a great power peeped while she prepared to annihilate a people deemed too weak to succeed, but too brave to flinch. It was perhaps the most shameful silence the world ever kept; even exceeding that when the Armenians were massacred, or the Greeks were crushed.

If the Boers had failed; if God had not "directed the bullets," the idea would have prevailed that great power is not amenable to moral law. By the fearful destruction of her troops, the hollowness and hypocrisy, not only of the British claims and their pretended "strenuous life," but its utter feebleness and incapacity are demonstrated. Whatever power England ever had rested solely upon right. Let her swerve a hair from the right and her high organism is swept into ruins. Great power in states is like high speed in locomotion. A very little variation from its true course sends the lightning express to wreck.

Not less, but infinitely more careful great powers must become. Their existence depends upon the moral suffering and support of mankind. In a year's time Chamberlain's playing the tyrant has threatened the results of sixty years of Gladstone's great statesmanship. One administration of tyranny in America ruins the party of Lincoln. A very little wrong doing by a great state aggregates a wrong so great—England can do wrong faster than any other country in the world—that punishment is worked up like a flash of lightning. England is now beaten by a tenth rate power, and is hated and despised by all the world. Her prestige is gone. She is probably hated more than she deserves; but in all the reaction of moral feeling the measure is heaped up double.

She must now exert every resource to get out even respectably from a scrap with a pigmy. The burst of loyalty will turn to criticism and contempt of her own subjects. Her larger colonies may separate themselves from a power likely to disturb their peace and give no protection. Not a century of pre-eminence but of recuperation and painful attention to home affairs awaits her. She has abused her world power, and is summarily sent home to begin over again. The primary lesson of justice must be learned once more. For this the Boers are to be praised; and America may see, perhaps, where "imperialism" leads a great modern power.

H. S. LYMAN.

MRS. EMMA FEELEY. Written by a Friend of the Lady Who Was Burred Today.
Emma Yanke was born on Oct. 6, 1875, and was 27 years old at the time of her death.
She was the oldest of six children, three having gone before, one brother and two sisters. The deceased leaves a husband and one child 16 months old, a mother, the widow of Frederick Yanke, he having died 4½ years ago, and two brothers, Charles and Frank.
She was a highly respected young woman by every one who knew her. When a young girl she was educated at the Sisters' School in Salem, Oregon. She was a faithful and industrious young woman and resided on the farm home east of the prison.
About three years ago she was joined in wedlock to Frank Feeley, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Feeley of this city, always enjoying good health until about a year and a half ago, when she began to fail in health and she has been going down ever since. In 1897, Jan. 13, one child was born to them which now with the husband survives her, her ailment being consumption.

Stoo Reward, Stoo. The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Station Items. Two young men from Portland conducted a skating rink here a few nights last week, and would have left a $10 board and rent bill unpaid in their haste to leave town Tuesday morning had it not been for their creditors stopping them in time. After second thought they concluded to stay and sell their skates to procure the necessary funds to pay up.

Special meetings are still in progress at the Baptist church.
Wm. Bailey, of Elkhorn, was in the city Tuesday. He is thinking of going to Arizona soon to visit a sister.
Marion Taylor dropped down on us all of a sudden Tuesday from Mehana. Don't see what he wanted here—we were minding our own business and the town was as quiet as usual.

Mrs. Grace Nott, who resides near Olex, Ore., has been visiting her aged parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Ashley, of this city, a few weeks. She will return to her home this week.
Work has begun on the river above town to clean out the drift which the recent rains brought with it. There has been barely enough water in the mill race to run the factories dependent on that stream for power for the past week.

According to the Tillamook Headlight, the amount of cheese manufactured in Tillamook county last year is estimated at 300 tons, which brought $74,000 to the county; and that of butter is estimated at 200 tons, representing $100,000 for the manufacture of the article. As to cattle, over 300 head have been sold and driven out of the country, bringing a return of $50,000.

Salt Lake City—An Important Factor in Transcontinental Travel.

No one crossing the continent can afford to omit Salt Lake City from his route. The attractions of the place, including the Mormon Temple, Tabernacle and Church institutions, the Great Salt Lake—dealer and denser than the Dead Sea in the Holy Land—the picturesque environment and the Warm Sulphur and Hot Springs, are greater to the square yard than any locality on the American continent.

The Rio Grande Western Railway, connecting on the East with the Denver & Rio Grande and Colorado Midland Railways and on the West with the Southern Pacific (Central Route) and Oregon Short Line, is the only transcontinental line passing directly through Salt Lake City. The route through Salt Lake City via the Rio Grande Western Railway is famous all the year round. On account of the equable climate of Utah and Colorado it is just as popular in winter as in summer. Baldness Can be Cured just so long as there is a particle of vitality left in the hair roots. The fact that the hair is smooth and shining is no positive proof that the roots beneath are dead. Deep down beneath the skin, hair roots may yet exist, filled with latent vitality, and all that is required to develop them into a beautiful head of hair is the faithful application of the proper agents.

Seven Sutherland Sisters' Preparations furnish the easiest, surest and quickest way to ascertain if there is or is not latent life beneath a head bare of hair. Why not try them?

Burlington Route You Can Get a Lower Berth.

With one exception—the through trains of the Burlington Route are almost invariably well-filled. The exception is our St. Paul-Chicago Limited. On the latter there is usually room and to spare.

Don't infer that it is neither so fine, nor so fast, as ANY train of ANY other line between St. Paul and Chicago. On the contrary, there is no more beautiful train in America. It has electric light, steam heat, wide vestibules, the most satisfactory dining-car service on the continent—and lower berth for everybody.

A LIFE SAVED. Dr. J. F. Cook, the Botanical Specialist, Succeeds Where Other Fail.

To whom it may concern: This is to certify that Bertha P. Connor, of Mt. Angel precinct, Marion county, Oregon, has suffered from a cancerous growth in the left ear for about three years. The growth was cut out twice and burned out once by Albany Physicians, but the growth came back as bad as ever, and pained her so badly that she had to be taken from school. After three weeks' treatment by Dr. J. F. Cook, of Salem, Oregon, the Botanical Specialist, the growth entirely disappeared, and at this date, four months since treatment was begun, the growth has not reappeared, and the ear has entirely healed, leaving not the scars inflicted by the Albany doctors.

I hereby certify that the above statement is absolutely true, and that Bertha P. Connor, the person mentioned in the affidavit, has resided in my family since early childhood, bearing the relationship to me of niece.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this eighth day of June, 1899. W. W. Hall, county clerk of Marion county, Oregon.
