THE LABOR QUESTION.
Editor JOURNAL:—Almost every day some one breaks into print to express a view on the labor question. It is a vast subject, and it is not possible to do justice to it in a single column. It is a subject that has been discussed for centuries, and it is one that will continue to be discussed for centuries to come. It is a subject that is of the greatest importance to the human race, and it is one that should be discussed in the most thorough and dispassionate manner possible. It is a subject that is of the greatest importance to the human race, and it is one that should be discussed in the most thorough and dispassionate manner possible.

AS TO MEDICATION.
It is no secret that the JOURNAL has been a champion of the cause of the laboring man. It has been a champion of the cause of the laboring man, and it has been a champion of the cause of the laboring man. It has been a champion of the cause of the laboring man, and it has been a champion of the cause of the laboring man. It has been a champion of the cause of the laboring man, and it has been a champion of the cause of the laboring man.

For the Boers in this struggle there is a great deal of sympathy in America. It springs from the fact that the Boers are fighting for a just cause, and it springs from the fact that the Boers are fighting for a just cause. It springs from the fact that the Boers are fighting for a just cause, and it springs from the fact that the Boers are fighting for a just cause. It springs from the fact that the Boers are fighting for a just cause, and it springs from the fact that the Boers are fighting for a just cause.

Reasoning from a somewhat different standpoint THE JOURNAL arrives at the same conclusion: That officially this government should not, at least not under present conditions, take any but a strictly neutral stand touching the Transvaal war; and this should be neutral in fact as well as in name.

We should not put it on the ground that we are engaged in the same sort of business in the Philippines, for however much truth there may be in that, it is hardly necessary to put non-interference in the light of reciprocity with England.

However much our sympathies may be with either side in this struggle we really have no ground for official interference. We can not undertake to keep all nations in the path of integrity, and although it is probable that we would as soon call England down as any nation on earth, we must not as a nation be too officious.

There are plenty of ways in which we can show our sympathy for the sturdy Dutchmen who are fighting the battle of liberty in South Africa, and there are ways in which we can materially assist them, without any diplomatic or official rupture with Great Britain.

The time may come when a gentle but insistent offer of mediation on the part of this government may do more for the Transvaal people than would any rash official action now.

At present, however, with the Boer armies in victorious possession of British territory and with England in the position of the under dog in the fight, any talk of this government taking official steps to call off the British, savors very much of foolishness.

The woman who mislays her hat and looks for it in her purse, among other impossible places, is very like the physician who looks in all sort of impossible places for the cause of a disease. The heart begins to act irregularly and straightway the doctor begins to look for the cause of the trouble in the stomach.

The intimate connection of the stomach with the rest of the body is a fact that is often overlooked. The stomach is the center of the body, and it is the center of the body. The stomach is the center of the body, and it is the center of the body. The stomach is the center of the body, and it is the center of the body.

Thousands have been cured of palpitation, liver trouble, shortness of breath, pain in the side, backache, and numerous other ailments by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This medicine acts directly upon the stomach, the organs of digestion and nutrition and the blood-making glands, and the fact that it cures so many forms of disease is the best proof that these diseases originate in the stomach and must be cured through the stomach.

"I had been a great sufferer for several years, and my family doctor said I would not be a living man in two years. I was so weak that I could not walk, and I was so weak that I could not walk. I was so weak that I could not walk, and I was so weak that I could not walk. I was so weak that I could not walk, and I was so weak that I could not walk.

MISS GONNE IN AMERICA.
Miss Gonne, the Irish Joan of Arc, who has been working in the interests of the Boers, arrived in New York City in a few days of the week in the Hollingsworth public school, and has met with much success. It is an attempt to instill in the youthful mind the duties of citizenship as embodied in municipal government. The school is in reality a miniature municipality, the boys filling all the offices from mayor down to policeman. The mayor and his appointees serve one term, and the policeman serve two weeks at a time. There are also juvenile magistrates, provided over by the president, and ordinances are enacted much as they are in the larger council chambers up in the city hall, and just as much decorum is maintained during the sessions. One of the ordinances passed last term reads: "No yelling fire, playing or sitting on the fire escapes or in the side yard. No spitting of water or throwing snowballs. No slingshots." Another ordinance says: "Cleanliness is to be observed when in the yard and in the schoolroom. Citizens must be clean." There is a jail and a police court, where justice is dispensed by a juvenile magistrate, and one of the ordinances provides that "no boy would be allowed to look in the jail windows. If he is seen doing so he will be arrested by the police." Altogether there is every incentive for the youngsters to become conversant with the duties of citizenship.—Saturday Evening Post

SCHOOLBOYS WHO PLAY ALDERMEN.
A novel experiment in education is being tried in the Hollingsworth public school, and has met with much success. It is an attempt to instill in the youthful mind the duties of citizenship as embodied in municipal government. The mayor and his appointees serve one term, and the policeman serve two weeks at a time. THE PRESENT TIME IS THE BEST THAT IRELAND EVER HAD TO STRIKE A BLOW FOR FREEDOM.
In Ireland to-day there are only 6,000 soldiers, where formerly there were 20,000. One reason that Ireland is now in a good position to strike a blow is because she has strictly adhered to Parnell's teaching that liberty could be secured by parliamentary means. It is said that we could have freedom for asking and holding out our hands. God knows that our hands have been held out long enough. Now we see that we must go back to the first idea, freedom must come by force. The spirit in Ireland today is the same as in 1867.

Miss Gonne says that the sentiment against England is now so strong that the troops do not dare to march down the main streets of Dublin for the fear of being hissed and assaulted, and reports that there are now 25,000 Irishmen in the army of England, but that the number is steadily on the decrease, those Irishmen who enlist now being forced to become of the opinion that there is not an Irishman in an English uniform to day whose heart is in the work of fighting for England, and that the number of some of Erin now in the army is 6,000 less than it was 10 years ago.
