THE EAST-WIND.

You're coming, coming, like the light
And spreading o'er the land,
I know thy death for some tonight,
But life and joy to me,
For you're the east wind,
East wind that I love,
The east wind of the sea.

I nurtured on our sea girt coast,
Bound root and rock and tree,
Drank in the food I loved the most,
The east wind of the sea.

And might the spray an ocean's breast,
While you whistled wild and free,
I've kissed your cheek and sunk to rest,
O east wind of the sea!

So, though I pray for those you harm
And wish it might not be,
Sweet is the love of the old charm—
Oh, bring it back to me!
For you're the east wind,
East wind that I love,
The east wind of the sea.

Government by Conquest.

ED. JOURNAL—Imperial despotism and the power of money are twin sisters, sprung up from the same source. It is strange but true that gold found by savages and first used by them for ornaments has ascended a throne of power.

For over a thousand years the powers have controlled the poor laboring classes who have been the victims of conquest, or by purchase or descendants of conquered or purchased parents or debtors paying tribute to the holders of gold.

In ancient times, and in times not very ancient, conquering chiefs by might would invade weaker people and subdue and destroy opposing forces. Then lift up their hands to heaven in thanksgiving for the blessings of victory. They would then hold the people as slaves, or as tributaries as they saw fit, praising the god of might and saying he stood by them and fought for them.

England is fighting to subdue two little republics. The United States, whose government was founded on the principle of no taxation without representation and a government by the consent of the governed, is fighting a much weaker republic to tax them as she pleases and to govern them without their consent. While there is so much sympathy for the two African republics there should be some for the Asiatic republic. I would like to know what is the difference in these two mighty powers.

Caught the General.

One of the regular army officers tells a story of how the old stringent army regulations once went against General Scott. One wet afternoon that soldier was caught in the rain in Washington. He was in full uniform and was well known, so no cab being near, he borrowed an umbrella. Arriving at his hotel, an under-officer approached him and calmly remarked:

"General, you will consider yourself under arrest for eight days for carrying an umbrella while in full uniform."

Under Henry VIII, 72,000 were hanged for vagrancy, and under Elizabeth 400 a year. The vagrancy was caused by the seizure of land by nobles.

Official report says that about 150,000 people in Great Britain gained increased wages, averaging 23 cents a week, during October. Only about 800 sustained reductions.

Australian trade unionists are by no means enthusiastic about the war in the Transvaal. They view it largely as a war of conquest and plunder on the part of England, which is also the view of European organized workers.

The recent municipal elections in Canada resulted in several social victories and an increased vote all along the line. In London three socialist aldermen were elected, and the socialist mayor was defeated by only 210. In Oshawa, Ont., the socialists won by electing their mayor. Twenty-five towns voted for municipal ownership of gas, water and electric light plants.

Mayor E. A. Macdonald, of Toronto, has given notice that he will move at the next meeting of council: "That this council do petition the parliament of Canada at its next session to pass an act to authorize the honorable the postmaster-general to acquire all of the existing telegraph and telephone lines and systems, and make such extensions to and operate the same in connection with and as a part of the postal system of Canada, or, in the alternative, to construct a new system of systems of telegraph or telephone and operate the same as aforesaid; and that the co-operation of the cities, towns and other municipalities of Canada be asked to the end that an act may be passed for the purposes aforesaid."

Chicago is building a big tunnel, on which she has already spent a million and a half. It was let to contract and cost the city $75 to $100 a foot. The contractors threw it up and the city had to do the work. It hired men by the day, paid better wages and shorter hours, and the report of the city engineer just printed shows that the cost has been only $25 a foot! There you have the two systems on the same work. All public work should be done without the intervention of the contractor. It is done better, costs less and the contractor's influence in lobby is done away with. Hundreds of like instances could be quoted, yet the people think the way to get the cheapest work is to have it let to contract. That is why labor unions oppose the contract system. They get better pay and hours and it costs the public less.

ADVERTISING.

It has revolutionized business and benefited humanity.

Advertising is indeed one of the great developments of the age. It has revolutionized business and made it possible to accomplish in a few years what otherwise would have taken generations to compass. Today the advertiser, through the medium of the public press, can introduce his article to the entire public almost literally at a bound. Such a servant at the seller's elbow has naturally made business vastly different from what it was several hundred years ago.

It is no longer necessary, as it was in previous generations, to confine one's commercial transactions to a limited area. In fact, the manufacturer of today regards the world as his field, and there are quite a number of proprietary articles, widely and favorably known in every quarter of the civilized world, which have been introduced during the lifetime of their present proprietors, who are men only in the prime of life.

Without advertising, by which it is possible to reach and influence hundreds of thousands of persons simultaneously, such a result could not be accomplished in several generations. If indeed it could be accomplished at all. Nor has this advertising benefited the seller only. It has brought to the knowledge of the buyer the hundreds of improvements and articles by which life can be made more pleasant, by which the health can be preserved, the palate gratified, the intellect fed and satisfied.

It is no exaggeration to say that no force has conducted more to knit the world closely together nor made our mutual interdependence more apparent. "It is but the simple truth to assert," says a recent writer, "that the loss of the information which the advertisements furnish would be one of the greatest imaginable misfortunes to civilization."—Self Culture.

A Good Shot.

A local sportsman, who has the reputation of being a very bad shot, recently invited some of his friends to dine with him. Before dinner he showed them a target painted on the barn door, with a bullet in the bullseye. This he claimed to have shot at 1,000 yards distance. As nobody believed him, he offered to bet the price of an oyster supper on it.

On one of his guests accepting the wager, he produced two witnesses, whose veracity could not be questioned, to prove his assertion. As they had said that he had done what he claimed to have done, at dinner the loser of the wager asked how his host had managed to fire such an excellent shot. The host answered, "I shot the bullet at the door at a distance of 1,000 yards and then I painted the target around it."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Ground Floor Bedrooms.

There is danger in the porous character of plaster ceilings, which are often very thin indeed. The ordinary ceiling is "only a porous diaphragm permeable by gases with considerable freedom." The vitiated air of sitting rooms therefore frequently finds its way through into bedrooms. The British Medical Journal asks a skeptic to "compare his bodily and mental sensations after sleeping in such a room and one situated over a similar room well ventilated and not occupied or illuminated by gas during the evening." The remedy, it says, is to have bedrooms on the ground floor and living, working and cooking rooms up stairs. But how about noise?—London Chronicle.

His Opinion of Shakespeare.

There is a story going about concerning a famous man of letters who visited Washington recently. He appeared at last one dinner party. There he sat next the young daughter of a noted naval officer. Her vocabulary is of a kind peculiar to very young girls, but she rattled away at the famous man without a moment's respite. It was during a pause in the general conversation that she said to him:

"I'm awfully stuck on Shakespeare. Don't you think he's terribly interesting?"

Everybody listened to hear the great man's brilliant reply, for as a Shakespearean scholar he has few peers.

"Yes," he said solemnly, "I do think he is interesting. I think he is more than that. I think Shakespeare is just simply too cute for anything."—Washington Post.

Costly Lessons.

"What's that there young man's business?" asked Mr. Parvonn.

"He's a tutor, I believe," replied his wife.

"What does he teach?"

"One of them old sciences, I s'pose," answered Mrs. Parvonn. "I ain't just sure what it is, but last night Maybelle told me he was giving her some lessons in occlusion."

"Well, I s'pose she's got to be educated," returned the old man. "I only hope he won't charge no fancy price for his lessons."—Chicago Post.

Paraguay's Particular Fleas.

Perhaps the plague in Paraguay is merely an attack of pique, or sand flea. This insect is called nigra in the native language. In 1870 it killed a whole colony of Englishmen, consisting of 200 families, turning the colony, which was at Itape, into a cemetery. A German colony at Aecagua was driven out. The pique causes buboes and attacks the warm parts of the body—that is, the cavities and the groin and armpits—just the same spots as the eastern plague. It attacks Englishmen and Germans preferentially and avoids those that use but little soap. Soaps clean the body, and the pique flees clean persons to eat. It also avoids people who eat more or less poisonous food. A man saturated with alcohol, Boen gas, nicotine and Paseo de Julio cookery is pretty well safe from the sand flea.—Buenos Ayres Herald.

Official report says that about 150,000 people in Great Britain gained increased wages, averaging 23 cents a week, during October. Only about 800 sustained reductions.

Australian trade unionists are by no means enthusiastic about the war in the Transvaal. They view it largely as a war of conquest and plunder on the part of England, which is also the view of European organized workers.

The recent municipal elections in Canada resulted in several social victories and an increased vote all along the line. In London three socialist aldermen were elected, and the socialist mayor was defeated by only 210. In Oshawa, Ont., the socialists won by electing their mayor. Twenty-five towns voted for municipal ownership of gas, water and electric light plants.

Mayor E. A. Macdonald, of Toronto, has given notice that he will move at the next meeting of council: "That this council do petition the parliament of Canada at its next session to pass an act to authorize the honorable the postmaster-general to acquire all of the existing telegraph and telephone lines and systems, and make such extensions to and operate the same in connection with and as a part of the postal system of Canada, or, in the alternative, to construct a new system of systems of telegraph or telephone and operate the same as aforesaid; and that the co-operation of the cities, towns and other municipalities of Canada be asked to the end that an act may be passed for the purposes aforesaid."

Chicago is building a big tunnel, on which she has already spent a million and a half. It was let to contract and cost the city $75 to $100 a foot. The contractors threw it up and the city had to do the work. It hired men by the day, paid better wages and shorter hours, and the report of the city engineer just printed shows that the cost has been only $25 a foot! There you have the two systems on the same work. All public work should be done without the intervention of the contractor. It is done better, costs less and the contractor's influence in lobby is done away with. Hundreds of like instances could be quoted, yet the people think the way to get the cheapest work is to have it let to contract. That is why labor unions oppose the contract system. They get better pay and hours and it costs the public less.
