

Oh, the Pain of Rheumatism!

Rheumatism often causes the most intense suffering. Many have for years vainly sought relief from this disabling disease, and are to-day worse off than ever. Rheumatism is a blood disease, and Swift's Specific is the only cure, because it is the only remedy which can reach such deep-seated diseases.

A few years ago I was afflicted with inflammatory rheumatism, which became so intense that I was for weeks unable to walk. I tried several prominent physicians and took their treatment faithfully, but was unable to get the slightest relief. In fact, my condition seemed to grow worse, the disease spread over my entire body, and from November to March I suffered agony. I tried many patent medicines, but none relieved me. Upon the advice of a friend I decided to try Swift's Specific. I had never heard of it, but my guardian, who was a chemist, analyzed the remedy, and pronounced it free of poisons or mercury. I felt so much better after taking two bottles, that I continued the remedy, and in two months I was cured completely. The cure was permanent, for I have never since had a touch of rheumatism, though many times exposed to damp and cold weather.

Don't suffer longer with Rheumatism. Throw aside your oils and liniments, as they can not reach your trouble. Don't experiment with doctors—their poisons and mercury will add to your disability and completely destroy your digestion.

AN UNBIASED ESTIMATE

The Philippine Islands and Their Inhabitants

As Seen by Hon. John Barrett in 1892
—The People Were Not All Barbarians Then.

From the Review of Reviews for March 1897, we clip the following extracts from an article by Hon. John Barrett, United States Minister to Siam, entitled "The Cuba of the Far East."

It is of interest now more particularly as showing an estimate of the Philippines by an able and unbiased observer, made before any question of acquiring the islands had arisen to bias the judgment of Americans, or furnish a motive for misrepresentation. Mr. Barrett says:

"Cuba is the richest island of the West Indies; the Philippines are the most resourceful of the East Indies. They lie respectively to the southeast of the continents of North America and Asia, with which they maintain close commercial relations. Both are located in the tropical zone and both have large populations. After the famous Manila hemp, the greatest wealth of the Philippines is in sugar.

"While Cuba tobacco in the shape of fragrant Havana rules the market of the new world, the Manila cigars supply the demand of the old world. The United States buys the major portion of Cuba's exports and a goodly portion of those of the Philippines. Both possess inexhaustible and varied resources, which at present are only partially developed.

"The Asiatic group of islands, according to the best authorities, is the richest archipelago in the world, containing not less than 1,000 separate islands. 'A few figures will assist in giving an accurate idea of the Philippines. The area of the entire group nearly equals that of California or Japan, being variously estimated from 120,000 to 160,000 square miles. The principal island, Luzon, is approximately equal in area to Illinois, or about 56,000 square miles. The total population is slightly in excess of that of New York state, and now numbers 7,000,000. In this connection it can be noted that Luzon alone exceeds Cuba in area by 14,000 square miles, and has over double the population. The second largest island is Mindanao. This is to the south, and occupies nearly the same area as West Virginia, or 24,000 square miles.

"Were I asked to name the chief characteristic of the Philippine islands—a terrestrial archipelago and typhoon—I would at once suggest the power and hold of the celestials. This makes the first and last impression on the visitor; it is before him wherever he travels; it visibly predominates in the government and even extends into commerce; it is an all-controlling influence in the Philippine group. If at first one is prejudiced against it the feeling in a measure vanishes and even turns into admiration.

"A marked result of the influence of the church is that the inhabitants of the Philippines are Christian—a condition which stands out in decided contrast to other lands of Asia. From one end of Luzon to the other, few, if any, pagan temples can be seen lifting their pagodas and pinacles to the sky.

"It is a mistake to suppose that the Philippines are the home of barbaric, uncivilized tribes. Manila was the seat of colleges, observatories and technical schools before Chicago was founded; roads to all points of the compass had been constructed by the friars in Luzon before there was a paved street in the vicinity of the site of Franklin Square in New York city; and devoted padres had carried the gospel to the heart of the tropical jungle before the Pilgrim Fathers landed at Plymouth Rock.

coffee, cotton, bananas, vanilla, casahuate, ginger, pepper, indigo, cocoa, pine-apple, wheat and corn. The mineral include gold, copper, iron, coal, quick-silver, sulphur and saltpetre. From the sea, mother of pearl, coral, tortoise shell and amber are derived. And these are by no means the only resources—they are nothing more than a casual list noted down as each plant or product came under my observation. The animal kingdom keeps pace with the vegetable and mineral. To say nothing of the water buffalo, the most useful beast in the tropics, goats, sheep, swine and the tough little ponies, which take part in the domestic life of the people, the jungle swarms with fauna of such variety that the naturalist finds here a paradise. Snakes and lizards, spiders and ants, tarantulas and crocodiles abound. Apparently strange to relate, there are few beasts of prey, if any, worthy of note—but this is not strange when it is remembered that the Philippines are islands far distant from the main land. The flora of the country is no less rich than the fauna."

After reading Mr. Barrett's article one is likely to conclude that the parallel between Cuba and the Philippines is indeed remarkable, and that the eastern Cuba is a land of which we should like to know more.
