TEMPERANCE INSTITUTE

Meeting Tuesday Evening Very Interesting but Slimly Attended.

Mrs. Additon Thinks the Liquor and Labor Problems to Be Solved Only by the Golden Rule.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON.

Mrs. J. F. Calbraith read a paper on Total Abstinence from a physical stand point. It was a discussion of temperance question contrasting its effects on men and women in savage and civilized life. Mrs. Calbraith has no love for a pipe, but she proved an able champion of the majority of her audience, as while she read there were only three men and a reporter present.

She advocated the right of a woman to choose a husband for her children who was clean of body and pure of soul if such could be found. Mrs. Calbraith struck on some very solid facts.

Mrs. Morcom of Woodburn spoke of an investigation which showed of two hundred girls 35 per cent would have rather been boys, and out of 300 boys, only two would have preferred to be girls, and one of those said it was because girls had more sense.

One good old lady said she believed boys had just as much sense as girls, but they did not use it.

Rev. R. McKillop discussed total abstinence from an economical standpoint. The old levitical law was the drunkard and glutton and stone him.

This was a harsh treatment but if parents would employ this method it would be the survival of the fittest.

The London Insurance Companies deducted from the policy of a drinker for beer 5 years and for rum 7 years and for mixed 9 years. Add to this loss of life the losses from accidents.

England spent more for strong drink than for bread. The United States sold at wholesale 90,000,000 gallons and at retail 616,000,000 gallons. Total expense two and a half billion, with an annual increase of $37,000,000. Total abstinence would save all this and save 60,000 drunkards annually.

He commended Lady McDonald, who refused to have liquor at her table, although her husband, Sir John McDonald, a brilliant statesman and the premier of Canada, was a very hard drinker. His remarks were applauded.

Rev. Grannis discussed temperance from a scientific standpoint. He defined science as Truth ascertained. Back of ascertained truth was Truth itself, the confirmation of revelation. What was the truth concerning the drink habit? It was that the use of intoxicants blighted the intellect. We were becoming a nation of weaklings because of our indulgences. The average height of man was diminished two inches, while the average height of woman had increased two inches. (The gentleman did not explain how these shorter-growing fathers could produce these taller-growing girls.) Society is better to the women than the men.

They were not more nearly perfect, but society demanded more of women than it did of men. If she stepped across the line she was damned forevermore. Scientifically we should let whiskey alone. If you want to get the Truth about it read The Oregon Search light. Applause.

Mrs. Ida Barkley read a paper on Women as an Organizer. She emphasized the mother's work with children. In 1859 there was not a national woman's organization. The mother-hearted women of society were its salvation today.

Her paper was well received and ordered published.

The next paper on "The relations of temperance to missions," was by Mrs. Hester Griffith in the Pacific Christian Advocate, read by Mrs. Libbie Morcom.

Mrs. Addditon made a closing address, and for an impromptu talk it was one of the wisest most pointed and truthful talks of the day.

She overhauled THE JOURNAL editor's paper on the Truth about Intoxicants, saying he was not fully advised as to the extent of the department work done by the W. C. T. U. She endorsed what he said in the main, although the paper was a departure from much that is held to in stereotyped temperance addresses and caused a great amount of comment, some of it favorable and some unfavorable. If it results in arousing greater interest in the Truth about the subject and awakens interest in the organization it will accomplish some good.

Mrs. Additon deserves credit for hard work and sticktoitiveness, as she has drawn larger houses and shown a fairer spirit than any woman temperance worker of national reputation ever brought to Salem.

EVENING SESSION.

A small audience, mostly ladies, turned out to the temperance meeting at the First Congregational church Tuesday evening.

After a short song service and an appropriate prayer by Rev. W. C. Kantner, a vocal solo, "Spare My Boy" was very feelingly rendered by Miss Goldie Short.

The Rev. John Parsons then gave a brief address, his theme being "The World for Christ." The Savior came to lead the world out of the bondage of sin and present it purified to His Father. This was a great task, considering the state of the world in the time of the Cæsars. This task had been accomplished in a great degree. Compared to former conditions, life in the Willamette Valley today was a sort of heaven. The gospel of Christ would be found sufficient for the redemption of the world. The speaker read descriptions of the awful conditions in England in the 17th century, attributed directly to the consumption of gin. Theodore Parker was quoted to show the consumption of intoxicating liquor in New England in the early days.

A dark picture was drawn of the prevalence of intemperance immediately after the close of the revolutionary war, when it was said by European travelers to be the most striking characteristic of the American people, and even deacons and ministers were in many cases inordinately addicted to drunkenness. We should thank God for what has already been accomplished.

"I've drank my last glass, boys," was recited by Miss Goldie Short in a very effective manner, and was highly appreciated.

Next came the address of the evening, by Mrs. Lucia Faxon Additon, "The Human Problem According to Law." She opened her address by reference to Cain's question, "Am I my brother's keeper," and the Almighty's reply. She said this same old Cain cry was heard today.

Referring to Rev. Parson's remarks, she thought this government had been inaugurated with a disease, and the disease of alcoholism prevailing today could be traced back to the old New England cider barrel.

The prevailing evils of the time were not all laid by the speaker at the door of alcoholism.

The poverty and degradation of the working classes in the slums of the Eastern cities, the evils of child-labor in factories, and of the competition of woman laborers with men, were graphically described by the speaker. She thought there ought to be a crusade against the introduction of cash girls in the department stores of Portland.

She advocated the enforcement of all laws as the best way of finding out whether they were good or bad; then repeal the bad ones.

She was out of patience with those professed Christians who say that the Golden Rule is Utopian; that is a law that "can't" be obeyed.

She took a hard fall out of the ladies who rush to bargain counters and special sales with out ever giving a thought to the starving women who make the garments that are sold so cheaply.

She thought "there is something wrong with the civilization which gives a woman 6½ cents for making a man's linen shirt, and then gives a Chinaman 10 cents for ironing it."

She defined the essence of the Golden Rule as the "science of relationship," and she made some very telling illustrations of the mutual dependence of men upon each other, and talked some time on the labor question. Perhaps she would not like to be called a socialist, but Mrs. Additon talked pure socialism, and she called in not inaptly "the divine polity of the universe." The labor question and the liquor question were indissolutely linked together. We have a political economy today which runs something like this: "Every man for himself, and the devil take the hindermost." But a new political economy was coming to the front, founded upon Christ's law, and the solving of the problems which confront us depends upon the acceptance of this new political economy. It was finding many advocates today. Ministers of the Gospel were being removed from their pulpits for advocating the new political economy, but it was finding acceptance.

People were saying "if the Woman s Christian Temperance Union would only go back to first principles, it might accomplish something." In reply the speaker told a story of a green servant girl, who opened the water cock into the sink without opening the outlet; then, when it overflowed upon the floor, tried to mop up the water; and when the mistress came in and told her to shut off the water, said that she didn't have time, as she was too busy with the mop.

The W. C. T. U. had determined to go to the source of the evils against which it has been fighting.

The speaker devoted a short time to the social evil, and plead for an united action by the Christian people to save the fallen and the failing girls.

The human problem must be settled according to law, and that law must be God's law. And it was not enough to love God; the other commandment, the Golden Rule, must be given equal force; for in them are the law and the prophets.

It is a curious commentary on the present peculiar condition of religious and temperance work, that in this, the moral and religious and educational center of Oregon, so little interest seems to be taken in the work represented by Mrs. Additon.

Let a professional evangelist come here and whoop things up on generalities, and spin brilliant, nebulous webs about some other world, tell funny or or pathetic or risky stories, and touch the real every day problems of human existence and especially human relationship as lightly as possible; he will crowd the largest church to the doors every night.

But here comes a woman, earnest, honest and able, who talks sense; who talks of dealing with practical problems in a practical way, but who (fatal mistake) holds the "masters, lords and rulers in all lands" at least indirectly responsible for some of the existing evils, instead of charging it all up to a personal devil; who dares to pick flaws in the social and industrial system; who, worst of all, advocates the preposterous and utopian idea that the Golden Rule is really a law to be obeyed; she talks to a corporal's guard, and the good people of Salem have pressing business elsewhere. Christian citizenship will some day get a hearing, whether we like it or not.

BABY'S BIRTH

Is looked forward to with expectations of joy and gladness. The ordeal of bringing the little one into the world, however, is a critical one for the mother-to-be, and her anticipations of the coming event are shadowed with gloom. Half the pain and all the danger of child-birth can be entirely avoided by the use of "MOTHER'S FRIEND," a scientific liniment of priceless value to all women. Among the men who will be on the floor in the indoor base ball game with Corvallis Friday evening will be Dr. Olinger, Joe Evans, John Hileman, Albert Disque, Geo Bradshaw, Bert Olinger, Ralph Cox, Chauncy Bishop, Roy Buckingham, Chas. Owing to the cold snap of a few days ago in the south it is feared all fruit and fruit trees have been killed.

Leslie Butler expects to open his bank at Hood River about the 1st of April.

If a medal were awarded for the most perfect temperance medicine prepared for family use it would undoubtedly be given to Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This medicine which is entirely non-alcoholic and non-narcotic, produces actual strength, instead of the simulated strength which results from the use of "whiskey medicines," or nerve numbing narcotics.

The many and remarkable cures resulting from the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" prove the soundness of Dr. Pierce's theory that in these days of haste and hurry the stomach is the common breeding place of disease. These cures also prove the soundness of Dr. Pierce's reasoning that "diseases which originate in the stomach must be cured through the stomach." The "Discovery" is a medicine for the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. When the stomach is healthy the blood made in the stomach is healthy, and sufficient in quantity to nourish the nerves and strengthen the system to resist or throw off disease. Nature develops life, sustains life and preserves life by nourishment. Vital failure comes when the body is starved either from lack of food or the inability of the digestive and nutritive organs to extract the nourishment from the food taken into the stomach. "Golden Medical Discovery" takes the obstacles from Nature's way so that she can sustain life by her own methods.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets assist the action of "Golden Medical Discovery."
