

Scrofula, a Vile Inheritance.

Scrofula is the most obstinate of blood troubles, and is often the result of an inherited taint in the blood. S. S. S. is the only remedy which goes deep enough to reach Scrofula; it forces out every trace of the disease, and cures the worst cases.

My son, Charlie, was afflicted from infancy with Scrofula, and he suffered so that it was impossible to dress him for three years. His head and body were a mass of sores, and his eyesight also became affected. No treatment was of any avail until I bought S. S. S. I had almost despaired of his ever being cured, when by the advice of a friend we gave him S. S. S. (Swift's Specific). Aided by the medicine, and after he had taken a dozen bottles, no one who has seen his former dreadful condition would have recognized him. All the sores on his body have healed, his skin is perfectly clear and smooth, and he has been restored to perfect health.

For real blood troubles it is a waste of time to expect a cure from the doctors. Blood diseases are beyond their skill. Swift's Specific.

reaches all deep-seated cases which other remedies have no effect upon. It is the only blood remedy guaranteed purely vegetable, and contains no potash, mercury, or other mineral.

"ANOTHER LIE NAILED."

Sensational Misrepresentation of a Worthy Woman Refuted.

Some ten days ago a lady giving her name as Mrs. Griffin, was canvassing this city to raise funds to assist in building an orphan's home Damascus, Oregon. Her husband, O. W. Griffin, had donated a piece of land for the purpose, and had agreed to erect the building if enough money would be donated to buy the material.

The lady had written some poems and had them printed, and was selling them here for 5 and 10 cents per copy and as much more as the buyer cared to donate toward the very worthy cause.

The lady impressed those who met her as being an honest woman, though somewhat unacquainted with the ways of the world, and was meeting with very moderate success.

Here was a chance for the morning paper to distinguish itself in its favorite line of action, by holding some defenseless person up to the public gaze in a disagreeable light. It embraced the opportunity and gave the poor woman a nice send-off as being probably a fraud, and warned people against her. A day or two later the matter was presented to it in such a light that it took it all back, but the harm was already done.

By way of proving her integrity, against the slanderous attack of the morning paper the lady has caused the two letters or testimonials which follow to be sent to City Recorder Judah. This Journal simply presents the matter, for the sake of setting right before the public those people who seem to have been inexcusably attacked.

DAMASCUS, Or., March 19, 1900. I hereby certify that I, the husband of Dossie W. Griffin, have deeded a piece of land in this town for an orphan home and have agreed to build or have built the same when the material is furnished. I also certify that my wife was acting in good faith with the interest of raising money for that purpose. I vouch for her honesty and capability.

Respectfully,
O. W. GRIFFIN.

HOME TOPICS

The Child of Gallies. I think that song and sunshine made him glad. As they do, that quickly he grew and at sight of some poor bird with broken wing. And if his song was hushed He ceased to sing.

Sometimes, in quiet mood, I fancy, He Sweet confidences told at Mary's knee. There childish grief, if such He had, grew less. Or fading out, made room for happiness. He loved her much, and told her often, too. And she? she pressed him close, as mothers do.

I think when Joseph, wearied, turned to leave The hard day's toil behind him in the eve, He found a child-face smiling at the door. And murmured to himself that more and more The little God-lent Jesus grew in grace. Each day the lowliest sweeter in His face.

A prominent New York florist recently gave the following rules for the tasteful arrangement of flowers for the dinner table. They will prove helpful to the hostess who prefers, or from circumstances is compelled to be her own decorator on occasions.

Rule 1.—If glasses are used as receptacles it is more important that they are artistic in shape than expensive in cut or decoration. Select them with reference to the flowers they are to hold—either white, delicate green, amber or rose. The aim should be to display the blossoms, not the vases.

Rule 2.—Use foliage with discretion, as a background or setting for the flowers.

Rule 3.—Put the flowers in lightly to give carelessness rather than a stiff effect.

Rule 4.—The preference is for one kind of flowers and not more than two varieties should ever be united in one decoration.

Rule 5.—Arrange for a bold contrast of color, as to attain a delicate, soft harmony.

Exquisite floral combinations are golden orchids and LaFrance roses, mauve orchids and tea roses, Parma violets and the pink "Dewey rose, lilies of the valley, mignonne and pink orchids.

Beauty Hints. The sharp, changeable winds of the spring work havoc with any part of the skin that is exposed to their action, but because the cuticle is so thin on their surface the lips are especially likely to suffer. They should be treated with retiring cream no matter whether they are chapped or not.

During the spring when the blood needs attention and eruptions on the face are an annoying possibility, one should be especially particular about the soap that is used, for a poisonous quality used when the blood is not in very good condition is likely to do more harm than it might at other times, for the poison in the blood will then unite with the poison in the soap and prove doubly disastrous. Always use a pure non-scented olive oil soap for both face and hands, and follow its use with a good hand lotion for the purpose of contracting the expanded pores.

Many women find the winds of early spring very trying for the hair. It blows it about, filling it with dust and tangling the loose ends in an annoying way. If at any time the wearing of a veil is desirable, it is in such cases. The hair, when going outdoors, should be put up securely with plenty of hairpins and no attempt made at frizzing or fanciful effect. Fine, soft hair that will not stay up any other way can be plated and pinned in a flat pad at the base of the head. It will then stay neatly and securely in place. Nothing is more untidy than elaborately dressed hair which seems to be in momentary danger of falling over the shoulders, while the short strands at the sides are coming slowly uncurled and fluttering in the wind like the locks of a witch.

Urges Study of Housekeeping. The education of the housekeeper of the future will be acquired in the public schools if recommendations of speakers at yesterday's meeting of the Chicago Woman's club in University hall are adopted. The subject was "The Value of Domestic Economy in the Elementary and Higher Schools," and all of the speakers urged the introduction of the study of the housekeeper's arts in the common schools. Much applause was given by one speaker, who declared that this education should not be confined to girls, but should be shared by the boy pupils. A proper appreciation of the housekeeper's care, and the introduction of the business abilities of men to the conduct of the household were declared to be the solution of the problem of conducting the ideal home.

Clams a La Norfolk. Chop fine one pint of clams. Mix to a paste two tablepoons each of butter and flour and rub into it the hard-boiled yolks of four eggs. Cook the clams slowly in a tablespoonful of butter, but do not let them color. In five minutes add paste; when it begins to melt add gradually a pint of milk and stir until smoothly thickened. Season with one scant teaspoonful of salt, a dash of cayenne and a pinch of mustard; add one teaspoonful of lemon juice and serve at once. Thin sandwiches of graham bread and butter go nicely with this dish.

Braised Lamb's Tongues. Wash half a dozen tongues, cover with boiling water, add one-half of a teaspoonful of salt and simmer for one hour and a half. Drain them, trim off the roots and remove the skin. In a frying-pan brown one tablepoonful each of butter, flour and chopped onion; add one cupful of the water in which the tongues have been simmering and one cupful of strained tomato, and stir until smooth; add one-quarter of a cupful of chopped carrot, one teaspoonful of mushroom catsup, one-half of a bay leaf, a sprig of parsley and salt and pepper to taste. Lay the tongues in a deep dish or pan, pour over them the sauce, cover closely and place in a moderate oven for two hours.—Table Talk.
