BRYAN AT SALEM

Listened to by a Crowd Composed Largely of Republicans.

Severe Arraignment of the Administration and the Party in Power.

Estimates of the number of people in Marion square to hear Mr. Bryan vary from 10,000 to 20,000. Those best qualified to judge place the number at 12,000 to 13,000. If any went away while Mr. Bryan was speaking it was those who were forced to do so by pressing duties elsewhere. Business men in town took turns and went down and stayed as long as possible.

The weather, which after several days of storm looked faintly encouraging in the morning, gradually grew more threatening as the day wore on, and the rain commenced to fall gently before the speaking was over, increasing to a well-defined shower as the crowd dispersed. A noticeable feature of the crowd was its good nature. Every one seemed in good spirits, and much pleasant chaff was exchanged between Republicans and Bryan men. A large proportion of the crowd were, in fact, Republicans. They took their medicine with good spirit, apparently, even though the speaker stepped quite heavily upon their tenderest nerves.

In spite of the number of chairs provided for the ladies, many of the gentler sex were obliged to stand. A few bipeds of the male sex were observed occupying seats but through the efforts of A. W. Dennis and others some of these were induced to give up their chairs to the ladies. The irrepressible boy was in evidence in numbers upon the roof of the speaker's stand. They forgot themselves once and got to talking, but at a low aside of "Boys!" from Mr. Bryan they ceased, and were as quiet as mice thereafter.

HOW HIS SPEECH WAS RECEIVED.
Mr. Bryan's remarks were punctuated with liberal applause, although an out-of-door Salem crowd is noted for lack of demonstrativeness. "Good, good," "that's right," "ain't that a corker," and other exclamations of appreciation were often heard.

The Nebraska put himself at ease on the start by advising the men to put on their hats, making a good-humored allusion to the Oregon climate, and remarking that he would speak with his hat on.
He said that he was willing to die for his country if it were necessary, but otherwise he wanted to live until some of these questions were settled.

The illustrated papers and magazines have made every one familiar with Mr. Bryan's personal appearance. He appears somewhat older than his forty years last Monday, but looks the embodiment of vigorous manhood, in spite of the strain of travel and public speaking under which he has been laboring for many weeks.

He is in no sense a dandy. His soft black hat shows use and his coat the creases of railroad travel. He wore a necktie but no diamond stud.

It is impossible to do even an approximation in a short summary of Mr. Bryan's address. Of course, his principal points and arguments are more or less familiar to all who read papers sufficiently unbiased to publish them; but it is evident that his addresses are not cut and dried, but are varied in illustration and order of delivery and in phraseology.

He commenced with the assumption that all men want good government, except some of those who profit by governmental abuses, and quoted, "Who saves his country saves himself."

He arraigned the Republican party with the assertion that it had not reformed a single abuse which existed when it went into power, but had created new ones, and he said that he would make it so plain that Republicans would have to chloroform their minds and their consciences in order to remain Republicans.

He told the Republican party had deserted the principles upon which it was founded. In 1856 Republicans wanted to get back to the principles of Washington and Jefferson; today they were trying to enser down the principles of Washington and Jefferson. In 1859 the Republicans in Boston were celebrating the birthday of Thomas Jefferson. Have the Republicans in Oregon lately? They are celebrating Mark Hanna's birthday.

From Washington

How a Little Boy Was Saved.

Washington, D. C.—When our boy was about 15 months old he broke out with a rash which was thought to be measles. In a few days he had a swelling on the left side of his neck and it was decided to be mumps. He was given medical attendance for about three weeks when the doctor said it was scarletina and ordered a saline. He wanted to lance the sore, but I would not let him and continued giving him medicine for about four months when the bump broke in two places and became a running sore. Three doctors said it was scarletina and each ordered a blood medicine. A neighbor told me of a case somewhat like our baby's which was cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. I decided to give it to my boy and in a short while his health improved and his neck healed so nicely that I stopped giving him the medicine. The sore broke out again, however, whereupon I again gave him Hood's Sarsaparilla and its persistent use has accomplished a complete cure. I do not think there will be even a scar left. I cannot speak too highly of Hood's Sarsaparilla and recommend it every where I get a chance." Mrs. NETTIE CHASE, 47 K St., N. E.

Like Magic.
"A complication of troubles, dyspepsia, chronic catarrh and inflammation of the stomach, rheumatism, etc., made me miserable. Had no appetite until I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acted like magic. I am thoroughly cured." N. B. SHELLEY, 1874 West 14th Ave., Denver, Col.

If you have failed to get relief from other remedies try Hood's Sarsaparilla. It cures when all others fail, because it is Peculiar to itself.

two English sympathizers on the platform, directly behind the speaker, hung their heads.

"Let the doctrine of imperialism obtain here and the day will never come when this country will dare to show sympathy for a people struggling for their liberty."
Mr. Bryan advocated an income tax. He would amend the constitution so as to specially authorize an income tax. He presented the arguments with which we are more or less familiar.

He handled the Puerto Rican tariff bill without gloves. He said: "Why, the Puerto Rican tariff bill is so bad that even the Oregonian don't dare to defend it," and the crowd yelled.

He told of the many changes of policy on the part of the party, and said: The Republican party is an association of athletes, trained to turn out some result whenever the leaders say "Hop."
He talked at length on the money question, making it plain that he had no sense abandoned bimetallicism. In spite of the numerous deaths and burials of the silver question, he had carefully examined the corpse and was confident that it had life enough to last another year.

THE D-DOLLAR AND THE MAN.
No tomb is large enough to hide a righteous cause. When a Democratic president placed himself in the hands of Wall Street, Democrats repudiated their president, preferring defeat to dishonor.

He could understand how a man who placed the dollar above the man could favor the gold standard and a national bank currency; but not a man who placed the man above the dollar. He said that we have not yet seen the gold standard completely in force; we would get in it all day as we could stand it; and he told a good story to illustrate his point.

While Mr. Bryan was on his way to the grounds, a flag was waved over his carriage, which was waved at the Bryan dinner in New York City. This was the property of Mrs. Wells and Mrs. Munson, of Depot Addition. It was sent to them by a relative who attended the dinner in New York, and they brought it down town yesterday and waved it again over Bryan's head.

Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup Banishes All coughs of all forms of throat diseases, and always effects a permanent cure. This wonderful remedy has cured thousands of sufferers from bronchitis, hoarseness and other bronchial troubles.

Itarian and Imperialism. He thought that a Republic had no use for a standing army of 100,000 men. The difference between a Republic and an Empire is that a standing army of 25,000 men was enough for a Republic of 75,000,000 people; but 75,000,000 more soldiers were needed for an Empire of only 20,000,000 more people.

He drew a sharp distinction between expansion and imperialism, and announced himself an expansionist. We expanded when we took in Florida and California. We took in land that could be peopled by citizens of the United States. This was not true of the Philippines. The Filipinos would not be displaced by white people, and they could not be admitted to citizenship; they must be held as subjects, it at all. We would not let the Chinaman become a citizen when he wanted to; shall we make the Filipino a citizen when he don't want to be?

"We have a title to the Philippines which is recognized by every man who believes that governments do not derive their just powers from the consent of the governed."
"Spain went into those islands three centuries ago with a club, beat the people into subjection, and sat down on them with the club in her hands. We found her there, bought the club for $20,000,000, and sat down on them ourselves."

The speaker paid his respects to the Sultan of Sulu, and the slavery there existing under the flag.
He said there were three arguments in favor of imperialism; that there is money in it; that God is in it; that we are in it and can't get out.
He denounced the first proposition in the most scathing terms; he ridiculed the idea that the Almighty would choose Mark Hanna as His mouthpiece; and he advocated treating the Filipinos as we were treating the Cubans and the South American republics.

Mr. Bryan talked until 10 o'clock sharp, leaving him barely time to make the train. As soon as he ceased there was a rush to shake hands with him, and it was with considerable difficulty that he reached the carriage waiting behind the stand. Then the crowd matted onto the carriage and clung to it until the four horses broke into a trot. Mr. Bryan took the jostling and pulling with the greatest good humor, and shook as many hands as possible.

NOTES.
As Mr. Bryan finished speaking one of the JOURNAL boys reached the platform and presented him with a paper. He thanked the boy and shook hands with him heartily.
The Southern Pacific very courteously held the 4:14 train about 10 minutes over time to give the people a chance to board Mr. Bryan's car and shake hands with him.

The Liberal University at Silverton gave its pupils a holiday so that they might have an opportunity to come and hear one of the country's most noted men.

There were a number of Republican ladies on the committees, but they did their non-partisan best to make the affair a success.
But one song was rendered by Mrs. Hinges, the one at the opening. As the time for closing approached, the lady urgently requested the committee to disregard her part on the program, and let Mr. Bryan talk until the last possible moment, as she felt sure the people would rather hear him.

While Mr. Bryan was on his way to the grounds, a flag was waved over his carriage, which was waved at the Bryan dinner in New York City. This was the property of Mrs. Wells and Mrs. Munson, of Depot Addition. It was sent to them by a relative who attended the dinner in New York, and they brought it down town yesterday and waved it again over Bryan's head.
