WHAT IS THE TRUTH ABOUT LIVING?

There is no sense in dividing man up into different compartments, or threefold natures, as mental, moral and physical. For the purpose of a newspaper article, and to enable the common reader to grasp any truth out of reading this column, that will make him or her able to do better by himself or herself, let us consider man just as one thing—man. As a unity, or one thing, it is about as complicated, and as liable to get out of repair, and to go wrong, and let us suppose that is what is called original sin, or the tendency to accept error, and to live in darkness, in place of accepting truth and coming into light.

THE JOURNAL would like to see everybody healthy and happy and prosperous. The first essential in this direction is to get your mind clear for action. The deck of a ship that is all lumbered up with rubbish, is in no shape to fight a winning battle. Clear your mind of rubbish, cast all the non-essentials overboard and let your main long-tom continually in action be good-will toward others. The man or woman who has only good-will toward every other human being, as individuals, and toward the community as a whole, can never go far wrong or be sick for any length of time, or fail to prosper, with reasonable effort.

Having cleared and cleaned your mind of rubbish and gotten the right idea at the helm, next free your body of the slavery to any habit. If you are obliged to use so much tobacco each day, or to take a drink of liquor every so often, or take pills every third day, or use morphine, or this nostrum or that, or if you can't live without postum cereal, King's Discovery or Quaker oats, you are a slave. You can be a slave to lusts, and passion, and appetites and vanities in a thousand different ways. Resolve to be free. God has filled the earth with such an abundance and variety of delicious and harmless foods, fruits, meats, fishes, shellfish, vegetables, and good water, that no one is excusable for being so ungrateful as to not use them, but rely on the nostrums of the doctorshop or the chemical labratory for artificial preparations. If you will go still farther and raise fruit and vegetables and fish and hunt or raise fowls and use eggs freshlaid on your premises, they will taste better and you will begin to realize what it is to have an enthusiasm in life, and to live in a genuine relation to this beautiful and productive old world that is so little appreciated.

Why a man or woman should poison themselves with fermentations, narcotics, nicotin, drugs, artificial preparations, and lead an entirely artificial life, separate from nature and the world we are made to live in, never working in the open air, never getting up an honest presperation, never drawing an honest unadulterated breath, and expect to be well and happy and strong and useful, is a mystery to anyone with brains enough to fill a peanut shell. But nine-tenths of the world are doing it and when they are carried off they blame God and call it a dispensation of providence. Well, so it was, to punish us for violating the very laws of existence.

What is said here is not in the way of asking you to be a teetotaler, or to adopt a graham flour or sawdust diet. Let us be sociable, be temperate; but let us enjoy more fully the riches and beautiful things God has put in this world for our enjoyment. The beauties and riches of it all are for us. Man and nature are the thought of God and cannot live out of harmony with each other and be in harmony with the creator of all that is True and Good and Beautiful. The trouble with us is we live so little. We do not realize the realities of Being. Before we learn to live we have ceased to exist as to this world, and we are but poorly prepared at best for the next. God help us all, amen.

SALVATION FOR THE EDUCATED MAN

What shall be done to save the college graduate? What shall the graduate, whether it be from our magnificent eighth grade or from one of our numerous universities, do to be saved? What shall such persons do to gain a modicum of common sense and achieve a fair degree of usefulness? What shall be done with them to give them a practical preparation for an enduring manhood or womanhood? Certainly something is needed to utilize what has been given them in the way of a start on the road to intellectual culture, so that they may not adorn the hospitals, poorhouses and asylums in the course of time.

A life experience and not entirely neglected opportunities of observation bids us utter this more or less sage declaration; nothing better could happen to the average person released from the modern straight jacket methods of education than to be sentenced to a term at hard labor. Not the penitentiary or reform school, but better there than not learn to know the blessings and consolations and character-benefits of labor. We do not mean "exercise" or that other fraudulent substitute called "athletics;" but hard work, the real thing; on the farm, in the logging camp, mine, or saw mill; the blacksmithshop or carpenter trade is honester and better as a training place for a boy than the average college.

Only by a period of hard labor of five or ten years, best of all in the open air, can an enduring physique and character be formed for the ordinary man. The man or woman so fortunately situated as to be compelled to go to work by poverty and debt stands a far better chance of amounting to something in this world than the one so unfortunate as to be provided for and never be compelled to labor and to save and to learn the value of time and money. There is no salvation in this world and very little in the next for the idler, or the man or woman whose muscles have not been hardened, whose sinnews have not been toughened, and the mortar in whose character has not been set in the perspiration of honest useful labor that hardens the hands and stiffens the backbone. A weak and flabby generation, of pale-faced anaemic creatures, male or female hold out no hope for the nation.

THE WATER FATHER OF SALEM.

There is a general public interest in this community in the recovery of J. M. Wallace, the father of Salem's present excellent water service. He was prostrated from overwork and heat some days since, but is reported recovering nicely, and will soon be around again at his accustomed haunts.

Father Wallace came to Salem some years ago from an active business life in Colorado and participation on the Chicago Board of trade. He took charge of Wallace's estate properties, carried them safely through the years of depression, and has since put them in a solvent condition where they are beginning to be paying properties. But what Salem people feel most grateful to Father Wallace for is the fact that he has given this city the best water service, qualify and pressure considered, of any western city that we know anything about.

The blessings of a good water service cannot be overestimated and we cannot too much regard J. M. Wallace in the light of a public servant, a public benfactor. Good water means health and comfort. Plenty of it means safety to property and beautiful streets and public and private grounds if the people have the enterprise to use the service he has given them. Surely for these gifts we are thankful and all join in the wish that Father Wallace may have a safe recovery and long years and the enjoyment of all his faculties and powers. Saint and sinner may join in this fervant wish and desire of the heart for his entire restoration.

Nearly Ready.

Guy M. Powers, agent for the O. R. & N. Co., is busily engaged in fitting up the room adjoining the St. Elmo restaurant, where the new uptown office of the company will be located. He expects to have the office ready for occupancy by next Tuesday. This will be quite a convenience for the patrons of the company. Mr. Powers will be at the uptown office, while Fred Palmer will attend to the duties of the dock office.

The average baccalaureate sermon ought to be labeled, a discourse on what I don't know anything about.

JUSTICE AND LIBERALITY

That Is the Only Policy for the Powers to Pursue.

In his address to the graduating class of Cornell University President Schurman said:

"The most imminent danger in modern politics is the exploitation of the weaker races by the stronger races, into whose power they have fallen. It may be done by regulations of trade and commerce, or it may be done in more insidfuous ways. But, however done, it is certain to prove a bane to both. For the world is a moral world and history is governed by moral laws, and oppression and injustice never fail to bring as their nemesis unending discontent, chronic revolts and impoverished treasuries.

"Good policy prescribes absolute justice in dealing with weaker races who have come under the sovereignty of stronger races. In the case of us Americans, it would be an unpardonable thing if we forgot our own ideals and conceived that we had any mission in relation to foreign people who may come under our flag except to train them up to the exercise and enjoyment of the privileges and liberties which the flag symbolizes and guarantees. Our true greatness consists in the character of our intellectual and moral ideals and the energy with which we train them up to become sharers of these ineffable blessings. To seek our advantage and not theirs would be to repeat the criminal blunder which, in the last century, cost England her American colonies.

"I feel sanguine, however, about the future of our enlarging Republic, and the ground of my confidence lies in the nature of the ideals of the American people and the devotion with which they pursue them. The great American nation loves order, justice, liberty and intelligence, and desires them for others as well as for itself. See how sensitive public opinion was on the Porto Rican legislation, and how, in response to the demands of independent citizens, irrespective of party, a bill was passed giving the Porto Ricans home rule and providing for free trade with the United States. Necessarily, in two years and just as much earlier as the Porto Ricans themselves desired."

Off the Track.

This means disaster and death when applied to a fast express train. It is equally serious when it refers to people whose blood is disordered and who consequently have pimples and sores, bad stomachs, deranged kidneys, weak nerves and that tired feeling. Hood's Sarsaparilla puts the wheels back on the track by making pure, rich blood and curing these troubles.

Constipation is cured by Hood's Pills. 25c. 8

CASTORIA.

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

A Report on Hay.

Thos. Walker, of Salem Prairie, was in the city today, and says the late rains have not injured the hay crop to any great extent. Mr. Walker is one of the most extensive hay growers in the county and says people are often hurt before they are bitten. He says that it will be at least one more week before the hay harvest can begin, but says, with fair weather the crop could stand until July 1st.

With Mr. Hanna, the Republican party is down on bad trusts, but thinks the good trusts ought to be left alone. This is not definite or satisfactory, but it is hard to see how anything more definite or satisfactory can just now be devised. Protected trusts can be reached by tariff reduction, or removal; but that is not enough. Who is to say which are good trusts and which are bad?

We would like to suggest to the Oregonian in reply to the above, that it makes some difference which campaign fund it contributes to.

The Pinkham Remedies

Mrs. Pinkham counsels women free of charge. Her address is Lynn, Mass. The advice she gives is practical and honest. You can write freely to her; she is a woman.
