THE O. N. G. CAMP

PLENTY OF HARD WORK FOR THE YOUNG SOLDIERS THIS WEEK.

It is a Valuable Training School and Much Improvement is Made—Gov. Geer Reviews Troops Tonight.

The militia boys are getting a taste of hard work this week and are realizing that the annual encampment of the Oregon National Guard is not in all respects a summer picnic. Getting up at 5 o'clock in the morning and spending four or five hours of the day in drilling besides all the work incidental to keeping the camp in order and their tents, uniforms, arms and accoutrements in spick and span shape involves a good deal of physical exertion, and the military discipline places restraints upon the boys which many of them never felt before.

It is a splendid school for the young fellows, and is worth all its cost to the state. The officers seem to be inclined to take a reasonable view of the situation and to realize that they have to deal with young Americans with the many independence of the race, few of whom have ever before been brought face to face with the exigencies of army life.

So, while the training and drilling goes on, and the lines of discipline are drawn gradually tighter, the boys are being braced up to the standard of the ideal soldier without unnecessary severity. There is already a noticeable decrease in the amount of "rubbering," by the boys when they are in the ranks, and they are acquiring the ability to keep "eyes front" under most trying circumstances. A most dainty piece of femininity floated by the Woodburn company last evening, while the boys were standing at "attention," but beyond a slight quiver of the eyelids and a convulsive heaving of the chest not a man yielded to temptation. This is a notable victory for the disciplinary ability of Captain W. E. Pinner, and it may be said in all seriousness that his company is showing a very marked improvement under his experienced and skillful hand.

It is safe to say that by the last of this week, the men of the Oregon National Guard will constitute the best drilled body of militia ever gathered together in Oregon.

Battery A arrived Monday afternoon, after a three days' march from Portland, and went into camp near the cavalry at the north end of the grounds. The battery consists of fifty-two men, under Capt. H. U. Welch, First Lieut. Lee M. Clark and Second Lieut. Andrew D. Allen, and has seven pieces of artillery. This evening the entire brigade will be reviewed by Gov. Geer, in full uniform, on a tall horse, and this will undoubtedly be the most brilliant affair of the encampment. The governor will arrive on the ground shortly after 6 o'clock, and will be received by the brigade drawn up on the parade ground. A salute of 19 guns. He will review the troops, after which the regular dress parade will be held, ending with the salute at sunset.

TWO BLUFFS THAT WON.

A Pleasant Meeting Between the Editor and the Reporter.
Jack Rogers was a newspaper reporter and broke. He had hung around the Dubuque newspaper offices for a job until he had been requested to move on. So he decided to move on to Des Moines. But how to get there was the question. Jack put on his thinking cap, and the result was that two hours later he found himself on a train and the conductor standing by his seat.

"Click," said the conductor. "See here, conductor," said Jack easily. "my name's Rogers, and I'm a reporter on the Des Moines Air Blast. I'm broke and I'm in a hurry to get back home with a big scoop. You let me ride and the office'll fix it up with you. See?"

"Well," said the conductor, "I guess that'll do all right. The road feels friendly toward the Air Blast. In fact, the editor is in the back coach. Come along and I'll introduce you. If he says you're all right, it goes."

Jack was knocked all in a heap at the turn things had taken, but he had nothing to do but to follow the conductor. They halted in front of a man in the coach, and the conductor said: "Mr. Smithe, this is Mr. Rogers. He says he's a reporter on your paper, and wants the office to pay for his transportation when he gets to Des Moines."

"How do you do, Mr. Rogers?" said the editor pleasantly, extending his hand. "Glad to see you. Sit down here with me." The conductor didn't wait for any more, but went off.

"Well, this is nice of you," said Jack, too astonished and embarrassed to talk straight. "Of course, I'm not on your paper, but I'm broke and yanked to the conductor, hoping to get a job and square it up later."

"Oh, that's all right, my boy," said the other. "Neither am I on the paper, I'm only riding on the editor's pass."—San Francisco Bulletin.

The Doctor Wondered.
Dr. Dunning, editor of The Congressionalist, was once visiting some friends upon the walls of whose dining room hung specimens of the youthful industry and piety of the children of the family, two samplers worked in worsted, one a motto calculated to cheer the heart in the hours of death. "The Lord Will Provide," the other a lifelike representation of man's best friend, the dog, both framed and hung conspicuously opposite the doctor.

For breakfast there was sausage. Dr. Dunning looked at the motto, "The Lord Will Provide," looked at the lifelike dog and looked at his sausage. Again his glance wandered over the three. Then he turned to his hostess impulsively. "There's nothing to that, is there?" he asked.

CONDITION OF HOPS

GREAT IMPROVEMENT WITHIN THE LAST TWO MONTHS.

The Oregon Hopgrowers' Association Still Gives Some Evidence of Activity.

A Portland special says: Growing hops have wonderfully improved along the entire Pacific slope during the past two months, and their condition is now first-class. The quality will greatly depend upon the amount of spraying from this time on. Washington growers have begun spraying already. Owing to the improved conditions, orders for contracts have been canceled by some of the dealers, and other contracts are being made for 10 cents. The London market, however, is somewhat slothful, according to a recent dispatch, which says:

"Very few hops have been sold during the last two months. There is practically no stir in the market. Rather severe reports of fly on plantations have done little for prices. There is a lot of hops unsold, and we do not expect any new features until the new crop is ready. During the last fortnight hops have improved rapidly."

The Oregon Hopgrowers' Association has sent out circulars bidding for Eastern business, but dealers say that this will cut practically no figure in the market. The Association cannot control, at the most, they claim, 10 per cent of the growers.

Need of Spraying.
From now until the crop matures is the critical period for growers. The quantity is assured, but the quality will depend upon the attention paid to spraying. In the latter respect there is no time to lose.

Growers who have not done so should begin and continue the work until all danger of vermin is past. Judicious care in this respect means the difference of several cents profit upon each pound, and in the aggregate several thousand dollars. Washington dealers have been taught the lesson through bitter experience, which caused them to begin spraying a week ago. Owing to their careful method, it is very seldom that Washington has hops of a poor quality, and Yakima hops especially have made a reputation that always finds a ready sale at the best market prices.

Under the rapidly improved conditions it is certain that the quantity in Oregon, Washington and California will be as large as last year.

Association Circular.
A prominent member of the Hopgrowers' Association admits that the plan to limit production by destroying acreage is a complete failure, but says that the Association hopes to do something towards getting Eastern business, or, in other words, selling Oregon hops directly to the brewers. For that purpose they have sent out the following circular:

"The Oregon Hopgrowers' Association is desirous of furnishing your supplier of Pacific Coast hops for the coming season. This Association is composed of growers exclusively, and its object is to improve the quality so as to meet the requirements of the consumers and obtain prices that will cover the cost of production. Our membership includes the most careful growers and those who produce the choicest lots of Oregon hops."

"We suggest that we supply your demand for Oregon hops on a basis of from 9 to 15 cents per pound, according to conditions. F. O. B. cars here, samples to be submitted and deliveries guaranteed to be as per sample."

"Dealers are now offering to contract with growers at 9½ cents and make advances. We know of no reason why we should not sell to you as cheap as the growers sell to dealers; nor can we see any reason why you should not pay us as much as you would to any local dealer."

"We think there are a good many reasons why we are entitled to a consideration in filling your orders. We have the hops to sell, and on the prosperity of the farmers depends, largely, the prosperity of the manufacturers and their employees."

"We do not expect speculative prices for our hops, but we do hope to receive a reasonable compensation for our labor and expenses."

"We invite correspondence, and shall be pleased to receive any suggestions you may have to offer. Any business entrusted to us will receive careful and prompt attention."

"Yours very truly,
"JAMES WINSTANLEY,
"Agent Oregon Hopgrowers' Association."

MEETING CALLED

Hop Growers Will Consider Offer Recently Made of 15 Cents Per Pound.
As a result of the proposition recently made by H. J. Ottenheimer for Lillenthal Bros., to the hop growers of Oregon, a considerable interest has been aroused. Pres. M. L. Jones, of the O. H. G. A. has received an additional communication from Mr. Ottenheimer, and this with a call to hop growers,

"Mr. M. L. Jones, President O. H. G. A., Salem, Ore.
"DEAR SIR:—Referring to my letter of June 20th, and supplemental thereto, I desire to say that in case the offer made therein is accepted by growers representing 75 per cent of the acreage devoted to hops in California, Oregon and Washington, and the selling thereof left to us, our guarantee of 15 cents per pound to the grower would be covered by a bond to that effect, and the money advanced for harvesting would also be considered as a further security for the guarantee. Very sincerely,
"H. J. OTTENHEIMER,
"For Lillenthal Bros."

"A proposition has been made by Lillenthal Bros., per H. J. Ottenheimer to finance the picking of the 1900 hop crop, and to guarantee the growers 15 cents per pound for all good hops, provided a reduction is made of 25 per cent of the output for the states of California, Washington and Oregon.
"We, the undersigned, request all hop growers of the state of Oregon to meet at Salem at 11 a. m., on Saturday, July 14th, to consider this matter, or any other question of interest that will have a tendency to secure reasonable profits. THE FOURTH AT SUBLIMITY.

The People of that Town Observe the Day. Carey Martin Makes a Hit.
The celebration at Sublimity on the Fourth of July was a great success. In the morning a heavy rain poured down but at 9 o'clock the weather cleared up, and the farmers from all around met on the picnic grounds. The picnic ground was marked by a 100-foot flag pole from which floated the Stars and stripes.
A grand big dinner was served on the grounds, after which the time-honored customs of the day was observed.

Professor Fred Hirsch, the popular teacher of the Sublimity public school, read the Declaration of Independence. After a reading of the Declaration, Mr. Joseph Ditter introduced Hon. Carey Martin, of Salem, the orator of the day. Mr. Martin delivered an extremely good oration appropriate to the occasion. When he took from his pocket a copy of the Declaration of Independence and explained it with great ability, cheer after cheer went up from the assembled people. There is no doubt that Mr. Martin won at once the admiration of the Sublimity people and made many friends there. "The best oration I ever heard on the Fourth of July," was a common remark.

A big hop in the bawery at night concluded the festivities of the day, which altogether was a grand success.
