SUICIDE OF A COURTESAN

PAULINE PHILLIPS SWALLOWS CARBOLIC ACID WITH FATAL RESULTS.

Despondency and Mental Derangement the Cause. Woman Was Recently Released From the Asylum.

Pauline Phillips, an occupant of a house of ill-fame at 142 Ferry street committed suicide Thursday afternoon by drinking carbolic acid.

The poison was taken while the other occupants of the house were at supper in another room, about 5:30 p. m.

Dr. Shaw and Robertson were called in, but nothing could be done to save the woman's life.

The cause of the rash deed was undoubtedly despondency and mental derangement. The woman had been very dissipated for some time. About two months ago she smashed a plate glass window on Commercial street while crazed by liquor. She was then committed to the asylum, but was released after six weeks treatment. She has been very despondent since, and has threatened to take her own life, which threat she has carried out.

The woman's age was about 24 years. Her maiden name was Emma Reiner, but she had been married to one Jas. McDoggett and afterward divorced. It is said that her parents reside in Denver.

She had told her companions that she had a daughter eight years of age, who is probably with her grandparents. The body was taken to the undertaking establishment of Rigdon & Clough, and at 10 o'clock this morning Coroner D. F. Lane held an inquest with the following jury: J. H. Lunn, A. F. McAttee, McCarty, A. S. Slippy, Jacob Leidinger and J. M. Long. The verdict was in accordance with the facts above stated.

Madame McGinnis, in whose establishment the unfortunate woman ended her life, acting for "the fraternity" made all arrangements to give the poor girl a decent funeral.

Services will be held at the Rigdon & Clough undertaking parlors on Court street at 3 p. m. Saturday and burial will take place in Odd Fellows' cemetery.

BUSINESS WOUND UP

Grand Lodges. Appoint Committees. Pass Resolutions and Go Home.

The grand lodges of the A. O. U. W. and D. of H. before final adjournment Thursday wound up all business before them. Among the matters acted upon were the following:

The Workmen awarded the contract for printing the official paper of the order to Frank Davey, who has successfully conducted it for the past year.

Frank Davey was also presented with a gold watch chain and Mrs. Davey with a set of pearl handled silver knives and forks, in appreciation of their efforts to make the convention a success.

The following standing committees were appointed by the Grand Master Workman to serve during the next year: Finance—F. M. Colin, of Industry; A. W. Allen, of Uppchurch; W. H. Reader, of Fidelity, all of Portland. Jurisprudence—W. M. Colvig, of Jacksonville; Geo. H. Durham and J. W. Paddock, of Portland. Grievances and Appeals—R. F. Robinson, of Portland; J. W. Hamaker, of Klamath Falls; Wm. Grant, of La Grande. Board of Arbitration—D. M. C. Gault, J. M. Dixon, A. J. Brigham. Grand Medical Examiner—Dr. David Walker, of Portland.

The D. of H. raised the salary of the Grand Recorder from $25 to $50 per month. Supreme Representatives D. C. Herpin, Ed. Weirlein and S. A. McFadden were appointed alternates to the Supreme Lodge.

The following standing committees were appointed by the Grand Chief of Honor:

Law—Mrs. Mary A. Hare, Hillsboro; Mrs. Georgiana Smith, Hood River; Mrs. Martha M. Farrell, Portland. Finance—Mrs. Mary Randall, Portland; Mrs. B. Verlein, Portland; Mrs. Mary Drew, Portland.

Grievances and Appeals—Mrs. Mamie W. Briggs, Arlington; Mrs. Maggie Houston, Junction City; Mrs. Carrie Holman, Salem.

State of the Order—Mrs. Kate J. Young, Portland; Mrs. Julia A. Gault, McMinville; Mrs. Anna R. Beeley, McMinville.

Medical Examiner—Dr. N. L. Lee, Junction City.

The usual resolutions were passed by both lodges, thanking everyone who had come within forty rods of having anything to do with the success of the whole affair. The members have gone home with pleasant recollections of their stay in the Capital City.

QUEUES CUT OFF.

Salem China Boys Appear With Hair Clipped Short.

Considerable comment has been aroused by the fact that a number of small Chinese boys, belonging to the Chinese colony here, have had their hair clipped short all over their heads, dispensing with their queues.

It has been surmised that it was an indication that their parents meant to raise the boys "alike samnee Melikan man;" to cut them loose from Chinese traditions and try to make Americans of them.

Inquiry of the Celestials, however, does not bring out this idea. It seems that in the case of small boys, the queue has no significance; that in China they are not required to wear queues until twelve years of age. It is a great deal of trouble to properly care for the pig tails, to thoroughly clean and do them up every morning. Further the kids are subject to a great deal of annoyance by having their queues pulled by young representatives of the race that is so strenuously exemplifying the doctrine of brotherly love all over the world just now.

So the clippers were run over the heads of these young heathens, as a labor-saving and pain-saving device. The boys in question are three of Geo Sun's and three of Han Lee's. The latter attend the Presbyterian Sunday school quite regularly, but the former not much like.

THE OREGON HOP GROWERS

ARE ADVISED TO CLOSE WITH LILIENTHAL BROS. OFFER.

Legal Opinion on Validity of Proposal Contract. Address is issued by President Jones.

The officer of the O. H. G. A. are making every effort to bring about some definite action touching the much discussed offer of Lilienthal Bros.

In reply to inquiries as to the legality of the proposed contract, Mr. W. W. Cotton, of the law firm of Cotton, Teal & Miner, Portland, writes to Jas. Winstanley, secretary of the O. H. G. A. in part as follows:

"It is certainly true that Messrs. Lilienthal Bros. could agree with Mr. Jones, for example, to pay him 15 cents a pound for all the hops raised by him on a given piece of ground, and it might also be provided that in consideration of such purchase, Jones should not pick the hops upon another piece of ground, and that Lilienthal Bros. should have the right, if they so desire, of so far destroying the vines as to prevent such such hops from being picked.

"Such a contract could undoubtedly be made by Lilienthal Bros. with every individual grower in the states of Oregon, Washington and California, and I feel sure that if Lilienthal Bros. or any individual grower should undertake to avoid any one of the particular contracts, the fact that Lilienthal Bros. were able to secure similar contracts from all of the other growers would not constitute any manner of defense.

"When, however, you get all the growers of Oregon, Washington and California into one contract and spread the whole transaction at large in one instrument, and I think that there is danger that some court might hold that such a contract was an unlawful restraint of trade. I do not think, however, that there would be a very serious objection if the contract can be made. If as the result of the Lilienthals' backing, we can get the growers to agree to curtail their production 25 per cent, then whether Lilienthal Bros. ultimately take the hops or not, the grower is certainly placed in a better position as a result of the universal curtailing of crops than he otherwise would have been. That much good would be accomplished in any event. Hops would have to be quite a little higher than 15 cents before the grower would back out, and Lilienthal's would get part of the hops in any event, and many more than they would under ordinary circumstances."

President Jones of the Oregon Hop Growers Association has issued an address to the hop growers which is given below in full.

To the Hop Growers of the State of Oregon:

QUESTIONS.—A proposition has been made guaranteeing us fifteen cents per pound for all hops of good quality, provided that we pick only three fourths of them. The parties making this proposition offer to advance five cents per pound for picking purposes which shall be security for the guarantee and also to put up a sufficient bond that they will carry out the proposition, provided that it is accepted by the growers.

By the terms of this offer it is permitted the grower to receive the highest price obtainable should the hops still advance beyond the fifteen cents. Certainly this offer is made by this firm of capitalists and hop dealers because they expect that if it is carried out it will be profitable to them. But the point to be considered by us is whether it will be profitable to the hop growers or the most profitable policy they can adopt with the present outlook.

We do not expect that the world's harvest of hops for 1900 will be nearly so large as the crop of 1899. In any event the demand for hops, always limited to one special use, may not, even this year, be commensurate to the supply of hops now indicated by the present growth of vines. We therefore recommend to your consideration the importance of a thorough organization and of so handling the marketing of the product as not to destroy a possibility or probability of getting remunerative prices. We have seen a normal supply of hops may be forced upon a normal demand so as to practically destroy values. We therefore think it worth while to take up this offer and consider its probable effect upon the grower's profits.

Let us suppose that we pick four bales of hops amounting in round numbers to eight hundred pounds. The cost of picking eight hundred pounds at five cents per pound is forty dollars. Some contracts are now being recorded at from eight to ten cents. Eight hundred pounds at nine cents amounts to seventy-two dollars, and, deducting picking expenses, leaves the grower thirty-two dollars.

Supposing that a considerable percentage of the hops were contracted for we are safe in the conclusion, judging from the past, that the hop market would be so manipulated as to depreciate values to such an extent that the dealers would reject a considerable percentage of his contracts and buy in the hops at a much lower price. We have the opportunity of protecting the industry on this coast from such a disaster. We are offered the powerful assistance of ample funds and great experience. Will we accept? Until accepted by the growers the Association will be at liberty to consider any better offer that may be made by any other firm or pool of hop dealers.

Yours truly,

figure. Now if we only pick three bales of the hops where we grow four, we would naturally pick the best and the effect of leaving twenty-five per cent of the poorest unpicked would be very materially to improve the quality of those picked so that the grower would stand to gain in quality to the value of the reduction in acreage. This three-fourths amounting to six hundred pounds, even if we did not receive more than fifteen cents per pound would amount to ninety dollars. The cost of picking three bales is thirty dollars leaving the grower sixty dollars for three bales as against thirty-two dollars for four bales—nearly double.

The gain per acre to the grower for hops yielding one thousand pounds per acre would be thirty-five dollars. For hops yielding fifteen hundred pounds per acre, the grower getting fifteen cents for three-fourths of them shows a gain of over fifty dollars per acre above the probable price of nine cents per pound, for the entire growth. To the growers of the state this would mean more than half a million dollars to the advantage of the hop farmers.

Quite a number of conservative growers of many years experience, after carefully considering the proposed reduction of acreage, conclude that there is a much greater probability of getting fifteen cents per pound, or more, by reducing the output and accepting the offer of harvesting expenses than there would be of getting the contract price, provided all the hops were contracted at this time at nine or ten cents per pound on usual terms of hop contracts.

We think farther that the proposition amounts to a demonstration of the efficacy of organization and co-operation on the part of the growers. The time for the acceptance of this proposition is limited to August 10, 1900. We commend it to your careful consideration, believing that you will wisely conclude it is to your interest and that of your neighbor hop growers to accept its terms.

The individual grower would have the support of his organization and the entire strength of the Oregon Hop Growers' Association would be available to protect the interests of the growers and enforce the terms stipulated in the contract. If growers representing seventy-five per cent of the acreage accept this offer there would be no doubt of the faithful performance of the contract on the part of the firm making the proposition. The five cents advance and the bond are ample security to the grower.

We would also be relieved from the necessity of making dealers picking contracts which always demanded a large bonus and compel early sales whatever may be the condition of the market of the individual grower. We are inclined and believe it to be true, that the growers are willing to pay prices for hops that will give growers reasonable profits, yet our methods have been such as to force our products on the market at less than cost.

It is conceded by all that the proposed reduction would have the desired effect of increasing the price. But it is objected that the farmers will not and can not organize to protect their interests and further that it is simply a question of "the survival of the fittest." The statement is also made that the more hops are raised the more difficult it is to effect sales and larger commissions can be collected by the curbstone hop broker which often amounts to more than twenty-five per cent of the grower's receipts. With such a policy the dealer can survive and the grower is at the mercy of the public majority of growers out of the business leaving the hop industry entirely in the hands of the syndicate growers and syndicate dealers.

We have the opportunity of protecting the industry on this coast from such a disaster. We are offered the powerful assistance of ample funds and great experience. Will we accept? Until accepted by the growers the Association will be at liberty to consider any better offer that may be made by any other firm or pool of hop dealers.

Yours truly,
