A Minister's Mistake
A city minister was recently handed a notice to be read from his pulpit. Accompanying it was a clipping from a newspaper bearing upon the matter. The clergyman started to read the extract and found that it began: "Take Kempe Balsam, the best Cough Cure." This was hardly what he had expected and after a moment's hesitation, he turned over and found on the other side the matter intended for the reading.

Costs That Last a Century.
To wear your grandfather's coat would not seem much of an honor, but to John Chinaman it is the greatest felicity. Not only is the common looking, shapely blue blouse of his ancestor prized because it is his ancestor's, but because of its intrinsic value.
The clothing usually worn by the Chinese is of the purest silk and cost more where from $100 to $250 a suit.

As a nation the Chinese object to wearing clothing of any other kind, and centuries of experiment have taught them how best to make up the costly caterpillar thread into the most durable form. On this account the Chinese dress, though of purer material, has more of the shrewdness usually associated with silk, a peculiarity which has resulted in the erroneous ideas as to their composition. All the garments are made in China and are only exported for the personal use of Celestials in foreign countries.

Owing to their cost, however, they are only purchased at long intervals, each garment being of so durable a character that they are handed down to the third and even the fourth generation. Wear appears to rather improve them than otherwise, with the result that the coat of the father or grandfather often has more intrinsic value than the newer and less worn articles.

The Walls Ran Down.
The Irishman who went up in the hotel lift without knowing what it was did not recover easily from the surprise. He relates the story in this way:
"I went to the hotel, and says I, 'Is Mister Smith in?'"

"'Yes,' said the man with the sober cap. 'Will you step in?'"

"So I steps into the closet, and all of a sudden he pulls the rope, and—its the truth I'm telling you—the walls of the building began running down to the cellar."

"Och, mother!" says I. "What'll become of Bridget and the children when they're left alone?"

"Says the so-ber cap man: 'Be aisy, sort. They'll be all right when you come down.'"

"Come down, is it?" says I. "And it is no closet at all, but a bathhouse balloon, that you got me in!"

"And wid that the walls stood stock still, and he opened the door, and there I was wid the roof just over my head!
And, begorra, that's what saved me from going up to the heavens intirely!"

—Irish Independent.

Dahlia For Food.
It is an interesting fact that when the dahlia was introduced into Europe it was not as a flower that it was valued, but as a vegetable. The plant is said to be really akin to the potato, and it was thought that it would prove an important addition to our food resources. The single variety seems to have been imported first, the Marchioness of Bute having introduced it about 100 years ago. It came to us from Madrid, the Spaniards having it in believed, found it first in Mexico, and it was introduced into France as well as England.

A few daring adventurers appear to have made trial of it as an edible root, but it is never an easy matter to popularize a new article of food, and the tuber of the dahlia did not take on. If it had done so, the probability is that we should never have troubled much about its cultivation as a flower. We never do grow things for fruit and flowers, too, and if we had sacks of dahlia tubers in Covent Garden we should have had no dahlia about us at the Crystal Palace.—London Correspondence.

"He That Any Good Would Win"

Should have good health. Pure, rich blood is the first requisite. Hood's Sarsahealth, has helped many a man to success, besides giving strength and courage to women who, before taking it, could not even see any good in life to win.

J. M. Wallace's Birthday.
President J. M. Wallace of the Salem Water Co., Monday quietly celebrated his 72nd birthday anniversary. He has seen over fifty years of business life and has recovered from his recent prostrawalk and will go driving some day this week, and a little later he expects to join other health seekers at Boswell Springs.

$100 Reward, $100.
The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer one Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

DANDRUFF CAUSED BY A GERM.
A New Discovery That Kills the Germ and Prevents Itself.

Pretty nearly all the hair preparations for dandruff, have some merit in allaying itching of the scalp, and in being a fairly good dressing for the hair, but there is only one that recognizes what causes dandruff, falling hair, and baldness, and that destroys that cause, a little germ—and that is Newbro's Herpicide.
This germ eats its way into the scalp, down to the hair root, where it saps that vitality, causing dandruff as it dies up the scalp into little white scales.
Unless it is destroyed there is no permanent stopping of falling hair and cure of dandruff and baldness. Newbro's Herpicide kills the germ. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect."

Where To Find It.
Willson's Shaving Parlors carry a stock of Newbro's Herpicide, the new and infallible cure for dandruff and falling hair, advertised in another column of this paper. 8-3-1m

How a Lion Charges.
A lion's first signs of anger are as follows: Its tail rapidly twists from side to side, the bottom slightly raising and the black tassel at the end beating the air; it lowers its head more than usual and growls, a low note showing its teeth. Then its voice becomes louder, it roars, shows its teeth and lowers its ears, the movements of the tail increasing all the time.

At the time of charging—that is, at the height of its anger—the tail rises in the air until it is almost vertical, the black tassel continues to move, the ears are flattened completely, and the animal comes toward you at a slow trotthen at a gallop, and finally springs forward with open mouth and extended claws.

Sometimes it shows these various symptoms without charging, restrained by prudence, but it never charges without showing them. When the tail rises, the hunter can bring his rifle to the shoulder and await his opportunity.

In hunting, a man who is on his guard is worth four.

A charge is extremely dangerous, almost always fatal when unexpected, either because of the dense vegetation or other causes, but if you see the animal getting ready flight is useless. Stand your ground. The only thing to do is to keep cool and trust in your weapon. If you have no confidence in yourself it is prudent to avoid measuring your strength against these animals.

Bread For Horses.
A delivery wagon of one of the big bread baking factories stopped in front of an up town livery and boarding stable, and two men at once unloaded barrels of bread and carried them into the stable. The bread looked good and was good. There were all sorts and kinds of loaves in the barrels—"homemade," "rye," "Vienna," "potato," "graham" and "cottage."

The curiosity of a man who saw the bread being delivered to the stable was aroused, and he ventured to ask the proprietor of the stable what it meant.

"There's nothing remarkable about it," said the proprietor with a laugh.
"I simply buy it for horse feed. We grind the bread up and mix it with other feed, and it makes first class food for horses. It is stale bread and costs us 40 cents a barrel, and there are 50 or 60 loaves to the barrel, so you see it comes pretty cheap. Some of the bread is only a day old and is good enough for any man to eat, but the bread factories cannot sell it. What you see here are returned loaves from the groceries."—New York Journal.

The Illusion.
"What beautiful peaches!" said an old lady as she stopped at a stall in the market and admired a basket of the choice fruit. They were covered with a pink gauze and looked very tempting indeed.

The old lady bought the peaches and took them home. The next day she appeared again at the stall and showed the stall keeper a small piece of pink veiling.

"Do you keep that kind of veiling for sale?" she asked.

The stall keeper told her that he did not.

"Well," she said, "when I took those peaches home they were small and sour and green, and I thought if I could get some of that veiling that made them look so pretty and plump in the basket I'd wear it myself. If it would improve me as much as it did the peaches, people would think I'd found the elixir of youth."—London
