It is the know how that does the business. Just as the steamer was preparing to leave the Newport Dock Sunday bringing the excursionists from the seaside, a couple of boys whose names were not learned took a header into the bay. They had been standing with the crowd on the edge of the dock, when the larger one, a good sized boy lost his balance. Clinging wildly for support, he reeled a little before standing by and both went overboard with an immense splash. They were fished out unharmed except for a wetting.

HOP GROWERS' PICNIC

BUTTEVILLE ENTERTAINS A LARGE DELEGATION OF FARMERS

Ten Subjects Discussed—Price of 35c Per Box Agreed Upon as a Fair Rate For This Season

The Hop Growers' Picnic held at Butteville, Or., August 11, 1900, was well attended. Representative growers were present from the following hop-growing sections:

Aurora, Butteville, Barlow, Brooks, Bridgeport, Champeog, Canby, Cornelius, Dundee, Fairfield, Gervais, Graeme, Hubbard, Handy, Laurel, Macksburg, Monitor, Middleton, McKee, Newberg, Oswego, St. Paul, Sherwood, Tualatin, Tigardville, Wheatland, North Salem, LaFayette, etc. Many matters relative to the hop industry were thoroughly discussed, among them the following:

1. The comparative benefits of Pole, Trellis and Twine system.
2. Culture, and cost of Growing Hops in Oregon.
3. Picking, weighing vs. measuring Hops.
4. Handling Hops from field to store-room.
5. Proper method of curing hops.
6. Use and abuse of chemicals in bleaching hops.
7. The kinds of hops preferred by Dealers.
8. Benefits to be derived from limiting production.
9. Sketch of the Hop Growers' Fire Relief association.
10. The price to be paid for picking next crop.

Question No. 1. It was conceded that poles were cheapest method of growing hops that trellis produced more even color, that twining cost most, but would produce finest quality.

2. Best to cultivate deep with plow, about twice each way, then cultivate shallow, quit cultivating early, produce a bright hop, do not mature, this tends to increase lice. Cost about 2 cents for growing about 5 cents for harvesting expenses, this estimate does not include interest on plant, land, etc.

3. It seems to be the general opinion that weighing hops and paying pickers by weight would ultimately be the correct method. Very few will, however, change this season.

4. Do not expose picked hops unnecessarily, pick clean, pay for hops in box, or sack, do not allow anyone to sit on them, do not pile sacks two or three deep in piles, do not keep over night in sacks, put on the kiln floor as soon as you have enough to cover the floor the proper depth (18 or 20 inches) lay loose and even, dry with from 135 to 140 degrees, use sulphur, but no other chemicals, ought to dry in 16 hours, let them thoroughly cool, then remove to the store room.

5. After flooring is laid, start fire in stoves having previously swept stove and pipes, start sulphur in pans on platform inside of kilns, keep proper heat, burn about 1/2 lb sulphur per box of hops if green color, if ripe use less sulphur, hops must not be stirred they will usually dry through, and be ready to come off in 15 or 16 hours—must not remove until dry—yet must not remain after being dry—experience necessary.

6. No chemical should be used excepting sulphur, indeed the best Oregon hops are not bleached at all, but are sun dried and greenish.

7. Ripe, clean picked, free from mould or insect pests, unbroken of a bright color.

8. Low prices caused by overproduction, limit supply and increase prices. But the trouble seemed to be that too many large yards were being planted.

9. The Hop Growers Fire Relief Assn. was organized 11 years ago. During that time it has cost members $3 per $1000, insurance for 1 year. It is legally organized and doing business under the special act of the last legislature. It is amply able to pay all losses that may occur. The only association of its kind.

10. This question provoked much discussion—some wishing to fix the price lower than 35c per box, finally a ballot was taken and thereby decided in favor of paying 35c per box. The action of the growers ought to be commended, in spite of the fact that nearly all lost heavily on their last year's crop, they are not unwilling to pay a figure to enable the picker to earn from $1.50 to $2.50 per day.

By motion July made and seconded it was decided to have another Hop Growers' Picnic about one year hence. Music was furnished for the occasion by the Aurora Independent Band. Everyone had a good time.

The Hop Growers' Fire Relief Association deserves much praise for their bringing the growers together. The picnic was really in the nature of a hop growers institute. Each grower has some good ideas. By this interchange of thought the progressive farmer will adopt the best methods in use and thereby save himself much unnecessary experiment.

Taken all in all a more sociable, good natured, crowd of people would be very hard to find and a long life and many more like occasions is earnestly hoped for the Oregon Hop Grower.

The Chicago Record asks editorially "Are we at war with China?" Certainly not. We are fighting the Chinese.

Mark Hanna shudders every time Millionaire Clark writes a $100,000 check for the democratic campaign committee.

The fact that Salem is the greatest hop centre in the world is no proof that her people drink more than their share of beer.

With one breath the political managers are predicting victory and with the next warning their followers against overconfidence.

England has ordered 50,000 pounds of ham of one Chicago packer for "Tommy Atkins" in the Orient. America can feed the world.

Altgeld, the pardoner of anarchists, is speaking for Bryan.—Patty Exchange. Yes, and Arch Anarchist, Herr Most, supports McKinley. Take your choice.

On one occasion Henry Ward Beecher said: "We have a country. We have a cause. We have a people. Let all good men pray that God will give us a government."

Now every farmer who holds his wool, hops or wheat for a raise in the price is pointed out as a member of a trust.

There ought to be a law against such unholly interference with trade.

Bryan should establish a rigid censorship over his thinkers, or there will be trouble before November.—Patty Exchange. Yes, he should get Mark Hanna to cork him up. Damn a man who thinks, anyhow.

Richard Croker, that gentleman of aesthetic tendencies, has paid $2,000 for a bull pup. The salary list of Tammany had aggregate $40,000,000 a year. One needn't be like the old lady who read the dictionary through without seeing the "connection."

Out of 14 German newspapers in Iowa that supported McKinley in 1896, 13 are now supporting Bryan. The German paper at Lincoln, the home of Mr. Bryan, with a circulation of 120,000 copies, is supporting Bryan this year, while it supported McKinley in 1896.

The Ogden Reporter on proving the following may justly claim to be the discoverer of the "missing link": "There is a carpenter at Logan, Iowa, whose name is Groves. He has peculiar family relations in that this son-in-law is a cousin of President McKinley, and his wife, Mrs. Groves, is a cousin of the Democratic nominee, William Jennings Bryan. It is a strange coincidence. McKinley and Bryan perhaps do not know of the connecting link which almost makes them related."

Lock and chain stitch in one machine is what you get with the Standard Rotary, and the change is made in less than 60 seconds, all ready for business. Then, again, the Standard's nowadays take six stitches to one treadle motion—six—think of that against 3 and 4 in most other machines.

What does that mean? It means that you can sew six yards on a Standard where you can only sew 4 on the other.

It means that you do in eight hours what would take ten or twelve on the other machine; means that there's less noise, less backache, too, for it runs easier. More sunshine and joy all around, for it's a pleasure to run a machine that's perfect.

Bigger bobbins, too. Holds 100 yards of No. 80 cotton, more than any other bobbin on the market.

Read this, come and see, the machine and the work, if you don't want it, no harm done.

Plenty of needles and parts for all machines.
