It isn't the material that goes into your repaired watch that results in a perfect job.

It is the know how that does the business. Any bungler can buy the fine kinds of material that I use in repairing; but skill is the most valuable material that can be used in watch repairing and the bungler can't buy it. I sell my skill for what it is worth, and it will cost you less than buying at a lower price.

ANOTHER NOMITE

GLAD TO GET BACK TO CIVILIZATION WITH A WHOLE SKIN

Brings Reports of Some of the Salem People. None of Them are Getting Rich

Geo. W. Gosser of West Salem returned home yesterday from Nome. Mr. Gosser says that he saw many things of interest since he left Salem and that he is well pleased with his trip.

On the way up they were ship wrecked upon the rocks for 48 hours and the vessel discharged 407 tons of cargo before they were freed from their situation. While the vessel was aground they explored an island that was near by and found a monstrous Mastodon with ribs 14 feet in length by 2½ feet wide and the skull measured 3½ feet across. They also found a hut or dugout with five skeletons in it and as there were a number of doctors on board they examined them and found that they were white men. In the dug out they found many curious things that these men had gathered up and he says from the looks of things they have been there some time. He says that he was in Nome City 12 days and did not do any work, but looked over that part of the country. While they were there forty people "including three women" came to their tent begging something to eat.

Mr. Gosser says that there 10,000 people there dead broke and could not come home if the fare was 25 cents. The fare from Nome to Seattle is now advanced to $75 and no first-class boats are bringing out people as are in the government service. But many are coming out in any old tub they can get. Mr. Gosser saw Mrs. Fiester the night before he left and says she is not making any money at all. Also saw Mrs. Nichols and she is running the Home Hospital, but as there is not much sickness they are living on prospects.

Taylor and Lockley are still carrying mail. Prof. Hall was robbed of everything he had "even his clothes."

He says that considerable robbery is going on and that they chloroform their victims there rob them of everything they have. He left Nome on July 4th, and arrived in Seattle 14 days later.

Mr. Gosser is an interesting talker and a man of close observation. He says no words can describe that country as it really is. He is well known here having been employed a number of years with Folke & Bishop and his many friends are glad to see him home.

FRUIT DRYING SEASON.

The Large Orchards South of Salem Getting Ready to Cure Their Crop.

The orchards about Liberty have half a crop of Italian prunes, and further south at Rosedale they have a full crop. All fruit growers have a full crop of the petite variety, and the result is there will be an abundance of work the next few weeks picking and drying all this fruit. Prices of dried fruit are keeping up remarkably well in view of the fact that California has one of the largest crops ever known. The growers in the hills south of Salem will begin harvesting and drying within a week, and all feel encouraged over their prospects.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer one Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

DEAD DRUGS

If you stop to think about it you'll understand that drugs, like all things else, grow old, and in the process of doing so, lose their vitality—their life. You don't want dead drugs in your prescriptions—if you did you could not get them from us. We don't deal in that kind. Ours are the kind physicians like put in their prescriptions—the live kind. All the physician's skill and druggist's accuracy may be brought to naught by dead drugs. Dead drugs are really dead stock. Dead stock means dull trade. Our trade wouldn't let us accumulate dead stock if we tried—and we are not trying. If you want live drugs come to the live store.

We buy direct from manufacturers, thus insuring purity, and having a large and constantly increasing stock, both retail and jobbing, enables us to keep our stock moving, thus insuring freshness.

SOME HOP INFORMATION

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE GIVES SOME STATISTICS.

Cost of Production From Time of Planting Until Baled—Other News.

The department of agriculture gives the following information, which we print for the benefit of our readers:

The price of hops on the Pacific coast has ranged all the way from 5 cents to $1.10 per pound, which amply illustrates the extreme variability and uncertainty on the business side of hop culture.

At 12 cents or less per pound, hop production involves a loss. At from 15 to 20 cents, the grower can make a fair living and may get something ahead. It is the wide fluctuations in price that have caused so many failures in the business of hop culture. The price of $1.10 per pound in 1882 proved a calamity to the legitimate grower. It led many to embark in the business with dreams of sudden wealth. Disaster to nearly all was the natural result.

For planting an acre 2,000 roots will cost $30, and the expense of planting them is $2.

The high wire trellis will cost from $80 to $100 per acre, and the cotton twine for support of hops $3 per acre annually.

On an average it takes more than 2½ pounds of green hops to make one of dry, and the cost of picking a pound of dry hops is about 3 cents.

A kiln sufficient to cure the crop from 50 acres, with everything complete, will cost from $3,500 to $4,000, and for drying, about three-fourths of a cord of willow wood, worth from $4 to $6 per cord, is required for every 1,000 pounds of dry hops.

Of crude sulphur, costing 2 cents a pound, 30 or 40 pounds must be used for every 1,000 pounds of dry hops.

Each bale requires five yards of 24-ounce, 44-inch baling cloth, which cost from 8 to 10 cents per yard. Sewing twine costs 32 cents per pound.

Cost of shipment, when the product is marketed in England, is about $1.50 per hundredweight.

The following tables show the estimated hop production of the Pacific coast states for 10 years, and of the United States for 11 years, ending with 1899. These tables are made up principally of figures published in the agricultural and trade journals, whose estimates are believed to be most nearly correct. The figures for 1899, inclusive, appear in the year book of the department of agriculture for 1899. Wisconsin disappears from separate mention since the census, and in estimates no account appears to be taken of the production of any but the states herein prominent, as it is comparatively insignificant. All accounts of hops herein given are in bales of 180 pounds.

Orange Judd Farmer quotations on New York state hops:

Utica, Oneida Co., N. Y.—The general opinion among the growers is that the yield of hops will be below the average, but that the quality will be good. A hopeful feeling exists and the impression prevails that prices will be higher than for several seasons and ought to range from 15 to 20c. Many growers are inclined to hold for these figures.

Waterville, Oneida Co., N. Y.—The first hops sold of the '00 crop were five bales of the Shield's growth of Palmer Seedlings and the W. A. Cleveland growth of West Seedlings, the latter at 18c.

At New York there is a slightly increased inquiry for '99 hops, but orders are small. Prices are firm but unchanged and the supply is very tight. No important changes in crop conditions are reported.

New York city quotations are as follows: New York state and Pacific coast, crop of '99, ch 13@14c lb, prime 11½@12c, medium 8@10c, common 7@8c, crop of '98, 5@8c, olds 2@5c, German crop of '99, 35@40c.

Hop Notes. We are cultivating 70 acres of hops and hope we have the best of the line, and of the new post, the variegated cut worm, by many he mislabeled the grub and the army worm.—(W. J. Shinn, King County, Wn.)

Acres of hops in this part of th

country only half that of last year. Many yards have been plowed up and I think will not be replanted. Tops and vines of those cultivated are looking well and free from lice. Some kind of a grub worm is working all through this country and the worst ever known. It first attacked potatoes later other vegetation including hops. They are in the vines about one inch below the ground and if something cannot be done I fear they will destroy most of the hops here.—(C. King, Co., Wash.)

The Marion county hop crop is progressing rapidly and a number of yards will start to picking about September 1st but it will be a week later before the general picking will begin. A JOURNAL representative visited several yards and among them was the Holmes, Crosian, and W. H. Francis yards situated on the Slough road south of this city.

These yards are in the best of condition and the hops are as fine as can be found in the valley. With good weather they will have more hops than last year and the quality much better.

To Raise Hop Prices.

The Oregon Hopgrower's Association has adopted a new plan for raising the price of hops. President M. L. Jones says Manager Winstanley has orders to contract for hops of the 1900 crop at 11 cents and furnish picking-money, the hops to be subject to inspection as to quality. While the association officers do not advise growers to contract their hops, they feel certain the prices will be better, and make this offer in order that those growers who must contract may get 11 cents instead of 10, which latter price is the one prevailing at present.

This new move on the part of the association means that the managers have negotiated with capitalists for picking money, and propose to control prices by themselves offering the growers what they think the hops are worth. While the managers do not say so in that many words, it is evident that they expect the hop buyers to get them one better by raising the price above 11 cents.

To Cleanse the System.

Effectually yet gently, when constive or bilious, to permanently overcome habitual constipation, to awaken the kidneys and liver to a healthy activity, without irritating or weakening them, to dispe headaches, colds, or fevers, use Syrup of Figs, made by the California Fig Syrup Co.
