SEEKS SUPPORT

For the British Conquest of South Africa

Morley and Roseberry Encourage the Boers to Keep Up their Resistance Against England.

By Associated Press to the Journal. LONDON, Sept. 24.-Lord Salisbury's Kingdom in anticipation of the parliamentary general elections emphasizes the necessity that the Queen's government should be supported by a strong parliamentary majority "as the only means of convincing the inhabitants of the conquered South African territories that there is no hope of diverting the government from their policy by persistance or agitation." After remarking phoned as follows . that "all the recent troubles in South Africa have been due to a shift of parliamentary opinion at a critical moment.' the Prime minister goes on to say,

"It will depend upon the disposition interval is to elapse before their full osition as a British colony is attained. The brilliant success of Lord Roberts' army must not blind us to the imperfecarmor-imperfections which, but for the wide-spread damage. war, might have remained unnoticed, It will be the urgent duty of parliament and the government to remove these defects, a duty which certainly could not be discharged by a ministry dependent upon a broken party." John Morley, Liberal member for Montroseburghs, in his manifesto declares that his opinion has not changed that everything might have been attained in South Africa without war. "In English in South Africa has been undone, and not even in Ireland has the the difficult race problem been more miserably bandled.'

The Earl of Rosebery, issuing a manifesto in the form of a letter to the Lib eral candidate says: "In the present situation of the world, would vote for almost any strong administration; but the present government is strong only in votes. In other respects it is the weakest government I can recollect."

After enumerating the government's 'failures at home and abroad," Lord Rosebery criticises the conduct of the South African War, declaring that it has Exposed England to humiliation unparalleled in our history since the Amercan War,"

He declares that cothing can be hoped for from the government, either in the way of argent domestic reforms or the reform of the War office.

SHORTHAND WRITING.

Accuracy Is of Much More Impor tance Than Speed.

"Speed is by no means the most necessary thing in shorthand writing," explained an experienced stenogra pher, "but with some teachers it is made the great consideration, often at the expense of everything else. The big thing in shorthand is legibility. for there are many who can write fast enough, but who are unable to tell what it means after it has grown cold. I have been a stenographer, depending entirely on it for my living, for 25 years. During that time I have, of course, picked up some knowledge on the subject. I have been the stenographer for two cabinet officers, paper men of the country, died this four assistant secretaries and three or four senators. Incidentally I have worked for a year as the private secretary of one of the big bank presidents in New York city.

"All of this experience has proven one thing very conclusively, and that is that there is no necessity for any stenographer who does amanuensis work to write over 120 words a min cessity to write over 100 words a min ute. Indeed, I know of at least 25 stenographers who are drawing the largest kind of salaries as private sec retaries who have assured me that they have never been required to average as much as 50 words. Under these circumstances it seems strange that some teachers of stenography will excite pupils to write 150 to 200 words per minute and endeavor to make them believe that such a railroad speed is a necessity. Such a practice does actual injury, for it discourages many from eyen learning a moderate speed "There have been instances where it may have been necessary for stenog captiers to be able to write over 200 and more words a minute, and there is a legend fanging about the senate chamber that General Hawley, for 10 or 12 minutes in a speech once spoke 225 words a minute. The average speed of senators in speeches does not reach 110 words and in dictating letters rarely reaches 100 words."-Washington Star.

Brakes. Hand brakes, to assist in the stopping of trains, were introduced as early as 1849. Twenty years later the airbrake was patented, which enabled power from the locomotive to be transmitted through hose simultaneously to the brakes of all the cars in a trainpaign in the East, left for Chicago to a wonderful invention.
