SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

Held at Turner for the Red Hills District Schools.

On the 17th inst., delegates from the various Sunday schools assembled at the Presbyterian church at Turner, and at 10 o'clock a. m. the Red Hills District convention was in session.

The president, Mr. Chas. Townsend, called the convention to order and all joined in singing "Praise God From Whom Blessings Flow."

This was followed by the invocation by Rev. McComb, of Turner.

The address of welcome was given also by Mr. McComb, and was responded to by Mrs. Charles Townsend, on "The Needs of the Sunday School," on which a lively discussion followed, in which the proper preparation of teachers was spoken of as a very important requirement.

The discussion on primary work was led by Mrs. E. T. Judd, and participated in by Messrs. Reid, Winans, Dr. Holt, of Portland, and others. It was generally conceded that the instruction of the very young in the truths of the Bible was of paramount importance.

Lunch was served by the good ladies of Turner in the church parlors, in such abundance that it would have required the "twelve baskets" to have contained what was left.

Devotional exercises inaugurated the afternoon session.

Prof Cummings led the discussion on how to conduct teachers meetings and was followed by Dr. Holt, Mr. Damon and others, emphasizing the importance of teachers meeting together to plan for their work and of learning what to teach and what not to teach.

Master Walter Brookhart, a member of Prof. Cummings' class, read a paper on the manner of conducting Sunday school in the Reform school. He said that some came to that institution who had never heard a religious song. Many of the boys appreciate the efforts of those who teach them the way of life.

"Nearer My God to Thee" was sung in the sign language by a young lady from the Deaf Mute school.

The grace of her movements approached the sublime, as she moved in accord with the music of that Grand old hymn.

The Home Department work was presented by Rev. W. R. Winans, who showed up the importance and efficiency of this department of the Sunday school work.

D. A. Waters emphasized the importance of home training.

After the usual devotional exercises, the Rev. W. S. Holt, of Portland, was introduced, who gave a very interesting address on normal training, emphasizing the importance of a thorough training of teachers for their work in the Sunday school, and illustrating the mode of instruction in normal training.

Rev. L. H. Peterson was next introduced, who addressed the convention on the evil resulting from the liquor traffic, showing the importance of our children receiving proper instruction respecting this kindred vice.

The convention was regarded as a great success by all present, and the ladies of Turner were highly complimented on their generous liberality in making provisions for the comfort of the delegates.

THE CLASS IN MUSROOMS

The mushroom editor was telephoned out of bed this morning to decide on a variety found by Mr. J. D. Sutherland, of the State treasurer's office. It was found to be the "Agericus Campestris," and he was told to go ahead and bat them with impunity, seasoned with a little hot butter.

This forenoon J. J. Davis brought in a dozen Ananias of the Frostina and Phaloides variety. They were duly converted into an editor's lunch on the office stove. Mr. Davis also captured an ugly customer nearly six inches across. He has a blotched scurfous surface on top, a rich brown orange underneath, with a blooded stem two inches in diameter with a big bulb at the bottom. There is one about a quarter as big growing out of the big one's base. The whole thing has a bloated pterotic-looking Mark-Hanna appearance and smells rotten as politics in Denmark that Shakespeare tells about. It is a fine sample of the poison variety and is worth looking at. Dr. Hall will please give the class the scientific name, which can't begin to be as ugly as the thing itself.

SOME NEW STRAWBERRIES

Now is the Accepted Time to Put out Plants for a Crop for Next Spring.

I have not had time to prepare an advertisement of my new varieties of strawberries, but as this is the best time, for the next few weeks, to put out new plants, I want to state briefly the result of my tests for several years past. Any good soil will do that has been cultivated to root or drill crops the past year. The only danger is that the soil is too rich, or too wet. Sand or gravel are all the better for most varieties. But good cultivation of poor soil is better than a rich heavy wet soil poorly cultivated.

TENNESSEE. This kind I have tried now for six years and it is a splendid all-around berry. It is very showy, the greatest bearer, and best table berry if large quantities are wanted.

GOVERNOR HOARD. This is the great Wisconsin berry, and to my mind, is the most perfect shortcake berry ever grown. It is bright red, medium size, good flavor, not very sour and not very sweet. The flesh is like butter, so smooth and even in fiber, that it makes the finest pulp for shortcake, when mashed, of any berry that grows.

M'KINLEY. This great Ohio berry produced two crops this year for me. The second crop is light but an ordinary bed will give a family a good mess once a week from the middle of September to the middle of November. After the first crop was off I mowed the patch and put on water and in two weeks it had grown a new foliage and was soon in bloom. It is a big yielder but not high quality.

IDEAL and RUBY. These varieties are acclimated and are proven to be the greatest canning berries that have been brought to Oregon—the Ideal excelling the famous Hood River berry on the test of commercial canning made at Salem recently in color, firmness and flavor by 10 percent. The Ruby is a larger berry than the Ideal but dark red, acid and solid, a perfect heart shaped berry. When canned its color is a dark ruby or wine-red. These two varieties are going to be planted exclusively for canning use. If put up in small tins for the high-class trade like the Pullman car buffets, and ocean steamers that want something very fine, there is no berry that can equal them and they will lay the foundation for a great industry at Salem in the opinion of cannersmen and jobbers who have given attention to these matters.

My Spanish berry, the CERVERA, has proven to be the most luscious strawberry for fresh use that has ever been brought to my attention and many persons who sampled it fresh from my grounds all declared they had never tried anything so delicious in the berry line. It is a large clumsy-looking berry, but gets nearly black when dead ripe. It has a high fruit flavor, a fine texture, and some of them make several mouthsful.

DOWNING'S PRIDE.—This berry has had a hard struggle to become acclimated in my testing bed, and might do better in other soils. But last summer it threw the first fine crop of berries. The yield was light but the quality was very fine. It is a beautiful-shaped berry, conical and beautifully colored, dark red and shading into light pink and orange. The flavor is delicious. The berry has a gloss as if varnished and is a perfect beauty.

DOUBLE-CROPPER.—This is a fine producer and most like a wild strawberry in flavor of anything I have found. But it is not a not a double-cropper, unless treated as I treated the McKinley when almost any kind will throw a second crop. It is on the principle of nearly all plants, if cut down in the middle of the summer they will make a heroic effort to reproduce their species and thus comes the second crop of anything.

MARGUERITE and DUMAURIER. These are two imports from France and the latter has proven very thrifty. Of the former I have not secured a dozen plants. It may do very much better in the future, but the plants were nearly dead when they arrived from Paris. The berries on both are fine flavored and very sweet, the French like the Spaniards going in for sweetness and flavor, while the popular American varieties must have a certain amount of acidity.

PRICE.—Plants of Tennessee, Gov. Hoard and McKinley, kinds that I have plenty of I shall be glad to supply at $1 per hundred. If sent by mail enclose 25c for postage. No Ideal or Ruby for sale. As I only engage in this business as an amateur and enthusiast I do not care to fill orders for less than 25 cents. I have a variety of the Bubach that is extra late. I have some of these and the other kinds named above, except the Marguerite, to sell at $2 per hundred. If by mail enclose postage same as above. Send for descriptive circular.

GIRLHOOD, WOMANHOOD AND MOTHERHOOD

Are Renovated, Regulated and Restored by the Pelvic Catarrh Remedy Per-u-na.

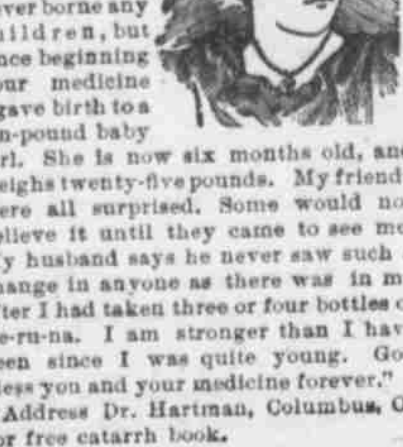

Mrs. E. C. Everly.

Mrs. E. C. Everly, 605 Diamond Street, Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I feel well, never felt better; thanks for your attention and Per-u-na. I will be glad to do all I can in the way of advancing the sale of your valuable medicine. I do think Per-u-na the best medicine I have tried at any time. Since I began taking Per-u-na we have never been without it. Read what an elderly woman says—a woman who has passed through all the phases, crises and experiences of girlhood, womanhood and motherhood: 'I really believe that every woman in the world ought to have Per-u-na on hand all the time; for, if she gets tired, Per-u-na refreshes her; if she gets nervous, it soothes her; if dependent, it cheers and invigorates. It is a panacea for all irregularities of her monthly periods. It is a constant friend to the expectant mother; a never-failing stand-by to the nursing mother, both for herself and for her child, and finally when the change of life comes on, no medicine on earth is of equal efficacy to the woman in this critical period. Surely Per-u-na is the woman's friend."

That catarrh has any relation to barrenness in women is surprising to many. It is one of the mysteries of catarrh. This insidious disease penetrates to every organ of the body. Mrs. L. M. Griffith, of Cambridge, Neb., says: "Your medicine did me a wonderful amount of good. It cured me of barrenness. I am thirty years old and had never borne any children, but since beginning your medicine I gave birth to a ten-pound baby girl. She is now six months old, and weighs twenty-five pounds. My friends were all surprised. Some would not believe it until they came to see me. My husband says he never saw such a change in anyone as there was in me after I had taken three or four bottles of Per-u-na. I am stronger than I have been since I was quite young. God bless you and your medicine forever."

Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, O. for free catarrh book.

Abraham Lincoln

wisely said

"You can fool some of the people all of the time, and all of the people some of the time, but you can't fool all of the people all of the time." And Uncle Abe was supposed to know a thing or two, and what was true in his day is equally so now. This is especially pertinent to the drug business. The "fooling" industry should have no place in the drug business—and it hasn't any in ours. We believe in fair, open treatment of every individual customer. SOME SECOND-HAND MACHINES

I have some good bargains in second hand machines now, have sent out several in the last few days too. There remains a Howe at $4, a good old Davis vertical feed, at $4, a splendid Crown for $10, a New Home in excellent condition, and a Wheeler & Wilson at $20. These machines have all been put in repair and will do good work; some of the better ones almost as good as new. I have sold all of my second hand organs and pianos, and several customers got big snaps in them. I may have another one or two in very shortly.

There are still some big bargains remaining in new pianos and organs. It's a whole lot better to buy at the prices we are naming than to pay rent for some old piano. Come and see for yourself. There's a saving of from 25 to 33 1-3 per cent. All on standard makes of pianos and organs too. No "stencil" goods in the house.

VEGETABLES.

Why do we respect some vegetables and despise others? The bean is a graceful, coqueting, engaging vine, but you never can put beans into poetry or into the highest kind of prose. There is no dignity in the bean.

Corn—which in my garden grows longside the bean, and so far as I can see, with no affectation of superiority—is, however, the child of song. It raves in all literature. But mix it with beans, and its high tone is gone. Succotash is vulgar; it is the bean in the vulgar culture or any flavor of high society among vegetables.

Then there is the cucumber, like so many people, good for nothing when it is ripe, and the wildness has gone out of it. How inferior to the melon, which grows upon a similar vine! The cucumber is a sort of low comedian in a company where the melon is a minor gentleman.

The lettuce is to me a most interesting study. Lettuce is like conversation; it must be fresh and crisp, so sparkling that you scarcely notice the bitter in it. Lettuce, like most talkers, though, is apt to run rapidly to seed.

Blessed is that sort which comes to a head, and so remains—like a few people I know—growing more solid and satisfactory and tender and whiter at the center.

Lettuce, like conversation, requires a good deal of oil, to avoid friction and keep the company smooth; a pinch of little salt, a dash of pepper, mustard and vinegar, but so mixed that you will notice no sharp contrasts, and a trifle of sugar.

I feel that I am in the best society when I am with lettuce. It is in the most select vegetable circle.—Charles Dudley Warner in "My Summer in a Garden."

FOLDED TRANSFERS.

They increase a Conductor's Work and Are Trying to His Temper.

"Some people have no sympathy for street car conductors," said one of their number after he had had a peculiarly trying time in making change and giving and collecting transfers, says the New York Times.

"Now," continued the conductor, "there is one little matter that would save us lots of trouble if the people would only bear it in mind, and that is the way they hand in their transfers.

"Some men and a few women know enough to hand us the little strips of paper just as they receive them—that is, spread out in such a way that we can glance at them, see that they are all right and then place them with the package already collected. The majority of people don't do this, and as a rule the women are the worst of the lot."

"When a woman gets a transfer, she folds it up into as small a space as possible and then stows it away in his purse. When the time comes to collect this from her she fishes the wad of paper out of the purse, hands it to the conductor and sits back in her seat content with what she has done.

"The conductor has to unfold this piece of paper to see if it is really the proper transfer. This takes time, and when there are a dozen women of the car all doing the same thing the poor conductor has more than he can do to keep his temper. Men as a rule don't fold their transfers, but content themselves with shoving the slips into their pockets and then producing a crumpled piece of paper when it is called for, tossing it to the conductor, who has to smooth it into shape.

"The same people who never think of handing in a railroad or theater ticket in the same way."

Stowaway Brides.

Stowaway brides are not as rare at the large office as one would believe. It is quite easy for a girl to slip aboard an outgoing steamer and stow herself in one of the bunks below decks, lying quietly there until well at sea. A case happened a little while ago, the girl coming to meet her fiancé here. As both were poor, the former resorted to this perilous expedient to accomplish the desired end. One would think that such a heroic endeavor would deserve a better reward. But on arriving, having been worked very hard on shipboard for passage, worn and worried almost to distraction, the maiden was so changed by her ordeal of love that when her betrothed met her he refused to marry her. A few days later, while being taken back to the ship for deportation, she leaped into the bay. Rescued gallantly, she lingered a prisoner in the charity hospital, but died some weeks later, literally of a broken heart.—Alma's Magazine.

Why Franklin Did Not Write It.

"It has always been a curious puzzle why Franklin, the man of ripe age, of commanding distinction and of approved literary skill, was not selected to write the Declaration instead of Thomas Jefferson, then only 33 years old and comparatively unknown," says John Glimmer Speed in The Saturday Evening Post. "It could not be that Franklin was passed by because he had done everything in his power to avert the war and reconcile the differences between the colonies and the mother country. For all wise men in the colonies did all that honor permitted in that direction until the die was cast. No; it was not a fear of Franklin's earnestness in the cause of the colonies. It was probably the fear of Franklin's humor.

"He was not only the greatest man of his time, but he was one of the greatest humorists of any time. And so his associates were possibly afraid that he would put a joke in the Declaration and passed him by and selected the lank young Virginian with the free-kick face.

"As it was, Franklin did have his joke, for when the members of congress were about to sign the Declaration Hancock, whose earnestness is expressed in the bold signature which comes first, set in his own earnest way: 'We must be unanimous. There must be no pulling different ways. We must all hang together; we shall be pretty sure to hang separately.'"

Halted.

"Does that young woman hail from Boston?"

"Yes," answered the youth thoughtfully; "that expresses the idea precisely. She hails from Boston. I was never before overtaken by such a heavy downfall of intellectual ice."—Washington Star.
