VAUGHN CONFESSES

That He Brained Lulu Jones in the Basement of the School.

BOUND OVER UNDER $5000 BOND—PLAYING THE INSANITY DODGE

Story of His Capture and Interview By Sheriff Durbin—Had No Accomplice and Reveals No Cause for His Dastardly Deed.

THE JOURNAL's full report Tuesday evening of the murderous attack on Lulu Jones, a 13 year old school girl at Jefferson, left little to tell. Since then her assailant, Clyde Vaughn, the janitor who called her into the basement and struck her down with an axe, has been apprehended and confessed the crime.

Surgeons Dress The Wounds.
The surgeons who examined Miss Jones found the right side of the forehead crushed in. They lifted the broken skull from its pressure on the brain and removed one piece.

The sufferer became partly conscious by six o'clock Tuesday evening and recognized relatives and acquaintances and answer yes and no but could tell nothing of the crime.

At midnight she was resting well and at six o'clock this morning she was quite comfortable and hopes of her recovery were strongly entertained by all. Following surgeons attended Miss Jones: Hawk of Jefferson, Byrd of Salem and Wallace of Albany.

Prisoner Examined by Sheriff Durbin.
Sheriff Frank Durbin visited Vaughn in his cell at Jefferson and had a talk with him. The young fellow seemed to be in a stupor and paid no attention to the entrance of the officers, but when spoken to answered all questions asked him, without hesitation.

The first question Sheriff Durbin asked him was: "Are you the young fellow who killed, or attempted to kill, the girl in the basement?" Vaughn answered simply "Yes," without looking up. In answer to further questions, he said that he didn't know why he did it; that he was firing up the furnace when the thought struck him that he would call the girl down there and beat her to death; that something just took hold of him and impelled him to do it; that the girl did not go into the basement willingly, but he forced her to go in, and then saw the axe and picking it up struck her one blow. He said he did not intend to kill her, and did not know whether he had or not. He denied being in love with her or ever writing her any letters.

He did not seem to at all realize the enormity of the crime he had committed, and made no inquiries as to the condition of his victim.

Story of Vaughn's Capture.
After striking the girl Vaughn immediately left the school house and went to his home, where he told his mother that there was trouble over at the school house. He then started across the fields toward the river. A few moments later his father, Eli Vaughn, came to the house, and being told what the boy had said, started after him, but the latter disappeared among the willows and his father did not succeed in overtaking him. Then he seems to have wandered about all day.

Let's in the afternoon he was discovered by Frank Libby crossing a field on Libby's farm about two miles northeast of Jefferson, and going in the direction of the town. Libby started toward him and when within hailing distance called to him. Vaughn stopped at once and walked to meet Libby, who told him that he would have to go to Jefferson with him. Vaughn made no objections, but accompanied Libby to the house, where a horse was hitched up and drove into Jefferson, where he was turned over to Constable Blackwell.

Vaughn was bound over.
The examination of Vaughn was held before Justice S. T. Johnson, District Attorney Hart was present, and the prisoner waived his right to a preliminary examination and was bound over to the grand jury.

The people of Jefferson, while horrified at the crime of young Vaughn, conducted themselves with conservatism. A few hot-heads may have thought of violence, but the people generally had no intention of interfering with the course of the law.

The young man's parents were greatly shocked at the son's crime, and his father displayed a disposition to help the officers in their search in any way he could.

Jefferson people say that young Vaughn was of a rather peculiar disposition. He was a close student and faithfully performed his duties as janitor at the school building. But he made no friends and had no confidantes or companions. He never associated with any one. As soon as he had performed his duties he would go home, and never lingered to meet other young people.

On the morning of his crime he wrote a letter to the girl. This letter was rambling and unintelligible, having no meaning whatever of any kind.

The Prisoner Removed to Salem.
Clyde Vaughn has been bound over to appear the grand jury under $5000 bond and was sent to the county jail at Salem strongly ironed and in custody of Constable Blackwell and deputy W. L. Jones, brother of the girl he brained. They left Jefferson at 10:30 this forenoon, and arrived at Salem at 1:30, when Vaughn was lodged in the "murderer's cell" in the county jail. He came along without any resistance, but was sulky and would not talk.

The condition of Lulu Jones was not so favorable at noon. A portion of the brain was removed by the surgeons with the one they took out Tuesday. Today in dressing the wound more of the brain had to be taken away. The local attending physician considers her case hopeless.

Feeling at Jefferson continues very bitter against the boy. While at school he was an exceptionally bright scholar but of morose and unsocial disposition. There is a general belief on the part of those who saw him in the Justice Court that he is undertaking the crazy dodge.

Special sale of Sheetings at Holverson's, tomorrow and Friday.

SIDNEY STAGE DISCONTINUED

The daily stage running out of Salem to Sidney and supplying the three post-offices of Liberty, Rosedale and Sidney has been temporarily discontinued, and those offices have been without a mail service this week.

This is one of the beauties of the system of star route contracting, which lets all the little routes to non-resident eastern contractors, who depend on subletting to local people at starvation figures pocketing the difference themselves.

This Sidney route contract was let to a Kentucky sharper who took it so low that he could find no one here to carry the route at the figure he was getting. He finally let it to Chas. Whitcomb at an advance, agreeing to pay Whitcomb the difference. Whitcomb carried out his part of the contract, but received no remittance from the Kentucky party, and after writing several times and getting no satisfaction, he discontinued the service.

A SEVERE FALL.

Mrs. Sarah Durbin, Mother of Sheriff Durbin, Receives Injuries.

Mrs. Sarah Durbin, who has been visiting at the home of her son, Sheriff Frank Durbin, sustained a severe fall last night about 11 o'clock while suffering from a congestive chill, and bruised her head quite severely against the wall. This morning Mrs. Durbin was suffering considerably and her condition was far from satisfactory. Sheriff Frank Durbin, who was at Jefferson on the Vaughn case, came down on the overland this morning to help care for his mother.

Mrs. Durbin was sleeping with her little grand-daughter, and arose in the night and left the room and the little girl thinks she was gone an hour or more, before Mrs. Frank Durbin, hearing some one meaning, instituted a search and discovered the old lady lying unconscious in the hall. She has no recollection of occurrence of the night. It seems that she is a sufferer from some heart trouble, which caused this attack.

THE SILENT CASHIER

Is what the busy business man terms the latest improved Cash Register. As is sometimes said of this marvelous piece of mechanism, it cannot talk or play the piano, but to the busy man it can and does things of vastly more importance. It is an infallible cashier—a rare thing by the way—a seven day wonder. We press the button turn the crank, and it "does the rest" namely: registers the kind and amount of your purchase, prints, dates and issues a ticket containing these facts, and the further information that the holder thereof is entitled to a rebate of 5 per cent, on each purchase, and this is a point careful buyers do not and others should not lose sight of. We were the first to introduce this system in Salem, but all good things have imitators, and which we are told is the sincerest form of flattery. However this may be, we lead and are content to have others follow. But when you want the best in the drug line, always go the reliable, the progressive, the up-to-date, the leading druggist of

WOOLEN MILLS AND POLITICS

Thomas B. Kay, Jr., Refutes a Campaign Item.

The story that the Salem Woolen Mills had $75,000 stock made up and on hand, the sale of which depended on McKinley's election, started from an innocent remark of Mayor Bishop of the Salem Woolen Mill Store who said in the presence of a number of friends that if McKinley was re-elected their salesmen could take orders for $75,000 worth of goods in 48 hours.

Mayor Bishop is an enthusiastic Republican but what he said was not intended for publication, and if it had been published as he said it would have simply conveyed the expression of his individual opinion. But it was twisted around for political effect so that it completely misrepresented him and the Woolen Mills and caused much comment and criticism and the Mayor not a little distress.

Following card appears to correct the statement of a local paper:

SALEM, Oregon, Oct. 19, 1900.

I noticed an article in your paper of the 18th to the effect that the Salem Woolen Mills had $75,000 worth of products on hand for which they could find no market. There is no foundation for such a statement, as we have not $75,000 worth of goods nor any other amount on hand for which we have no market. In fact, our greatest trouble is in turning out enough goods to fill our orders, although we are running night and day.

Trus. Kay Woolen Mills Co., T. B. Kay, Pres. and Mgr.

It should be added that the Salem Woolen Mills have orders to keep them busy into next year and are continually pressed for orders that are asked to be filled, some of them ahead of time.

The Woolen Mills have Democrats on the board of directors, among the stockholders, officials and employees. T. B. Kay, Jr., is a strong Republican and prides himself on having made a fairly good record as the head of the institution. He takes especial pride in keeping down the stock of manufactured goods and probably never has $10,000 worth in the house at one time. The mills only turn out about $15,000 to $20,000 a month. He says there is absolutely no politics in their business management.

"I KNOW PERUNA IS THE BEST CATARRH CURE ON EARTH."

Rough Rider Sergeant Buck Taylor.

Sergeant Buck Taylor, one of the famous Rough Riders, is a personal friend of Governor Roosevelt, of New York. He accompanied Governor Roosevelt on his great stamping tour through upper New York state. He was promoted through gallantry in the field during the late war.

The Sergeant has the following to say of Peruna: "I think there is no better medicine on earth than Peruna, for catarrh. It has cured me. It would take a volume to tell you all the good it has done me. Peruna is the best, for I have tried nearly all of them."

Respectfully, Buck F. Taylor.
