Charming Kate Michelena.
Another prima donna of the Grand company, of whom much is expected is Miss Kate Michelena, a charming and talented lady, who is by no means unknown to this country. Miss Michelena has a beautiful soprano voice of wide range, which has been cultivated for operatic work by three years of hard study in Milan, Italy. She has been a member of the Hess Opera company touring this country and has grand experience as a member of a grand opera company in Mexico. She has also traveled with the "Bostonians," "Emma Abbott" and many other world-famous operatic organizations. She will make her appearance in this city in that great operatic success, "El Capitán," which opera has been the talk of the country for the past five years. Miss Michelena is a dramatic soprano of high rank and has a voice that is seldom, if ever heard here. This great singer will be heard at the opening of the new Grand Opera House, Friday and Saturday, Nov. 30, and Dec. 1.

JOURNAL WEEKLY LONDON LETTER

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Perhaps the most significant proof of the growth of militarism and the military spirit in England is the proposal now made for instruction in military science in the University of Cambridge. The memorial in favor of this proposal is signed by thirteen heads of colleges, by ten professors, and other academic people of position. A "syndicate" of University dons is to be proposed to deal with the subject and report to the University early in the ensuing year.

The proposed new departure has aroused sharp criticism, which is limited to the merits of the new proposition but extends to the general work of the universities themselves. One of the critics of the most radical stamp says: "For centuries the English Universities have been contemptible institutions. Their funds have been wasted and the two of them put together have turned out less work than a second class German University, where the professor received about 200 pounds a year. Idle gorging fellows on the one hand, rich, idle schoolboys on the other—that was for generations the state of things at Oxford and Cambridge has testified by such witnesses as Gibbon and Adam Smith. Things are different now. I even today there are not learned institutions more barren than these two places. The really important books in science, philosophy, history do not come from Oxford and Cambridge, but from Paris, Leipzig, even from America. The chief products of Oxford and Cambridge seem to be prizes and baristers 'on the make,' who join the Eighty Club and air their Latin quotations at its dinners, and now instead of it awaking to the serious shortcomings of Cambridge, the authorities are found plunging the university into militarism and fomenting the war spirit that has such a hold on the country." The recent speech of Sir Robert Giffen at Manchester in regard to the number of people who speak English in Europe, has been supplemented by some interesting information gathered by that writer in the Times. It is stated that at the beginning of the present century about 21,000,000 people spoke the English tongue, about 31,000,000 spoke French, and rather over 30,000,000 spoke German. The estimate is, that this relative growth is almost sure to continue.—Sir Robert Giffen says that development of population has been most marked in the Anglo-American countries, and that, though the Russian and German advance was remarkable they showed nothing like it. In illustration of the rigid economy practiced among the poorer classes the Land of the Gael West Highland clergyman furnishes the following anecdote. A Crofter woman, who, to his own certain knowledge, had 150 pounds to her credit at the bank called upon him last week for the loan of three shillings, which she solemnly promised to repay in the middle of November on returning from her half-yearly visit to her banker. Three bright shillings were promptly handed to her, and her beaming countenance bore ample testimony to her inward satisfaction and gratitude. When taking her leave the aged dame looked the minister straight in the face, and, with a ring of pride in her voice said: "Ye dinna need to think, sir, that our house is altogether without silver. We have thrappence in the kist, but vera likely will be needing that for postage afore November is by!"

In a North Wales town the wife of a candidate was making a canvass of the district in favor of her husband. The wife of an elector told her that her husband would not vote for the Tory, because he was going to have a pair of trousers given him if he voted for the liberal candidate. The lady canvasser offered to give her a sovereign if she would name the person who had promised the trousers and she put the money down. Snatching up the gold pieces, the wily woman replied: "It's me and my husband shall have two pair now!"

Largest of Animals.
Mr. Beddard in his book on whales reminds readers that although transportation is apt to picture the giant reptiles of the Jurassic and Cretaceous periods as having exceeded in size all modern animals yet in fact there is no evidence that the earth has ever contained either on the land or in the sea creatures exceeding the whale in bulk. The mammoth was larger than the elephant, but the Ichthyosaurus could not match the whale for size, although with its terrible jaws it would doubtless have been the whale's master.

YASLINE NO GOOD FOR HAIR.
Dandruff Germ Thrives in It, as Well as in All Grease.

A well-known Chicago hair specialist invited the latter Ocean reporter to come to his office and see, under a microscope, how the germ that causes dandruff thrives in vaseline. The specialist said that all hair preparations containing grease, simply furnish food for the germs, and help to propagate them. The only way to cure dandruff is to destroy the germs, and the only hair preparation that will do that is Newbro's Herpicide. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect." Without dandruff no falling hair, no baldness. Ask for Herpicide. It is the only destroyer of the dandruff germ.

TO BE HELD AT WILLAMETTE

The grand charity ball, to be given on Thanksgiving eve by De Molay Commandery, Knights Templar, for the benefit of the Salem hospital, will be held at the Willamette hotel instead of the new store building in the McCormack block which is being prepared for Joseph Mayers & Sons.

It was found that there would be some drawbacks to the latter place. Being barely finished, it would be damp and redolent of fresh paint, and the heating and dressing room facilities would be inadequate.

In view of this the Landford Commandery (the use of the Willamette dining room, which was gratefully accepted, and no better place would be found in the city.

A large attendance from Portland is expected, and a brilliant affair is assured.

Nervous Prostration.
A Noted Boston Woman Describes its Symptoms and Terrors.—Two Severe Cases Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I am so nervous! no one ever suffered as I do! There isn't a well inch in my body. I honestly believe my lungs are diseased, my chest pains me so, but I have no cough. I am so weak at my stomach, and have indigestion terribly, and palpitation of the heart; am losing flesh; and this headache and backache nearly kills me, and yesterday I had hysterics. There is a weight in the lower part of my bowels, bearing down all the time, with pains in my groins and thighs—I can't sleep, walk, or sit, and blue—oh goodness! I am simply the most miserable of women."

This is a most vivid description of a woman suffering with nervous prostration, caused by inflammation or some other diseased condition of the womb.

No woman should allow herself to reach such a perfection of misery when there is no need of it. Read about Miss Williamson's case and how she was cured.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I was suffering such tortures from nervous prostration that life was a burden. I could not sleep at all, and was too weak to walk across the floor. My heart was affected so that often I could not lie down at all without almost suffocating. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it worked like magic. I feel that your medicine has been of inestimable benefit to me."

Holding His Job For Him.
"Of all the excuses I have ever heard from people for not paying their bills," said a collector for a prominent firm the other day, "I got the nearest today from a very wealthy man who always owes the house a bill. No matter whether the bill is for $10 or $100, he always pays $5. I have gone back the next week and got $5 more, and once I went back twice in one week, and he paid me $5 each time and seemed glad to see me. I got to know him pretty well, and the other day I asked him why he did not pay it all, as I knew he had the money."
"I don't know whether that was his reason or not, but I let the subject drop and am just going around there now for another $5."—Memphis Scimitar.
