THE ORNAMENTAL RATHBONE.

People down in Cuba must have gathered a strange impression from the conduct of one E. G. Rathbone, who had been sent there in the decent and useful capacity of director of posts. Rathbone seemed to regard himself not as an official of a Republic serving a department and subject to orders, but as a potentate with the one mission of swelling around after the fashion of a gobbler. Certainly he did not neglect to gobble, gobble, gobble.

During the 16 months that Rathbone was in power he sent in claims for the government to pay, and in all probability a few of these claims were correct. However, out of the mass the amount of $72,631 was rejected as not within the purview of the treasury. At the same time there was created the impression that Rathbone is a rascal who went to Cuba for all he could get out of it. Perhaps he thinks the government is stingy. There is no legitimate ground for this, but a man with the tastes of Rathbone is likely to be sensitive.

Among the items that Uncle Sam coldly marked "N. G." were the price of the Rathbone coachman's hat and the raincoat of the same important functionary. There were hundreds of dollars for harness, carriages, hostlers' wages, stable rent, and the bill for the coach and all its furnishings from the rosette on the coachman's best hat to the rubber tires which saved the Rathbone constitution from being jarred unduly. Did the Rathbone family desire new apparrel, scarfs, gloves, anything, the government was promptly asked to foot the bill, and in some cases did so before finding out that it was being swindled.

Probably there never has been a more brazen and long continued betrayal of trust. The difference between Rathbone and a vulgar thief seems to be that Rathbone makes a specialty of elegance and that the fellow with tastes less refined occasionally gets caught. There is no justice in permitting Rathbone to be at large while making an ado over the postal clerk who steals a letter.—Tacoma Ledger (Rep.)

TILMON FORD MAKES CORRECTIONS

The above named gentleman wishes THE JOURNAL to correct two items of a political nature that appeared among a column of personal gossip gathered by our Portland correspondent. He denies that he is a stockholder or has any interest or ownership in any Salem newspaper, or shapes its editorial or political policies or is responsible for any newspaper's management. He furthermore denies the soft impeachment that he is Mr. McBride's arch-enemy, or any man's arch-enemy, as he is a man of peace, and does not believe Mr. McBride ever said such a thing or anything like it.

NEWEST BOOKS FOR HOLIDAY BUYERS

Delightful Volumes Offered By Some of the Most Enterprising Publishers.

The Prodigal, by Mary Hallock Foote

This pretty holiday volume by a noted western author has much of the flavor of the best that's in Bret Harte, with all a woman's skill at managing situations ever so much better than a man. The story appeared in the Atlantic Monthly, last three numbers, and now comes out in book form with Illustrations by the author. The world is said to be engaged in saving the young man and this is a case, if you please, where the prodigal was worth saving. Houghton, Mifflin & Co., are the publishers of all the Mary Hallock Foote novels and stories, and they are all worth having and reading. Price of this last one is $1.25. Trade supplied at Salem, Oregon, by Patton Bros., booksellers.

Famous Pianists of Today and Yesterday

In "Famous Pianists" the author has followed the same general plan as in Great Composers and Famous Singers, two already famous works from his pen in the "Music Lovers Series" by L. C. Page & Co., publishers, Boston. In this volume ten greatest players are treated chronologically beginning with Muzio Clementi and ending with Teresa Carreno—pronounced Carrenyo. The volume is a beautiful one, with gilt top and etchings of the artists. The author is Henry C. Lahee and his comments are at once historical, biographical, critical and of high literary merit. The covers are in a mazy gold design, the print is large and the pages redolent with gossip and anecdote and illuminated with the soul of a music lover almost speak to the eye and heart from clear large type. It is a gem of book making. Trade supplied at Salem by Patton Bros., booksellers.

Prima Donnas And Soubrettes

This volume presents the heroines of the light opera and musical comedy in America by Lewis C. Strang, in appreciations of rare literary, merit and illustrated with etching, printed from beautiful type and in artistic bindings. This is the fourth of the Stage Lover's Series by L. C. Page & Co., Boston. It reads like a romance how many women came in a few years to be known to the whole nation from obscure vocalists in some country church choir.

Trade supplied at Salem, Ore., by Patton Bros., booksellers.

The Eagle's Heart by Hamlin Garland.

This western writer has endeared himself to the hearts of the mass of American people—perhaps not the highly educated but to the real composition of society. This story first appeared in the Saturday Evening Post and thrilled the readers of that paper with the account of saving a young man from jail, his determination to go out west and grow up with the cattle business, and his final great success. The volume is a beautiful specimen of bookmaker's art. Published by D. Appleton & Co., New York. Price $1.50. Trade supplied at Salem, Ore., by Patton Bros., Booksellers.

The Cocktail Book

It is also called a sideboard guide for gentlemen, and is a recipe book for preparing mixed drinks and care of wines "so that the qualities of a good dinner will not be marred by an injudicious disposition of the liquids." L. C. Page & Co. Boston. Price 50c. Trade supplied at Salem, Ore., by Patton Bros., booksellers.

For His Country.

Admirers of Marhall Saunders, author of Beautiful Joe, will rejoice at this pretty holiday volume of two short stories from her pen printed in the Cosy Corner Series of L. C. Page & Co., Boston, who are publishers of three other volumes of her writings. This volume is prettily illustrated. Price 50c. Trade supplied at Salem, Ore., by Patton Bros.

The Expatriates.

This is the first novel of Lillian Bell, a writer already well known for her clever short stories and essays. It is a romance of today, characterized by its unswerving patriotism, its bold and daring handling of striking events, and its brilliant descriptions. It is, without doubt, one of the most noted novels of the year. Harper Bros., New York. Price $1.50. Trade supplied at Salem by Patton Bros.

The Red Men of the Dusk

A Romance of the Days of Cromwell. By John Finnemore. With illustrations. 12mo, Cloth, ornamental, $1.50.

A remarkable novel of Puritans and exiled Cavaliers during the time of Cromwell. Many of the happenings are among the fastnesses of Wales (a new ground in recent fiction), and are of most exciting character.

With ample illustrations these 36 chapters teem with rapid life and an archaic translation into the time of the Puritans and Roundheads. This substantial volume will be a welcome addition to all home and school libraries where stirring boys and girls are frequenters. Handsomely printed by J. B. Lippincott Company, Philadelphia.

Trade supplied at Salem, Ore., by Patton Bros., Booksellers.

The Story of Dago.

Annie Fellows Johnston has written many entertaining children's books but few of them are as good as this late one of the "Cosy Corner Series." It is not only a good story, but teaches much of these very human quadrupeds. It is ludicrous and well illustrated. L. C. Page & Co., Boston. Salem trade supplied by Patton Bros.

Her Boston Experiences.

A Picture of modern society life at the Hub, by Marguerite Alston, and a well written size-up of Boston people and manners, by a brusque western girl who does not have to ask for information nor wait for an appropriate adjective. It is lively, true and interesting and just what everyone interested in the commonwealth capital wants to read. Price $1.25, L. C. Page & Co. Trade supplied at Salem by Patton Bros., Booksellers.

New Education Readers.

Book One is for beginners, for foundation work and practical application, while Book Two is intended for the development of vowels. Both are being introduced in the public schools for purposes of supplementary reading. They touch on subjects only adapted to the needs of small children. Am. Book Co., New York. 35 c. each. Trade supplied by Patton Bros., Salem, Oregon.

Commodore Paul Jones.

This book by Cyrus Townsend Brady is the latest of the "Great Commander" series of D. Appleton & Co., New York. It is a keen story of a great seaman, strategist and fighter of whom every American is proud, and should be in the hands of every young man who hopes some day to be in touch with the history of the world's greatest nation. Price $1.25. Send to the publishers or Patton Bros., Salem, Oregon.

Child Verse.

A dainty volume of pithy poems by the noted Catholic priest John B. Tabb, whose lines have so often appeared in the magazines of late. They range from grave to gay, but every one has a clear point, and is more than an empty rhyme. Small, Maynard & Co., Boston. Trade supplied at Salem by Patton Bros.

Urchins of the Sea.

In this handsome volume for children, is presented a series of illustrated rhymes that are of the same order in text and picture as the famous Brownie books, and while written chiefly for entertainment, carry with them not a little information about sub-marine life. Longman, Green & Co., New York. Trade supplied at Salem, Ore., by Patton Bros.

The Childhood of Ji-Shib.

This little volume of Indian and animal lore by Albert Ernest Jenks is handsomely printed and is illustrated in wide margins by sixty-four pen sketches pertinent to the text. It is published by the American Thresherman, of Madison, Wis. Price $1.00. Trade supplied at Salem, Ore., by Patton Bros., Booksellers.

King Kindness and Other Stories.

The eight stories have grown out of the work of the author in the public schools of Syracuse as an officer of the Bands of Mercy and of the society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. She felt that the principles of these organizations could be taught better by illustration than by precept; and as she could not find just the stories she wanted to use, she began to write stories herself, and tell them to the children.

C. W. Borden, publisher, Syracuse, N. Y. Price 50c. Sold at Salem by Patton Bros.

Writing in English.

Maxwell and Smith's language book has been arranged on lines which is approved by many intelligent teachers of English. It is designed for use in higher grammar classes, as well as high schools and is based on the principle of teaching from the whole to the parts. Entire compositions are taken up first, followed by paragraphs, then sentence constructions, and, finally, the smallest units of composition,—words.

The method of studying models of good composition is very prominent, and the character and large number of extracts from good authors gives a special interest and value to the book. We think that not only in theory, but in practice this book willl commend itself to teachers.

American Book Co, New York, 75c. Trade supplied at Salem, Ore., by Patton Bros., booksellers.

Madame Bohemia.

By Francis Neilson. Illustrated by Charlotte Harding. 12mo. With ornamental cover design, $1.50. A strong novel of New York Bohemian life by one to whom it is thoroughly familiar, its author having mingled in the scenes described in the book and having a thorough knowledge of the life. Sold by Patton Bros., the Salem booksellers.

A Georgian Bungalow

Young and old will be interested in this characteristic book by Frances Courtenay Baylor. It is a truly southern conception, and intended to give young people a good idea of that section. The illustrations are beautiful and the story vivacious. Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Boston. Price $1 Patton Bros., booksellers, Salem, will supply the trade.

New England Dinner.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—The annual dinner of the New England Society will be given tonight at Delmonico's, and a distinguished company will gather to be filled, body and soul, the one with viands left over by Luculius and missed by the Pilgrims when they landed in bleak New England, and the others with the good things that will surely be said. It hasn't occurred to any New England Society, so far, to have a meal prepared of the same style as those worthies of the old days sat down to with great thankfulness. The New England Society in the city of New York is the representative organization, so old and venerable that tonight's entertainment will be the 94th annual festival it has held. The splendid ball room will have 400 and more sons of New York and their guests within its ample bounds, and was decorated with American and British flags and the coat-of-arms of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut worked on large blue silk banners.

ACCIDENT BEFALLS A SALEM WOMAN

Mrs. T. F. Royal, of South Commercial street, wife of the Rev. T. F. Royal, the Methodist minister, met with a most distressing accident between 3 and 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon. While passing about the house she stumbled over a chair and fell to the floor in such a way as to fracture the right femur or thigh bone. Drs. Reynolds and Bradshaw were summoned and these two gentlemen made the sufferer as comfortable as possible. They successfully set the broken bone and Mrs. Royal is resting well. Mrs. Royal is seventy, but one of the best preserved and most active social and temperance workers in this city. Her hosts of friends will be sorry to learn of her mishap.
