Sporting Letter. NEW YORK, Jan. 17 .- The questions 'who is the hardest hitter in the ring,' 'who is the cleverest," and "who the quickest," are asked every day. In the selection of Jeffries, Corbett and McCoy, as Fitz has done, no one could have come closer to the facts. After sifting ont all of the big fellows who know how to send in a wallop, there can be no doubt that Jeffries is the hardest puncher of the bunch Peter Maher has long been looked upon as having a terrific punch up his sleeve and there is no doubt that this is true.

Sharkey is no mean chap when it comes to piling wallops into the other man, but neither of these men can land his right with the same force that the champion can put into his blows.

Jeffries is not only a hard hitter; he is a clean hitter. He is a very careful fighter and measures his blows well before he sends them in. In fact he is too careful and often loses a chance to land a blow owing to his carefulness. There is hardly any use of saying
