POPE'S NEPHEW

Who Has Been Fighting in South Africa.

COMING TO THE UNITED STATES

His Name Was Connected With the Bond Robbery of the Vatican.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—A dispatch to the Journal and Advertiser, from Rome, says: "Count Camillo Pecci, the nephew of the Pope, and whose brother has recently been serving with the Boers against the English in South Africa, is on his way to the United States accompanied by his wife.

His visit is for the purpose of invoking the assistance of President McKinley and of the United States government in obtaining compensation for the destruction by Cuban insurgents of his wife,s large sugar plantations and factories in Cuba during the war with the United States.

His unexpected departure from here served to revive rumors in in anticlerical circles, which associate his name with the recent mysterious robbery at the vatican. Only a public trial could set these rumors at rest but there seems no inclination of this being done as the papal authorities cannot prosecute without acknowledging the jurisdiction of the Italian courts within the precincts of the vatican, where the robbery was committed.

Most of the stolen bonds have been recovered. They were found in the possession of eminently respectable bankers in Northern Italy who had no notion that the bonds had been stolen.

The only reason for connecting the name of the count with the matter is that his extravagance is known to have been a source of much concern to his uncle, the pontiff.

IMPORTED GAME BIRDS ARRIVE

Two Dozen English Partridges Liberated in the Waldo Hills.

The Marion County Rod and Gun Club yesterday received its share of the English partridges recently imported by Oregon sportsmen, and the little beauties were liberated on the big Waldo ranch at Macleay. The Salem club joined with the clubs at Albany, Independence and Portland in the importation of a large number of these favorite game birds. They were secured at $6 per pair, but so many died on board ship that the price figures up nearly double that amount. These birds are smaller than a native partridge and longer than our quail, but favor the latter in there characteristics, and are a most handsome game bird. The members of the club sincerely hope these birds will not be killed by boys, or other sportmen, so as to give them a chance to multiply before the expiration of the law which protects them, in 1904. The local club of sportmen as well as the public, is to be congratulated upon the acquitition of these rare birds to our already large supply of such desirable game.

AT HETIC STORY

When his name was submitted to her for a visit to Windsor after his return from South Africa she stroked it through with her pen.

The news of the illness of her eldest child, Empress Frederick, added greatly to the distress and the fact that she was physically unable to visit the empress and see her before either died made her nervous and exciteable.

Later came the death of her second son, the Duke of Saxe-Coburg Gotha (Edinburg) which in a few weeks was followed by the death of her grandson, Prince Christian Victor, son of her daughter, Helena, wife of Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein.

The prospect of an indefinite prolongation of the war was a trial under which her health again began to sink in November last.

Her spirit remained undaunted and when it was reported that Kruger had said the war would claim her as one of its victims the queen declared:

"I may die, but Mr. Kruger won't kill me."

When she went to Balmoral, her highland home, her spirits revived under the influence of Gen. Roberts brilliant achievements in the South African war but the improvement was short.

Unfavorable war news and reports of the acute suffering of her dying daughter Empress Frederick, were affecting the queen severely.

She had fits of depression and crying. She referred constantly to the death of the Duke of Saxe Coburg Gotha and expressed a wish to see the Duchess.

The last time she drove outside the grounds of Osborne the villagers of East Cowes were astounded to hear the clear treble of the son of the Princes of Battenberg trilling out popular songs from the royal carriage.

The boy was singing to keep his grandmother awake, in obedience to her wishes. Now and again she dozed, wakening to tell the boy to continue his chant which to the initiated onlookers contained a world of pathos.

She suffered acutely from her eyes owing to her constant crying.

In her periods of mental activity she harped so incessantly upon the war that Colonial Secretary Chamberlain was commanded to go to Osborne to console her with the reassuring news. Mr. Chamberlain led the war party when the queen favored peace in South Africa.

It was not a wise thing, as it turned out, for her household to summon Chamberlain. His efforts to console the queen was fruitless and she abruptly closed the conference.

Subsequently Lord Roberts was directed to appear at Osborne. He reached there last Tuesday. He did not attempt to deceive the queen but frankly explained the difficulties which had to be overcome before the war in South Africa could be terminated. The interview lasted some time and it was the last time that the queeen displayed the wide knowledge and shrewd commonsense which played such an important part in her long reign.

At that time the condition had assumed the gravest complexion, but the Prince of Wales, in order to prevent public alarm or suspicion attended a dinner given to Lord Roberts and subsequently appeared at the theatre on Thursday night.

On Thursday the queen had a stroke of paralysis. Since then she has been in a comatose condition.

WOODBURN GIRL HABEAS CORPUS

Hearing For Release of Bertha Crader Before Boise

Boise Releases the Young Women Who Could Not Get Her Pay

Bertha Crader, a working girl of German descent, was sentenced by Justice Overton of Woodburn to 25 days in the county jail for taking articles of clothing from her employer, Allen Shaw. J. A. Jeffrey, the Salem criminal lawyer, was interested in her behalf and brought habeas corpus proceedings before Judge Boise at 10 a. m.

The Complaint Defective.

As set for in the petition for her release the complaint on which she was committed had this clause:

"The reason that the said Allen Shaw suspected the said Bertha Crader is that the said Bertha Crader was lately a domestic of the said Allen Shaw, and before quitting her employment as such domestic, was seen by himself in possession of certain articles of clothing belonging to the members of his family, and which the said Bertha Crader had partly destroyed and converted to her own use, contrary to the statute in such cases made and provided, and against the peace and dignity of the state of Oregon.

Attorney Jeffrey shows the complaint with this report:

That said pretended criminal complaint is fatally defective and totally void, in that it fails to state sufficient facts to constitute the crime of larceny attempted to be charged, or any crime against the State of Oregon or any one else.

That said criminal complaint is also further fatally defective and totally void in that it fails to state the owner of said goods which your said petitioner, Bertha Crader, is alleged to have stolen.

That said criminal complaint is nr ther fatally defective and totally void, in that it fails to allege that the said personal property which your said petitioner, Bertha Crader, is alleged to have stolen, had or has any value whatever.

That said criminal complaint is further fatally defective and totally void, for the reason that it does not attempt to charge any crime, but only states an alleged suspicion.

Bertha Crader's Statement.

A JOURNAL reporter called on Mrs. Bertha Crader at the county jail yesterday afternoon, when she stated that after working in the family of Allen Shaw for five weeks and receiving no remuneration, even after several requests, excepting the sum of 75 cents, she left, taking with her a few articles of clothing, more for spite than for any actual need. She is 24 years of age and has been doing housework since she was 16, her parents havidg died 16 years ago in Springfield, Ill. Mr. Shaw has been out of employment for some time and gave this as an excuse for not paying her for the work done. The family treated her kindly while there but there was considerable work to do, there being four children under nine years of age to care for. Ms. Crader is an honest-looking girl and seems to have been compelled to resort to harsh means and has got harsh treatment in securing her pay.

Trial of the Case.

Judge Boise heard the argument of counsel for the prisoner but before proceedings began a delegation of 7 W. C. T. U. ladies were gallantly ushered in by Sheriff Durbin and given seats within the bar.

Mr. Jeffrey in an apparently convincing manner received the law of the case. The State vs. Dorrett 4th Oregon requires a clear statement in the complaint of something forbidden by law, "the acts constituting the offence in plain language." This complaint was founded on suspicion, did not state a crime, did not allege ownership of the goods, did not fix a value, and there was no substantial foundation for a charge. There was no way to do justice to this woman for the wrong done her, but to discharge her.

District Attorney Hart said the state would readily concur in the petition for discharge of defendant.

Judge Boise after a plain definition of larceny, and the complaint failing to state that she took anything of any value "feloniously," he discharged the prisoner, to the general satisfaction of all present. He sustained each point made by Lawyer Jeffrey and that young man's hat band was visibly enlarged as having got the prisoner her liberty, but quite a little addition to his reputation as a criminal lawyer.

The Salem W. C. T. U. took charge of Mrs. Crader and she is assured of employment. They resent the action of Mrs. Overton at Woodburn, who, it seems, returned to Mrs. Crader her membership fee and ribbon badge on her own responsibility. Mrs. Crader spoke in the highest terms of the kindness of the Salem W. C. T. U., who had called on her as individuals and as a committee.

DON'T WANT TO BE U. S. SENATOR

Friedman don't want to be U. S Senator. Many times they have tried to have him run, and once the state went without one on account of it, but he makes a few suggestions that some of the game and fishing laws be repealed, especially where they allow a man to kill fifteen birds and he is not permitted to sell one, he must either down it himself, or clandestinely dispose of them, why shouldn't a person if he is allowed to kill fifteen birds, be allowed to dispose of them in his own way. So any citizen of Salem may purchase one and not be prohibited. A man should not be allowed to kill more than one or else give him the right to dispose of them. Trout fishing likewise, when a person is allowed to catch several hundred of them, yet no person is allowed to sell them, and thus prohibit an ordinary citizen from obtaining a trout. It is hoped the present legislature will repeal all the obnoxious game laws which are un-American, when it favors only a few persons and enact some wholesome sensible fishing and game laws, where no person should catch more than ten trout, and no more than two birds or else gives the markets permission to purchase and sell the same. Hoping the members of the House and Senate will act on the advice of the only man who don't want to be U. S. Senator, S. Friedman who can be found corner State and Commercial streets where they sell clothing, hats, ladies and gents' furnishing goods.
