CHRISTIAN SCIENTISTS

May Be Asked to Drink Fever Germs.

ENGAGEMENT OF PAULINE ASTOR

Heiress of Millions Will Marry the Duke of Roxburghe.

New York, Feb. 2.—A special to the Times from Albany, N. Y., says: The hearing on the bill to prevent Christian scientists from practicing their art will be resumed next Wednesday and promises to be of great interest. At a hearing last Wednesday several of the Christian scientists asserted that there was no danger in germs under the Christian science treatment. It was stated that the belief of the scientists in their immunity from germs would be put to the test.

One of the members of the State Medical Society, it is reported, will bring to the hearing next Wednesday a vial of typhoid fever germs. He will ask some of the "scientists" to demonstrate their immunity by drinking those germs.

The announcement of the engagement of the Duke of Roxburghe to Miss Pauline Astor, daughter of Mr. William Waldorf Astor, did not come as a great surprise to the friends of the prospective bride in this country.

The Duke of Roxburghe has recently returned from South Africa, where under Gen. French, he did distinguished service. He was a lieutenant in the Royal Horse Guards. Henry John Innes Ker, eighth duke of Roxburghe is 25 years old and succeeded to the title in 1892 on the death of his father.

Most of Miss Astor's life has been spent abroad. She is Wm. Waldorf Astor's only daughter, and with her two brothers will inherit his vast fortune.

No Advance in Steel Rails.
PITTSBURGH, Feb. 2.—The steel rail manufacturers have wisely decided not to raise the price of their product to $28 per ton this month, as was proposed two weeks ago. In the face of increasing and threatened competition, it is not deemed wise to hold up the railroad companies for higher prices at present, at least.

SPLENDID HONORS

Shown to Great Britain's Fallen Queen.

WOMEN MOURNERS OUTNUMBER MEN

English Capital Draped in Purple and Black as Never Before.

LONDON, Feb. 2, 9:17 a. m.—The early scenes were unlike those of many spectacular days which London has witnessed in the past year. The crowds which so early gathered in the streets this morning evinced an entire lack of feverish unrest and excitement. The great masses of police which assembled phanton-like in the greyness of the morning, seemed more apologetically to tip toe to their allotted stations, as though their presence reflected on the solemnity dominating everything. Never did a concourse of people so little need either civil or military guidance. No man standing by his mother's bier ever needed admonition less than did these hundreds of thousands of men and women gathered from all parts of the Kingdom on the funeral route of their mother, the Queen.

The strangest part of all was the fact that the women seemed to outnumber the men. White ribboned nurses marked almost every yard, along the route, just as the Marys gathered beneath the cross at the greatest of all spectacles of human grief, so women today were in the forefront at the burial of the Queen. Troops there were, to be sure, thousands upon thousands, assembling specterlike out of the morning mist, their blue breeches and bearskins deepening the note of mourning pervading everything.

In the great green spaces of Hyde Park, St. James and others these long black lines stand allottted against the morning sky, solemn, silent and picturesque, stanchly stemming the onrush of that endless flood of people pouring in from every street and avenue. Purple was the tone of the royal mourning and this seemed almost a relief, contrasted with these silent masses of black garbed crowds. It was the true note, after all, of the days ceremonial, for no one among England's heart stricken people could look upon the finished life of their Queen with feelings of entire gloom.

Buckingham Palace, the great hotels at the Victoria station, the princely homes in Park Lane and every shop and house hence to Paddington bore ample evidence of the national grief, and together with purple and white festoons, wreaths of bay and laurel, was hanging from every lamppost, while flags at halfmast, bordered with crepe, told in a dignified simple manner the loss of the nation.

FILIPINO RECRUITS

Twelve Thousand are to Be Enlisted

ARE DEVELOPING SOLDIERLY QUALITIES

The Maccabees Have Figured Most in the Work of Scouting.

New York, Feb. 2.—A special to the Times from Washington says:

The War Department intends to go slowly in the interesting experiment which the new army law permits it to make of encouraging the Filipinos to become American soldiers. There are no regular military organizations of Filipinos now unless the squadron of Philippine cavalry is so considered and the War Department has not received enough information about that organization to know whether it is a success or not. The army law gives to the department the desired opportunity to experiment with the Filipino and ascertain their soldierly qualities under American leaders. It is authorized to recruit Filipinos up to the number of 12,000.

The whole thing will be left to Gen. MacArthur, who will be allowed to use his judgment about how many Filipinos to enlist, unhampered by instructions from Washington. Nor will he begin by forming regiments. The plan is for him to employ Filipinos as scouting bands under American officers. The progress will be closely watched, and when Gen. MacArthur finds that some of these men have learned American ways and American discipline and have developed sufficiently in soldierly qualities, he will form them into companies, then, as the numbers of such Americanized Filipinos increase, into battalions and regiments.

The scouting bands are to be the skeleton from which the regular organization is to be built up. There is already a nucleus. Quite a number of those irregular bands of scouts have been formed by Gen. MacArthur, and are doing service under American officers. Their exact number is not known, but if they were all gathered together in one body they would make up nearly a full regiment.

Most of them are Maccabees, and these are the scouts who have figured most frequently in the reports and dispatches from Manila. But there is one company of Tagals who are a fine body of men and have done efficient service. They have never manifested the slightest hesitations about fighting against their countrymen, and no complaints of desertion or treason have ever been received concerning them. There are also several companies of Visayans among the scouts. It is not improbable that there are enough of these scouts who learned American ways to be formed at once into a company of regulars, but this is to be left to Gen. MacArthur's discretion.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC

The Sale Will Not Effect Policies.

HARRIMAN SYNDICATE BUYING M. K. & T.

Vanderbilts Have Right to Tax Commerce and Travel of Two Worlds.

New York, Feb. 2.—Evening Post says:

The Harriman syndicate has not only acquired large holdings of Southern Pacific stock, but is also obtaining control of Missouri, Kansas & Texas.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 2.—Prest C. H. Hays, of the Southern Pacific Company when asked if he thought the sale of the controlling interest in the company to the Harriman syndicate would lead to important changes of management or policy, said:

I see no prospect of any marked change in Southern Pacific affairs so far as the public interest is concerned. What difference does it make to the public whether a railroad be owned by one man or whether its voting stock is held by a hundred different interests, so long as it is managed in accordance with a broad and liberal policy which conserves the best interests of the public as much as the interest of the stockholders; I do not look for any startling changes in conditions as a result of the change of ownership.

William H. Crocker, speaking of the big deal said: "The Vanderbilt railroad and steamship interests will now have a direct line between Hamburg and Hong Kong across the American continent. Whatever the Vanderbilts do they do well, and if it is possible to improve the service of the Southern Pacific road the new controllers will do it. With the increased connections of the Southern Pacific, San Francisco stands in a fair way to expand in importance as a shipping point."

It is expected that H. E. Huntington will retire as a director and First Vice President of the company at the meeting in April next.

According to C. P. Huntington's will, his widow was left the two thirds of his Southern Pacific stock and his nephew, H. E. Huntington, the remaining third. In round numbers, the late magnate left a hundred thousand of the 2,000,000 shares of Southern Pacific stock. H. E. Huntington's portion was, therefore, 200,000 shares. On the same basis of $54 a share, he gets $11,000,000. Mr. C. P. Huntington on the same basis realizes $22,000,000.

FUNERAL DETAILS

Queen's Coffin Was Not Ostentatious.

PEOPLE FOUGHT SEVERAL HOURS

To Glance at the Coffin Only to Be Disappointed at its Size.

Details of Funeral.
WINDSOR, Feb. 2.—Great throngs of people assembled in the vicinity of the railroad station to meet the coffin.

The procession left the railroad station at 2:40 p. m. Ambassadors and others joined the procession at railway station and proceeded to St. George's Chapel. The royal mourners, with exception of Queen and Princesses, proceeded on foot.

Service at St. George's Chapel was concluded at 4:10 p. m. Body will lie until Monday in Albert Memorial Chapel.

Royalty, army and navy monopolized the pageant. Most of spectators expected an imposing catafalque, and the coffin was almost past before they recognized its presence by removing hats.

It was a pathetically small oblong coffin concealed beneath a rich pall of white satin on the corners of which gleamed the royal arms. Across the pall a royal standard was draped and a large crown of gold, encrusted with jewels rested at the head of the coffin.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—Prior to arrival of funeral train, Major Edward Bassindale, a veteran officer fell dead as a result of excitement.

With every circumstance of splendid pomp befitting the obsequies of the so mighty and well-beloved a monarch, all that is mortal of Queen Victoria has been borne through the streets of the capital and started towards the ancient fortress palace of the sovereigns of England.

The coffin was drawn by cream colored horses. The pall was white and the uniforms of the troops and gold trappings of the foreign sovereigns, the princes and representatives giving a brilliant coloring to the scene.

Never in English history has a sovereign been borne to the grave by so many distinguished mourners. The gathering of crowned heads surpassed those who rode in the jubilee procession.

People fought for hours for a glimpse of the coffin and the Kings and others following it. They saw a long procession of soldiers, a passing show of dazzling regalia, with hundreds of royalties crowding after and then dispersed, while all church chimers of city were ringing and muffled dirgeplayed.

Immediately behind the coffin rode the King. The Emperor William, and the Duke of Connaught rode upon either side of the King. The King of Hellenes, and King of Portugal rode immediately after King Edward's and Emperor William's suit.

In the procession were six carriages carrying Queen Alexandra, Duchess of Eile, Princess Victoria, and Princess Charles of Denmark, and the daughters of Queen Victoria and the King of the Belgians.

The body arrived at Windsor at 2:30 p. m.

To Save the Birds.
TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 2.—If a bill now before the legislature becomes a law, the women of New Jersey must take the birds from their hats or suffer a term of imprisonment, or a fine of $5 for each bird worn and for each day's possession of the bird. Senator Cross, the author of the bill, is one of the most influential law makers of the 125th legislature, and has introduced and is pressing the bill at the request of the Audubon Society.

Of the 500,000 married and marriageable women in this state, it is estimated that fully 300,000 like the wild birds' plumage as a part of their headgear.

Stop Coughing

There's nothing so bad for a cough as coughing. Every cough makes your throat more raw and irritable. Every cough congests the lining membrane of your lungs. Cease tearing your throat and lungs in this way. Take
