BREZE GIBSON AT ASTORIA
A Correct Version of His Wanting to Bag Sea Gulls.

Oswald West, a Salem bank cashier now employed at Astoria, is quite a joker, and tells this on a prominent Polk county farmer:
Breze Gibson was in town yesterday. He said he was down for a change of diet and wanted me to direct him to a restaurant, where he could get a good meal. I took him to an oyster house and after ordering him a couple of dozen on half shell, I left him. A few hours later I found him down on the docks taking aim with his fingers at the sea gulls sailing by and wishing he had brought his gun. I asked him how he liked the oysters. He replied:
"I liked the inside part bully, but my teeth are a little tender and I couldn't eat the little, but I didn't want to leave anything I paid for, so I just put the shells in my pocket and I am going to take 'em home and grind 'em up for the chickens."
Sure enough, Breze had his pockets full of oyster shells. I hope he got back to Polk county without being shanghaied. Mr. West adds that when the water in the oyster house asked Mr. Gibson how he wanted them served, that gentleman stated that he "wanted 'em killed, by gum."
Gibson is a bit of a sport and no doubt got square with West before leaving town. The sea gull story needs amending. Mr. Gibson knew it was unlawful to shoot them, but he had his gun with him. He did point his finger at some of them sailing around, they looked such nice shooting, and as he has a little impediment in his speech here is what he said: "I'd give five dollars for a shot at one of them she-gulls."

NEW YORK WEEKLY FASHION LETTER

Fashion's horn of plenty is filled to overflowing with new designs this spring. Never before in the history of the well-dressed woman has there been such unlimited variety in the modes. During these lovely spring days when the tailor-made gown is in order and can be worn without a wrap, some stunning creations are displayed.
There is a fierce war waged between the satin faced cloths and light weight materials of rough weave for fashionable supremacy. The former, however, are in the ascendancy just now. A pretty tailor design which is being displayed by a fashionable establishment is developed in black satin faced cloth, a d-trimmed with exquisite appliques of satin stitched on with silk braid. The skirt is decidedly attenuated in cut and widens at the foot into a deep flare. The appliques are stitched upon the front and sides and extend all the way around the bottom of the skirt for about four inches in depth.
The jacket is short and tight fitting, scarcely covering the hips. It has a vest of soft cream colored plaited chiffon. There are two sets of lapels, the inner set being of original embroidery showing red, cream and gold in its color scheme. The outer set is of black cloth stitched with satin appliques.
Another design, really delightful is the jacket fastens closely around the waist and is confined with a belt of blue panne velvet upon which are sewed tiny gilt buttons. The collar shows the popular Byron effect—with protruding sides and plain front—and is carried out in velvet trimmed with buttons. The belt is composed also of velvet and buttons.
The skirt is finished around the foot with three circular flounces from three to seven inches wide, the greatest width being at the back.
Very smart short waists are worn with these tailor made gowns. A particular design in pale steel gray was trimmed simply with white with grey silk buttons. With the suit was worn a skirt waist of grey peau de soie. This was plaited in the back, and was tight fitting. The front bloused over a vest of grey, appliqued with acru colored medallions stitched with silver threads. The throat was finished with crush collar of peau de soie stitched with lace and tiny grey buttons.
But the most fashionable shirt waists are the ones made of white taffeta. These are plaited, tucked, hemstitched and embellished with every decoration imaginable. One of the smartest ways of making such a waist is to tuck it. A dainty model was treated in this way and overlapping each other across the vest were tiny straps of taffeta trimmed with silver buttons. The waist was placed with a black cloth skirt and held in place at the belt with narrow girde of patent leather.
Another design in white satin was plaited and alternating with the plait were bands of cafe latte lace on either side of the lace bands were two of the roughest black velvet buttons. The sleeves were of the Lady Colville pattern, having the satin underlaid overlaid with the deep colored lace.
After having rendered its morning service the tailor-made gown and shirt waist are substituted in the afternoon by the calling dress. This, too, is carried to the extreme elaboration. A smart design in electric blue crepe is especially worthy of mention. The skirt is held in tiny stitch d-plaited to within a few inches of the bottom. Here it is appliqued with the sheperd of silk lace and the cloth cut out underneath to show intricate blue silk lining.
The bodice is composed of tucked bands alternating with silk lace insertion. It is made over a fitted silk lining and cut with a deep square yoke. Around the yoke is draped a band of pale blue chiffon which terminates at the bustline with a composite rosette of chiffon and lace.

Nuns veiling, too, is popular. This fact is probably due to its ready adaptability to the tucked and plaited effects it comes in all the fashionable spring tints and combines charmingly with the laces and braids which are now so fashionable.

INSURANCE RATES ON SCHOOL HOUSES

We have noticed several articles recently relative to insurance on school buildings, and find there are some surprising figures in a recent issue of THE CAPITAL JOURNAL in regard to the matter. We find that, according to this article, Marion county paid for insurance on school buildings, during the five years from 1891 to 1895, inclusive, in round numbers, $7,000, an average of $1,400 per year. The payment for the five years from 1896 to 1900, inclusive, is $3,740, an average of $748 per year. This shows a saving in insurance paid during the two periods of $770 per year. THE OREGON FIRE RELIEF ASSOCIATION wished to claim a portion of this saving as due to its work in Marion county. They do not claim that they have saved the whole amount of over $700 per year, but do claim that they are insuring a large number of school buildings in Marion county at about one-third the cost of old line insurance, and that this saving of two-thirds the regular standard rates on the number of school buildings they have insured in Marion county is the occasion of part of the above mentioned saving in insurance. Taking the amount of insurance paid in the state for the past 10 years as shown in the article quoted, $120,000, we agree with the writer of the article in thinking that this is a great deal too much to pay for insurance, and it is quite probable that three-fourths of the above amount could be recovered in the OREGON FIRE RELIEF ASSOCIATION at a cost of about $30,000 instead of $90,000. This would mean a saving of $60,000 during the 10 years, or one-half the amount which was paid for insurance. Now while it might be wise for the state to insure school buildings, in preference to paying the regular standard companies rates, we consider it quite doubtful if they could afford to do so if all the school districts who could were carrying their insurance with the Association. The Association is conducted on a safe conservative basis and furnishes insurance to its members at actual cost. We admit that if school buildings were insured in a class by themselves, as would be the case if the state insured them, there might be a small saving over the cost in the OREGON FIRE RELIEF ASSOCIATION, as the records of insurance companies for years have shown that the rate on school buildings is higher in proportion than it is on most other classes of property. Any school district in Marion county that has been paying regular insurance company rates for insurance and has any desire to obtain insurance for a more reasonable cost, would do well to write to H. A. Johnson, of Salem, who is the agent of the OREGON FIRE RELIEF ASSOCIATION for Marion county.

IT IS IMPORTANT To Know What You Are Taking When Using Catarrh Medicines.

Catarrh is the short route to consumption, and the importance of early and judicious treatment of catarrh, whether located in the head, throat or bronchial tubes, cannot be too strongly emphasized.
The list of catarrh cures is as long as the moral law and the forms in which they are administered, numerous and confusing, from syrups, inhalers, washes, ointments, and salves to powders, liquids and tablets.
The tablet form is undoubtedly the most convenient and most effective, but with nearly all advised catarrh remedies it is almost entirely a matter of guess work as to what you are taking into your system, as the proprietors, while making all sorts of claims as to what their medicines will do, always keep it a close secret as to what they are.

The success and popularity of the new catarrh cure, Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, is largely because catarrh sufferers who use these tablets know what they are taking into their systems. Stuart's Catarrh Tablets being composed of Eucalyptol, Hydrastin, Guaiacol and similar valuable and antiseptic ingredients, and are pleasant to the taste and being dissolved in the mouth they take immediate effect upon the mucous lining of the throat, nasal passages and whole respiratory tract.

The cure that Stuart's Catarrh Tablets have accomplished is old chronic cases of catarrh are little short of remarkable, and the advantage of knowing what you are putting into your stomach is of paramount importance when it is remembered that the cocaine or morphia habit has been frequently contracted as the result of using secret catarrh remedies.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets meet with cordial approval from physicians, because their antiseptic character renders them perfectly safe for the general public to use and their composition makes them common sense cure for all forms of catarrhal troubles.

All druggists sell them at 50c cents for full sized packages. 4-9-11-13

MANILA ITCH AT GLENDALE

In answer to an inquiry in regard to the prevalence of smallpox at Glendale, H. G. Sonnermann writes that the contagion is what is called the "Manila Itch," there having been three cases of it in the town at one time, although the number reported elsewhere was much greater. The quarantine on the town is now raised so the mails are received and sent and the trains stop there for meals as usual.
