Reading as a Cure.

The practice of reading aloud at regular intervals is of great benefit to any one affected with a chest complaint. In all cases of lung trouble it is important to indulge in those exercises by which the chest is in part filled or emptied of air, and reading aloud, singing and whistling are three of these exercises.

There are many who cannot sing, and we do not expect the fair sex to whistle, but reading aloud can be practiced by all. Care must be taken not to overdo it, of course, and the body should be in such a position as to allow the chest to have free play.

Reading aloud, if we pay attention to what we are doing, will not only be beneficial from the standpoint of health, but will also have the effect of making us better speakers by teaching us proper modulations of the voice and by increasing our knowledge.

This is where it has the advantage over whistling and singing.

SOCIAL EVENTS

FRIDAY May 24.—At the Grand opera House "What Did Tompkins Do"

SATURDAY, May 25.—Woman's Club. Meeting.

WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION

Convention Meets in This City One Week From Today.

The Marion County Convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union will meet in this city a week from today, Tuesday, May 28. The session will last two days, meeting during the day at the society hall, on Court street, and for the evening service some church will be secured, probably the First Methodist.

Each organization is allowed one delegate for each 15 members, and a large number of visitors from all parts of the county is anticipated. Mrs. Tatels, of Turner, is county superintendent and will preside at all the meetings. She is also vice-president of the state convention. At the regular meeting held this afternoon programs are being arranged for the series of meetings.

The Rebekahs of Salem

Mrs. O. D. Hutton and Mrs. Mable West, members of Salem Rebekah Lodge No. 1, I. O. O. F. who leave this city in a few days to make their homes elsewhere, were treated by the remainder of the lodge members last evening to an elaborate entertainment in honor of their departure. After the regular lodge meeting held in the hall in the Odd Fellows' Temple, a musical and litarary program was rendered, musical numbers being contributed by the Misses Childers, Davis, Cox and Brown, and readings by Mrs. M. P. Baldwin and Miss Bessie Buckingham. All of the numbers were enjoyable and excellently rendered. After the program was completed, the banquet hall was the scence of festivities, refreshments being served in a pretty way and discussed at considerable length. The evening was enjoyable to the large number present and the ladies departing soon will have pleasant memories of the last evening with the Salem Rebekahs.

Nat Goodwin's Successor

Harry Corson Clarke, the comedian, who is declared by many to be the natural successor to Nat Goodwin, and whose popularity is increasing year by year as he is seen in new creations, in none of which he ever fails to score, has a new farce this season which he declares gives him the best opportunity he has ever had. It is called "What Did Tomkins Do?" and it concerns the doings of a frisky man with a studious son whom the gallantries of the father leads into all sorts and conditions of embarrassments and complications. It is full of action, clean and wholesome, and is a shout from the start to the finish. One of the features is the flower garden of handsome women who appear in the production and as they are most richly gowned an audience is kept in a torrent of applause as each successive creation of the present season in Paris is shown. The mounting of the play is also note-worthy, entirely new scenery being used throughout. The new farce will be presented at the Grand Friday night.

WEEKLY SUMMARY OF CROP REPORTS.

From the Oregon Section, Climate and Crop Service, and Weather Bureau. Weekly Crop Bulletin Furnished by Edward A. Beals, Director, Portland, Or.

Warm and partly cloudy weather prevailed until Thursday afternoon, when a change to cooler, accompanied by showery conditions, began and continued the remainder of the week. Frosts occurred Monday morning in the eastern portion of the State and on Saturday morning at a few exposed places in the western portion. The frosts, however, were not heavy enough to cause material damage. The maximum temperatures during the week in western Oregon ranged between 54 degrees and 74 degrees, and the minimum temperatures between 42 degrees and 54 degrees. In eastern Oregon the maximum temperatures ranged between 52 degrees and 82 degrees, and the minimum temperatures between 32 degrees and 58 degrees.

Fall wheat, rye and barley continue in excellent condititon, and that farthest advanced has begun to head. Spring wheat and oats have made a good growth and there is no complaint of insect pests damaging either fall or spring sown grain in any section of the State. Alfalfa, clover, tame grass and pastures are doing splendidly and the prospects now are excellent for a good crop of hay. Stock is getting fat. Sheep shearing is well advanced and the wool clip, while not quite as heavy as last year, is reported very good.

Gardens, although backward, are doing well, and there is an abundance of early vegetables in the market. Potato and corn planting and summer fallowing are practically completed. Correspondents generaly report an increased acreage in potatoes and corn. Corn needs more rain and warmer weather in southern counties, but elsewhere it is doing nicely and its cultivation is in general progress. Hops continue thrifty and promising.

Complaints regarding the dropping of Italian prunes have increased over the northern portion of the Willamette valley and there will fall short of former expectations. The outlook for a good crop of apples continues favorable.

Daniel O'Connell's Fees.

In the National Library of Ireland is the fee book of Daniel O'Connell. This volume, in its 100 pages or so of parallel columns, laboriously prepared by the hand of the liberator himself, shows in pounds, shillings and pence his early struggles. O'Connell was called to the Irish bar in 1798—the year of the rebellion—and seven days later he got his first brief, from a brother-in-law, who retained him to draft a declaration on a promissory note. The only other business he got that year was also given him by a kinsman—a cousin—and it was of the same kind. The fee on each occasion was £1 2s. 9d. It was in one of his earliest cases that O'Connell made the retort that attracted attention to him. He was cross examining an awkward witness, who declared that he had drunk nothing but his share of a pint of whisky. "On your oath, now," thundered the young counsel, "was not your share all but the pewter?"

O'Connell's fee book is an interesting record of his rapid rise in the profession. For the first year, as we have seen, his income amounted to only £2 5s. 6d. Next year he earned over £50, and the year after he made over £400. According to memoranda made in his own handwriting his income in 1803 was £465, and in the following years, £775, £840, £1,077, £1,713, £2,198, £2,736, £2,951, £3,047 and £3,808 respectively.

HOTEL KLEPTOMANIACS.

Presumably Rich Guests Who Appropriate Other People's Property.

I was much struck with the habits of kleptomania common to some of the presumably rich visitors who engaged expensive suits of rooms and even paid their bills. After the departure of these guests the bed would be found minus the satin or silk coverlet, while towels and pillowslips were also very often removed.

On one occasion a gentleman engaged a double room for one night only and the following morning the maid, knowing of his departure, made up the bed with fresh linen for the next occupant. However, the visitor had evidently returned to his room after breakfast, deliberately taken the slips off the pillows and packed them with his luggage, for on entering the room shortly after I found the bed made up but no slips. I happened to know that the maid had certainly put fresh ones on when she made up the bed. What that gentleman could want with these two pillowslips is difficult to understand.

Of course candles, matches and soap (supplied gratis) are commonly removed, and even the sheets on the beds are not spared. Once a large double sheet was cut into pieces, the visitor evidently requiring sufficient linen for a petticoat or lining to a skirt, judging from the shape of the pieces left. The hotel sheet was no doubt the nearest thing available, so it was taken to save time and trouble, and the pieces left were found carefully rolled up and thrown into a cupboard outside the room which was only used by the maids and strictly private. Needless to say, before the remains of the sheet were found the visitors had departed, leaving no address.—Chambers' Journal.
