BAKERY

There has been great demand in the city and at the sea shore for the bread and pastry made at C. E. McIlwain's capital bakery. For the last two weeks he has been working day and night in order to supply the demands fer mountain campers and harvesters. His baking is noted for its fine flavor and healthfulness, and for the coming hoppicking sea son, it will take every moment of his time to keep up the supply. Mr. Mc-Ilwain has only conducted his bakery a few months, and it is surprising to see how his business has picked up. The public has found out what good bread is and where it is made, and consequently Mr. McIlwain is doing a rushing busi-
