Lyle Baker's Funeral

The congregational church was filled Wednesday afternoon with the friends of Lyle Baker, who were in attendance at the funeral services held in that church. The deceased died of typhoid fever. The coffin was decorated with beautiful flowers, wreaths and arches. After a short address by Rev. Kantner, the choir sang "Nearer My God to Thee" in low, sweet tones.
Rev. Kantner offered prayer and the choir again sang, after which Rev. Kantner delivered an address, giving a short sketch of Mr. Baker's life.
While the choir sang Mr. Baker's favorite song—"We'll Never Say Good-bye in Heaven," the audience was allowed to take a parting look at their departed friend.
Lyle Baker was a barber by trade, and out of respect to his memory every barber shop in the city was closed Wednesday afternoon, during the funeral services. The shop where he was employed, H. George Meyer, member of the State Barber's Board, was kept closed all the afternoon and evening.
Professor and Mrs. Baker and the family have the warmest sympathy of the community, and their many friends all over the Northwest sympathize with them in their loss. No one can feel the depth of their grief and affliction as only those who have lost a dear one out of the family circle do.

Fuel for Force

Your body must have force, nervous force, muscular force, digestive force. Fat is the fuel used to supply this force. If you are weak in any of these forces, use more fuel.
The cod-liver oil in Scott's Emulsion is the best fuel for this work. Your nerves grow stronger, your muscular power increases, and your digestion improves.

SCHOOL LIBRARY

Educational Movement Suggested by H. S. Lyman.

In a Letter to the Governor He Sets Forth a Plan of Campaign to Reach the Teachers and Pupils.

The following letter exploiting a subject of deep interest just now, was received by Governor Geer:

ASTORIA, Oct. 4, 1901.
Hon. T. T. Geer, Governor State of Oregon:

Dear Sir: Knowing that you soon will be, and probably already are, deluged with inquiries and suggestions in view of the stirring events for which the state is preparing, may I bring before you this early, partly personally and partly officially, which has seemed to me as an important feature of the Lewis and Clark Centennial celebration? I should hardly feel warranted in doing this, if others, to whom I have already spoken of the same matter, had not looked upon it favorably and urged me to carry it up. Among others, I have written to the Superintendent of Public Instruction as having particular interest in such a plan as I suggest; but I realize that probably legislative action should come first, and should therefore come under your notice.

The idea is, briefly, that in view of the celebration of the historical events of nearly 100 years ago, and publicly reviewing the development that has come from them, some preparatory work should be done to show our people the importance of the events themselves, and to make the celebration a historical education. The celebration should thus become an era in our civic consciousness, and be the beginning, perhaps, of a new literary spirit. The point to touch would be the school and teachers, as through them the public is most directly affected; and the means to reach them would be to place in convenient and easily accessible form whatever records we have of the explorations, settlements and development of Oregon. There are the letters, reports, narratives, journals, reminiscences, etc., describing events as they occurred, and mostly in the language of those who performed the work of making our state. These records are, in fact, abundant, and while not all equally interesting, much, if properly compiled, would prove intensely so, especially to the brighter young people. But in their original form they are out of reach of all but the few; and even to those who have access to the very few collections in the state, the print and looks of the books, usually in bad type, and without illustrations, is not inviting.

My suggestion would be that either by action of Centennial Commission or by direct act of the Legislature a proper compilation be made of the materials spoken of; making a series of convenient and well printed and fully illustrated books, in the language of the participants in our history, but edited enough to form a continuous and connected narrative. This should make a series of handy little books, not to exceed 15 or 16 in number, and not to cost over 50 cents each. Then this series should be placed in every schoolhouse in the state. All the people in that case through the children at school, or at the fireside in the home, would trace the growth of our state during a hundred years, the name of Oregon being a kind of star leading American civilization to the Western ocean, and certainly antedating the attraction of California, and possibly anticipating even Louisiana as an American acquisition. As one of my friends has said, something of this nature, to bring our anticipated celebration to the schools and residences of our scattered communities, will be all that three-fourths of our young people will ever see. Nor would I overlook the fact that for those who may be fortunate enough to see the celebration some education to enable them to understand its meaning, is hardly less desirable.

In order that it should be fittingly done, it occurred to me that this work should be placed under a commission, constituted, perhaps, as follows: The Superintendent of Public Instruction, president of the State University, president of Monmouth State Normal school and two others not connected with schools, to be appointed by the Governor of the state. This commission should be authorized to employ an editor and compiler, who should perform his duties under their general direction, and segregate the material into convenient books, properly divided into chapters, consecutively arranged, and using the language of the original writers, and give the reader full benefit of the descriptions and the society of the men who first led the way. However, such necessary notes as would explain and connect the various narratives should be inserted.

As for publication, this should be done under contract with the commission. I would suggest, if this seems advisable, that instead of asking the legislature to appropriate a sum sufficient to pay the expense of publication, the school districts be authorized and required each to accept and pay for one set. This would be no hardship, as the books would be in every way worthy of much more than ordinary interest and value, and the expense would not be great for the entire series. The 15 per cent. of the state school fund appropriation, allowed for purchase of books of reference, should cover cost, in most cases, and that it should be so used, if the state directed, would seem to me no hardship, even if some school might object. However,

SYRUP OF FIGS

A New, Effectual and Convenient Cure for Catarrh.

Of catarrh remedies there is no end, but of catarrh cures, there has always been a great scarcity. There are many remedies to relieve, but very few that really cure.

The old practice of snuffing salt water through the nose would often relieve, and the washes, doaches, powders and inhalers in common use are very little, if any, better than the old fashioned salt water doache.

The use of inhalers and the application of salves, washes and powders to the nose and throat to cure catarrh is no more reasonable than to rub the back to cure kidney disease. Catarrh is just as much a blood disease as kidney trouble or rheumatism and it cannot be cured by local treatment any more than they can be.

To cure catarrh, whether in the head, throat or stomach an internal antiseptic treatment is necessary to drive the catarrh poison out of the blood and system, and the new catarrh cure is designed on this plan and the remarkable success of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets is because being used internally it drives out catarrh infection through action upon stomach, liver and bowels.

Wm. Zimmerman of St. Joseph, relates an experience with catarrh which is of value to millions of catarrh sufferers everywhere. He says: "I neglected a slight nasal catarrh until it gradually extended to my throat and bronchial tubes and finally even my stomach and liver became affected, but as I was able to keep up and do a days work I felt it run along until my hearing began to fail me and then I realized that I must get rid of catarrh or lose my position as I was clerk and my hearing was absolutely necessary."

"Some of my friends recommended an inhaler, another a catarrh salve but they were no good in my case, nor was anything else until I heard of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets and bought a package at my drug store. They benefited me from the start and in less than four months I was completely cured of catarrh although I had suffered nearly all my life from it."

"They are pleasant to take and so much more convenient to use than other catarrh remedies, that I feel I cannot say enough in favor of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets."

PROMOTE HOME INDUSTRY

Strawberry Canning and Peach Growing to Be Considered Saturday.

Industrial officials of the Southern Pacific Company Are to Be at Salem.

Turn out Saturday and realize that this part of Oregon can produce the best strawberries for canning and shipping in the world. The meeting will be held at Hotel Willamette at the same time the Woman's club meets there but in another room. Samples of improved canning varieties will be shown and the fruit will be made plain to the eye and the palate. Cans will be opened and tested by a committee.

To show the value of new varieties of strawberries it should be noted that one grower near Salem last season cleared nearly $1000 on two new varieties that took the top of the market. Some of the Clark seedlings, known as the Hood river berry, were shipped and immediately brought larger orders, one for a carload coming from as far south as Sacramento.

The peach industry is also in infancy. Several orchards near Salem are producing yearly large crops for the cannery, for the home and shipping market. It is believed that there are scores of sites on the river bottom and on the islands, where peaches could be grown profitably and on a large scale for shipment and the cannery. The promotion of these industries are worth considering as they require no bonus, employ the families of both city and country people and bring great wealth to the country.

The industrial promoters of the S. P. Co., have promised to be with us Saturday and investigate these industries and promise to do all in their power to help make these crops profitable. This means a great deal to Salem. Let the fruit growers meet them in a proper spirit of enterprise. It means business, prosperity and employment along lines for which our climate and soil is naturally adapted and at occupation that our people understand and that will bring city and country together in a common bond of industry, and make property more valuable.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.
As Police Commissioner, by Franklin Matthews in the World's Work.
More than once I sat beside Mr. Roosevelt as he presided at hearings. I have seen him stop to consider how he could be absolutely fair, and his decisions had instant effect as a result. I have been alone with him as one after another the candidates for appointment came up for private examination as to their fitness. Searching inquiries would be put to them. To one man who was trembling from the severity of his examination, I remember Commissioner Roosevelt said:
"You are the man Father So-and-So spoke to me about?"
"Yes, Sir, but I didn't suppose being Catholic made any difference."
"Of course not; of course not," was the instant reply. I do not care whether you are a Catholic, a Protestant, a Jew or a Gentile. I think you'll do. You tell Father So and So if he has any more like you to send them down here. I pass you; go and see the other commissioners."
The policeman never took blackmail while Mr. Roosevelt was in power and it is safe to say that he has not done so yet. There were hundreds appointed like him. Many also, have fallen, but it is because a different kind of current went down the line from police headquarters.
