GERMANS GET THEIR DUTCH UP

Germany Held Anti-Chamberlain

Meetings the Past Week Think the Englishman Has Insulted Them.

Lord Salisbury's London Day Speech Coldly Received.

Germany has rung with anti-Chamberlain indignation meetings all the past week. These meetings have been confined hitherto to students and veterans' societies, but a conference of the Thuringian pastors' societies has decided to invite the Protestant clergymen throughout Germany to make a common protest against the utterances of the British colonial secretary at Edinburgh, October 25, when he referred to the conduct of the German troops during the Franco-Prussian war of 1870-71.

Students' meetings were held this week at the Berlin, Leipzig, Taubingen, Jena and other universities. The Leipzig meeting was held in response to a call sent out by the rector of the university. The Jena students voted to petition the imperial chancellor, Count Von Buelow, to instruct the German ambassador at London to demand satisfaction for the insult.

The Vosche Zeitung calls attention to the fact that Mr. Chamberlain's obnoxious remark included the troops of Russia, France and other nations, and adds that the French and Russians shrug their shoulders, regarding Mr. Chamberlain as a babbler, and say they do not think of crusading against Great Britain with grand orations as the arch enemy of the policy of great empires.

Lord Mayor's Day. His feeling of antipathy toward a policy of cruelty in South Africa was manifested at the Lord Mayor's banquet in London.

The presence of Lord Salisbury afforded an excellent excuse for reiterating the attitude of the government toward the controversy. The response of the great audience in the banquet hall might be described as satisfactorily loyal, but could hardly be called enthusiastic.

The feature of the evening was Lord Salisbury's speech in response to the toast to "His Majesty's Ministers." Referring to the progress of the war in South Africa, the premier said:

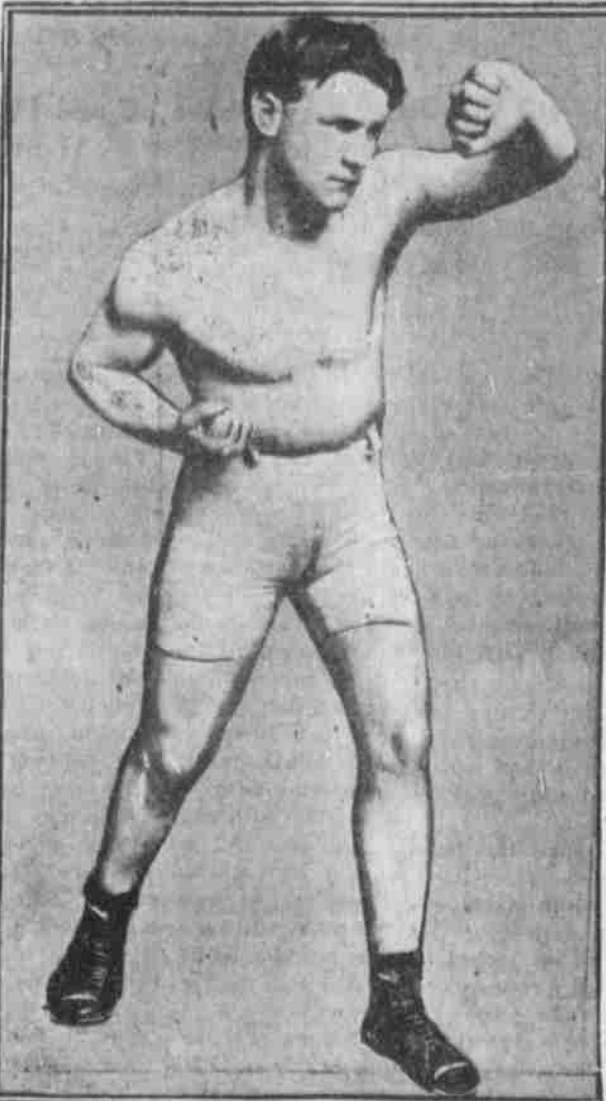

It is pleasant to record that the peace of the world has been so little disturbed by the events of the last two years. Half a century ago we would not have found such a correct and pacific attitude on the part of all the great powers.

It is a sign of the increasing international amity and understanding also that the cloud of the past three weeks over the Mediterranean has so lightly passed away. Fifty years ago this would not have been so.

Touching upon the South African developments in another part of his speech Lord Salisbury said:

I strongly deprecate the spirit of pessimism so frequently heard in the utterances of some of our public men as to the war in which we are engaged, unlike the war of former years, no longer does the capture of the enemy's capital and the disposition of his field forces constitute a conclusive victory.

We are now confronted by a system of guerrilla war, which must be slowly and effectively stamped out. We are progressing slowly, perhaps, but steadily. I cannot take the public wholly into the confidence of the government. It would be most imprudent to publicly state all we are doing, weekly and monthly at the front; but

WOMAN'S INFLUENCE.

CHANGES IT WROUGHT IN IMPROVING A VILLAGE.

Plots of Mudholes and Weeds Made Into Parks—Fences and Sidewalks Built—Flowers and Shrubs Planted.

When the ladies seriously take hold of a project, it is pretty safe to assume that they will succeed. But it is as village improvers that they have never been known to fail when once they started in.

A case in point is the transformation of Oxford, an old town in the interior of New York.

Three parks were set apart by the pioneers originally, but after 100 years they were little regarded by the people then living within sight of them.

When the ladies seriously take hold of a project, it is pretty safe to assume that they will succeed. But it is as village improvers that they have never been known to fail when once they started in.

One afternoon two women were looking over the plot which had been set apart for a park.

The two talked with other women, and a meeting of women was called to devise ways and means of improving the village.

A permanent organization was formed, and a president, vice president, treasurer and secretary were elected.

A board of directors and an executive committee were also appointed, and a constitution and bylaws were adopted.

Organization was perfected in September, the objects of the society were made known throughout the community, and the work of improving the village began at the home of each of the 29 members.

The drift of population still being toward the cities, it is not the duty of city authorities to provide accommodations for the cities, rapid transit included, and pure water and better gas.

To our way of thinking the question admits of no argument.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

THE FISHERY FEVER.

Long about this time of year I sort of get a wish I'd be out loose a spell on a fish an fish.

Got the fish fever on an ain't git over it.

One day I saw a little gal a-dabbins' her feet in a gutter stream that made a puddle in the street.

Got the fish fever on an ain't git over it.

CLAIMS TO BE STOKES' WIFE

The cherished career of the late Edward L. Stokes, the player of Jim Fiske, now has another sensational incident in the claim of Miss Rosamond Langdon Barclay that she is the legal wife of Stokes, the latter having married her in Canada more than a year ago. Miss Barclay or Mrs. Stokes, if her claim is authentic, declares that she has a marriage certificate to prove her rights.
