Dinner Parties.
Four nice Brooklyn girls are giving a series of dinner parties which are to prove which of them can provide the best dinner for the least money. The dinners are to cost not more than $4 apiece, and each will be served not only to the girls, but to four young men whom they will invite. The girls do not expect to perform miracles and they do not cook or serve the dinners, but merely superintend them and provide the materials. The first dinner has been given, and if the others are equally good it will be difficult to tell who will deserve to be called the prize winner.
There were six courses at the first dinner, and these were duly announced on pretty little hand-painted dinner cards, the work of the hostess.
For the first course there was grape fruit, the pulp cut around that it might be eaten daintily. It made a pretty course, the large yellow fruit with a red cherry in the center of each half being pretty to look at.
The second course was tomato soup with croutons, and after the soup, on the menu cards, came the hors d'oeuvres, radishes, salted nuts, and olives.
For the third course there was salmon au gratin, with which was served crisp sandwiches. Lamb chops came next with green peas and creamed potatoes; there was an asparagus salad with crackers and cheese, and the dinner ended with ice cream, cake, bon-bons and coffee.

For 20 Years a Foremost Actor.
The announcement of the appearance in our city on Friday of the distinguished actor Frederick Ward, cannot but be a source of genuine satisfaction to lovers of the drama, and the admirers of all that is noble and true in art. For twenty years Mr. Ward has been recognized as one of the foremost actors of the country; he has won the respect and admiration of the public by his profession and fidelity to the Shakespearean and legitimate drama.
Mr. Ward appears this time in a character that he has made peculiarly his own "Belphegor, the Mountebank," in Nobility Recommends Nervine.

The above portrait is that of Countess Mogelstod, of Chicago, Ill., whose gratitude for the benefit received from the use of Dr. Miles' Nervine prompted her to make this statement:
"It affords me great pleasure to add my testimony to the very excellent merits of Dr. Miles' Nervine. Although I am past 50 years of age I find it soothes the tired brain, quiets the irritated nerves and insures restful sleep. I never feel contented without a bottle of it in the house." Gratefully yours, CHRISTIANA MARIA, Countess Mogelstod.

the grand old play of that name by D'Ennery, author of "The Two Orphans."

It is safe to say that no grander personation exists on the American stage of today. Gifted by nature with a superb athletic figure, trained in youth to study and observation, broadened and developed by travel, contact with the world and associated with the leading artists in both hemispheres, Mr. Ward brings to his art a sympathy and experience enjoyed by few; added this, a temperament which finds appreciation only for the heroic, the greater and higher impulses of manhood. With these qualities, Mr. Ward, in the maturity of his powers, is peculiarly and particularly adapted to represent the part of "Belphegor," that so admirably combines the highest qualities of the dramatic art, and supported by the best Company obtainable. Box office open for sale of seats Friday at 9 a. m. Prices $1.00, 75c, 50c and 35c. Box seats $1.50.

JOURNAL X RAYS.

The Oakland Enquirer for Dec. 31 was a special issue to boom the development of the east shore of San Francisco Bay. The time will come within a quarter of a century when the bulk of the population and business of the Golden Gate will be done on that side of the water.

Here is the way the stock, field and farm philosophizes about cold weather: The more severe the winter the greater the joy when spring arrives! Frost is performing a sweet and helpful ministry for us even while it nips the trees and chills the body.
Frost has a good memory—it paints ferns and vines upon our window panes when the models are all dead and gone.

The Tavern at the End.
Down life's road a tavern
Marks the end,
Where sometimes quartered
Foe and friend,
Weary of the journey;
Faint of breath—
Friend and foe must greet him,
Landlord Death.

Landlord Death is quiet
In his way;
Yet he has pleasures
Day by day;
Pleasures that he greets with
Smile or grim—
Yes, and they who travel
Smile on him.
You may take no luggage
To his inn;
Joy nor tears nor fortune
Say nor sin.
When you come you leave it
All behind.
Many vow sincerely
Death is kind.

Guests there are who tremble
At the gate;
Guests there are who enter
All sedate;
Other guests would parley
For a while;
Others, too, who hasten,
With a smile.

Down life's road a tavern
Marks the end.
Further on the highway
Dinily bleed.
Death will make no answer,
Yes or no,
If you go on that highway
Stay or go.

HEART DISEASE

Ninety Per Cent of it Really Caused From Poor Digestion.
Real organic heart trouble is incurable, but scarcely one case in a hundred is organic.
The action of the heart and stomach are both controlled by the same great nerves, the sympathetic and pneumogastric, and when the stomach fails to properly digest the food and it lies in the stomach fermenting, gases are formed which distend the organ causing pressure on the heart and lungs causing palpitation, irregularity and shortness of breath.

The danger from this condition is the continued disturbance of the heart sooner or later may cause real organic heart trouble and in fact frequently does so.

Furthermore, poor digestion makes the blood thin and watery and deficient in red corpuscles, and this further irritates and wrecks the heart.
The most sensible thing to do for heart trouble is to insure the digestion and assimilation of the food.
This can be done by the regular use after meals of some safe, pleasant and effective digestive preparation, like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets which may be found at most drug stores and which contain the necessary digestive elements in a pleasant convenient form.
Thousands of people keep well and vigorous by keeping their digestion perfect by observing the rule of taking one or two of these tablets after each meal, or at least after each hearty meal.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets contain U. S. P. pepsin, diastase from malt and other natural digestive which act only on the food, digesting it perfectly and preventing acidity, gases, and the many diseased conditions which accompany a weak stomach.

When Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are used you may know you are not taking into the system any strong medicine or powerful drug but simply the natural digestive elements which every weak stomach lacks.

So widely known and popular have these tablets become that they are now sold by every druggist in the United States, Canada and Great Britain. 10810
