MAYOR SCHMITZ OF FRISCO

Writes of the Yellow Peril

A Menace to American Laborers.

And a Drag Upon our Civilization.

Written for the Scripps-Milax Press, by John Eugene Schmitz, Mayor of the City of San Francisco.

The problem of Chinese exclusion is no longer a problem, it is a demonstrated proposition. No one on the Pacific Coast who possesses any social or political intelligence or foresight can see two sides to the question. There is but one. The Chinese as a race must be excluded from our sphere, from injurious competition with our labor, from destructive interference with our enterprises and from damaging contact with our civilization.

Only those who have actually lived in contact with the Chinese can realize to the fullest extent what their admission to this country means. One must have seen and known them in all of their native fifth and squalor, their vicious and degenerate vices, their barbaric feuds and treacherous cruelty and their pernicious systems of slavery to understand that their very presence is a pollution and a source of both moral and physical infections.

No other section of the United States has come into contact with the oriental civilization and suffered from the presence of the Orientals as has the Pacific coast; and no city has been cursed with such an Asiatic colony as has San Francisco. In no other American cities has white labor been obliged to compete with the slave hordes of the East, the lowest social dregs of the Celestial Empire, as it has in San Francisco and the larger coast cities. Consequently when the Pacific coast raises its voice in protest of the admission of Chinese and in demand of Chinese exclusion, it should be heeded as the voice of experience, a plea for race, for country and for home.

San Francisco's Chinatown costs more to govern than any similar sized community in America, and entails more trouble on the police department than all the rest of San Francisco. In spite of the utmost vigilance barbaric murders are of frequent occurrence, and ground dives and secret dens, where all the oriental vices flourish, where hashish and opium are daily food and hundreds of females are held in a captivity worse than death.

One has to go through the countless sweat-shops to see the effect on American labor. An ordinary living room will be crowded to suffocation with coolie slaves (many of them afflicted with cancerous and syphilitic diseases) busy eighteen hours a day making cigars or clothing, or shoes or a hundred other products that are purchased by unscrupulous dealers whose selfish greed outweighs their humanity, and sold to an unsuspecting public in competition with goods made by labor that cannot live on a few cents a day, that requires suitable clothing and nourishment as well as good air to breathe and reasonable hours of work.

San Francisco's Chamber of Commerce actuated by mercantile greed and selfishness, has betrayed and disgraced itself and the community by resolutions in favor of the admission of certain classes of Chinese, a note of discord in the otherwise harmonious demand of the entire west for absolute and most stringent exclusion. These shipowners have for years in direct violation of the spirit of the exclusion act employed Chinese coolies as sailors on American vessels, so that dividends would be larger. No American vessel should be allowed to carry oriental crews, and no person that values his safety should travel on a vessel so manned. The cowardly, treacherous conduct of such crews in time of disaster is notorious. Witness the wreck of the Rio Janiero, where 140 lives were lost within eight of land.

Those merchants who hope to increase their profits by getting a cheaper class of labor at the expense of their own race, are pursuing a disasterous policy, for the Chinaman is not a consumer in this country, hoards his money, creates no demand for goods, while a white laborer enlarges the market as his prosperity increases; the higher wages he receives the more he buys. To lower wages is to decrease the purchasing power of the class that creates markets and on whom markets depend for sustenance. To substitute Chinese is to close markets altogether.

Neither should labor in our own country be permanently injured in order to create temporary profit for a few in newly opened markets of China, for it is only a question of a short time when the Chinese themselves will make everything that is now exported to their country and make it under conditions with which we cannot possibly compete. The Oriental civilization will not amalgamate with the Occidental. The ideas, the customs, the religion of the Chinese are not ours. The teaching, the training, the methods of thousands of years, cannot be changed by a generation, especially when those concerned stubbornly resist suggestion of change. For unknown centuries, Chinese civilization has withstood the ravages of the time. The country has been conquered again and again, but sooner or later the conquerors have themselves been conquered by the unchanging customs of the country, forced to adopt the life and habits and become as the Chinese that know no change.

Against these Mongolian hordes, the American laborer must be protected. It is not a question of race prejudice, but one of conservation of American homes and American life. The exclusion to a class of labor that means destruction to American labor, to American institutions and to American civilization. EUGENE E. SCHMITZ.

Few people can understand the feelings of the pugilist as he is being counted out. He hears the seconds ticked off. He struggles to rise, but struggles in vain. He has lost the fight.

There are some who are making a losing fight for life that can appreciate this; those whose lungs are diseased. With every tick of the watch they know that they are being counted out.

The great question is how can a quick rally be made to continue the fight against disease? Many who have asked that question have found a satisfactory answer in the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures bronchitis, obstinate, deep-seated coughs, hemorrhages, night sweats, emaciation, and other conditions which if neglected or unskillfully treated may find a fatal termination in consumption.

ALASKA FEDERAL JUDGE

Who Assisted in Fleeing a Number of Salemites

Since President Roosevelt has finally disposed of the case of Arthur B. Noyes, judge for the Second District of Alaska, by dismissing him from service, it might be of interest to know something of the operations of this judicial rascal particularly since his crooked work resulted in financial loss to many Salemites. Among the Alaskan gold prospectors going from Salem that were fleeced by Noyes were George Bros., the well-known State street restaurant men.

By the manipulation of his judicial office, Noyes and his gang of grafters succeeded in acquiring possession and title to the large majority of the valuable Alaskan mining properties. When a prospector had located a mine he was obliged to file notice of same at a legally established department that was conducted by some of Noyes' henchmen. Each locator was required to leave a notice of the location and a description of his claim at this office on the flimsy and trumped-up excuse that it would be necessary to investigate the records and ascertain if the claims had been previously located upon. In the meantime if, upon investigation, the mining property so located proved at all desirable, some member of the gang would make a filing that would be entered of record prior in date to that of the poor prospector, who would be confronted by the illegal records when he called to receive information concerning his prospective claim. In this way hundreds of prospectors were robbed of promising claims and rendered practically penniless. Judge Noyes being the head of the judicial department, any attempt to have the corrupt practice remedied in the courts was frustrated and corruption held full sway.
