Gave Concluding Social of Season Monday Evening.

Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Condit are vis-The members of Salem Rebekah lodge No. 1, one of the most popular entertainment organizations in the Capital City, gave their concluding social for this season at their hall in the Odd Fellows' Temple Monday evening. There was a large attendance of the Rebekahs and their friends, who found themselves pleasantly and completely entertained. In fact, Salem Rebekahs do not believe in doing things in fractions, and last night was certainly an occasion when a full measure was dispensed.

The main auditorium of the hall had been very beautifully decorated in Oregon grape, ivy, lamb's tongue and the national colors, while the banquet room was artistically arranged in the Rebekah's colors-pink and green Miss Stutesman presided at the punch booth, and Mrs. J. W. Young had charge of the fish pond, where every cast of the line produced some useful article, provided the requisite 10 cents was used as bait. Miss Slover conducted an art gallery in a tastefully arranged booth. The Rebekahs had engaged for the evening a fortuneteller direct from Egypt, but the person failed to make Salem in time to fulfill the engagement, and this feature of the entertainment was omitted, but there was enough without it. The program was a good one, but its length was doubled from the fact that every number received an encore. Including some of the encores, the program consisted of the following numbers:

By the accidental discharge of a shotgun in his own hands, John G. Jumper was instantly killed at Libby Saturday afternoon.

As the story is told, Mr. Jumper was going to Coos City, and had with him land. He stood tapping the butt of the gun on the ground, and, in some manner, the jar caused the discharge of the piece. The entire charge struck him in the head, killing him instantly.
