POPULARIZING SUMMER OUTING.

The Journal free seaside outing contest has done a great deal to popularize summer outings at the seashore and in the mountains. A larger number of people than ever before have taken themselves or their families on a vacation.

Voting to give some one a seaside outing has put in the minds of many the thought: Why not take one ourselves? Doing something sensible for another has put many in the mood to do something sensible for themselves.

It was not the large vote that the winner in the Journal contest received—one-third as many as the successful candidate for governor—that was the most significant feature of the ballot. It was the thousands of votes cast for all the candidates—the expression of good will on the part of each one voting—the desire to give a little pleasure to another—to do something unselfish—that was grand.

The seaside voting contest was educational in the highest sense of the term. It taught well-doing by example and popularized what all agree is a sensible practice—a break in the treadmill round of the year's duties.

Only one of the young ladies voted for could go, but the votes cast for the others were not thrown away. They all exert an influence in the grand process of developing a better and more unselfish citizenship.

Those who oppose the flat salary reform have never had the courage or the ability to present a single argument in favor of their position. In fact they do not pretend to have an argument.

The gang of shift politicians who put that in the Republican state platform and now belittle and seek to get the party to break their own pledges do not rely on argument for their hold on this state.

They rely on their ability to pack a state convention and make the ticket and then on the immense Republican majority to elect the men they put up. They do not rely on merit or ability or public confidence.

They used to argue: Do you want your daughter to marry a nigger? Now they scare people with: Are you going to put the Democratic party in power? They make loyalty to Republicanism their dirty work.

That faction of the Republican party know they can hold up the state printer or secretary of state for $2000 to $5000 in a state campaign under the present system of fees and perquisites.

They know that under a flat salary law those state officials would have no such sums at their disposal. If they spent money in politics the people would know where it came from and who it belonged to.

Hence the gang who manage politics at Portland and all their cheap and nasty satellites in state politics and federal hangers-on oppose any change in the present system of paying state officials.

Abraham Lincoln once said: Let us have faith, the right makes might, and to that faith let us, to the end dare to do our duty, as we understand it.

THE PRESIDENT AS TRAVELER.

President Roosevelt is the greatest traveler and man of action who has ever sat in the presidential chair. He proposes to literally cover the United States with his journeys.

If the plans which he has mapped out do not fall of fulfillment the president will spend very little time in the national capital during the interval between July and October of the present year—not nearly so much in the aggregate, perhaps, as he will spend on railroad trains in one part of the country or another. The chief executive inaugurates his wanderings with a journey through New England, visiting all those states. Then will come a Western tour, which will carry the strenuous official through Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Minnesota, and probably some other states. Still later the president will speed to the heart of the Lone Star state, and the return journey from Texas is scheduled to embrace a bear-hunt in the swamps of Mississippi and visits to various other points in the South, and possibly to Kansas and Nebraska as well.

If he wants an exciting bear hunt let him come to the forests of the Biella Indian reservation in Lincoln county.

But What of the Bear? A chase for the Briton who wins the fight.

A crown for the king, a piame for the knight. And a hand to the hoary yeoman; A cheer for the Briton who wins, but yields.

The fields to the men and the men to the fields. For he is a generous foe-man.

But a greater cheer for the broken Deer.

MISSING TICKET AGENT

Who stood by his guns when defeat was sure. And the world looked on unheeding; Who found in the courts of the earth no friend, Yet struggled on to the bitter end, Breathless, beaten and bleeding.

Aye, a cheer goes up for the men who win, And the drum and the cannon loud shall din Their riotous celebrations, Bu, a deeper cheer for the men who choose

In liberty's cause to fight and lose! For such is the hope of nations. —Edmund Vance Cooke.

JOURNAL X-RAYS.

Portland has gone circus-mad. A show with five rings performing at one time would make anybody daff.

This is the season of the year when the summer boarder asks the farmer with a pruning knife if the prunes are ripe yet.

If the presidential happens to be born with a silver spoon in his mouth he naturally expects it to choke him sooner or later.

What a blessed privilege it is for us to pay $100 for an American-made, tariff-protected typewriter that is sold in London for $55.

Robert Burns' cottage at Alloway is one of the literary shrines in Great Britain which still attract hosts of pilgrims. In one day recently it was visited by 2528 people.

"Willie," said the mother one day, "I shall tell your father tonight that you have been bad."

"Oh, mamma," said Willie, "can't you keep a secret?"—Little Chronicle.

Governor Geer has turned out to be quite an author the past summer. His write-ups of his trips to Mt. Adams and Crater Lake have been read with interest by the people. It may be well for the governor to keep in mind that in this way he can earn his livelihood in a way that will not harm his office.

The supreme court has decided that the shade trees in front of a man's residence, although on public property, belong to him. The case in which the decision was rendered was one in which a property owner sued a telephone company for cutting off the limbs of his trees. The decision is of interest to all property holders and corporations.

The Journal's matrimonial contest for the state fair is waxing warm. There are already some good prospects for marriageable couples, and they are not of the unwilling kind, either. The presents to be bestowed are good having, and the average young couple not only wants to be married, but also wants the necessities to begin housekeeping with.

A drummer who recently came up through California this morning was telling of the heat he had experienced in that state. The figures were terrific, all up in the hundreds, as high as 121 in the shade, so hot that if one put one's hand out of a car window into the sun it would scorch it. At one hotel he wrote 27 letters with the temperature at 111, and then went back to San Francisco and spent a week recuperating. He thought Oregon quite a relief.

Cuba is going to borrow $15,000,000, of which $4,000,000 is to be loaned to planters and stockraisers, $2,000,000 is to pay the expenses of the junta in New York during the revolution, and most of the rest is to buy the Cuban revolutionary army. As Cuba is supposed to be without other debts, and is in the throes of an industrial and financial crisis, this measure, while, under ordinary circumstances, a bad policy, seems not only justifiable, but unshakable.—Budget.

A communication from the Marshall ministerial union press committee calls forth the following unequal statement from the editors: "In view of the outrageous libel on the chastity of our girls, which is made in the above article, we wish to call special attention to the fact that the Coast Mail is not responsible for the assertions made in this column. To say that '40 per cent of our girls form habits in violation of the laws of chastity' is so damnable a lie that it is silly. We are happy to be able to say that none of our Marshall ministers is the author of the article, and the union has evidently been imposed upon by another foul-minded sensationalist."

A San Francisco drummer recently made a trip up through the valley with his wife, in order to let her see the country. Before reaching Albany she complained that no honey was set on the hotel tables, as it is in California.

"Wait," he said "until we get to Albany, the Revere House always has honey."

They finally reached Albany with sweet anticipations. But there happened to be no honey on the Revere House table. When the waitress came in the following occurred:

"Where's my honey?"

"Oh, she's not here now, she's gone."

What followed behind the scenes has not been learned.—Albany Dome.

His Disappearance From Portland Explained

Sensational Story of a Former Marriage

The Oregon Daily Journal prints the following in reference to a well-known Portland man's escapade:

A sensational report is going the rounds that Victor A. Schilling, city ticket agent of the O. R. & N. Company, who mysteriously disappeared some time ago, met a former wife in Spokane, and was induced, under threats of exposure, to leave his Portland bride and resume his obligations to his first marriage. It will be remembered that Schilling was the trusted employe of the R. & N. Company for a number of years, and when the Union Pacific and Oregon Short Line and the Southern Pacific were merged, and the several offices of the company in the city were combined with those of the O. R. & N. Company, such was the confidence reposed in Mr. Schilling that he was given charge of all. Several months ago, after a short engagement, he was married to Miss Lena Shelby, daughter of Eugene Shelby, who is with Wells, Fargo & Co., and after a few weeks of what apparently was a happy marriage he suddenly disappeared from Portland.

He was then seen in a hotel in Spokane, and from there all traces of him were lost. His wife declared there were

No Domestic Infidelities and could assign no cause to his sudden disappearance. It was feared for awhile that he had met with foul play, all kinds of rumors were reported, but nothing definite could be learned. It is now alleged, however, that when in Spokane several years ago he met and fell in love with a young woman there whom he finally

Married in a Quiet Way, but in time tired of her, and left her without the formality of a divorce. After returning to Portland he heard nothing of his wife for several years, and naturally supposed that the affair had quieted down, and he would bear nothing more of it. In his marriage with her it is not known, but it is supposed, that he used a fictitious name, and that she lost trace of him for the time. Now the report states that when in Spokane this time he again met his former wife, who recognized him, and demanded an explanation, and when he told her that he was happily married again, having considered it all settled between them, she said she had first claim, and would expose him unless he went with her.

The report supposes that he could not stand the public criticism that would follow an exposure of this kind, and hastily

Decided to Disappear until such time as he could settle matters and then return to his young wife in Portland. It is claimed that, after leaving Spokane, he went to Mexico, where he is now in the employ of a railroad company, and is living with his former wife.

When Mr. Suttle, of the O. R. & N. passenger department, was seen this morning he stated that he had no knowledge of Schilling whatever since his disappearance. A number of other railroad men also said that they positively had no definite information of him since leaving Mr. Shelby, father of Mrs. Schilling, said: "The people have a wrong impression when they think Lena knows where her husband is. She, too, is in constant communication with his people, and to my knowledge they are as deeply mystified as any one. We can assign

No Reason for His Actions and my daughter is confident that he will return to her some time. If there had been any domestic unhappiness she could certainly not disguise her feelings so completely, and it is my candid opinion that he did not tire of her, as was reported. Of course, it is possible that he could have committed some error earlier in his life, and have been called to account for it, but we have nothing to make us think that true, and will be greatly surprised if it turns out that way."

Last year Wasco county harvested about 300,000 bushels of wheat. The crop this year is fully 15 per cent better than it was last year, so it is safe to calculate that the output of wheat will be 300,000 bushels, all of which is No. 1.

Up to Sherman county drivers of teams hauling combined harvesters have adopted a novel plan for urging along lazy animals. They have discarded the long whip, and are using instead the air gun. Whenever any one of the 25 horses lags, the driver takes a shot at it with the air gun. The shot does not hurt any worse than a stroke from a whip, and does not excite the rest of the team.

Next Saturday's big double number will have an up-to-date article by "Young Republican" on the timber land steels, and a rare letter from Berlin by Mrs. Lottie Heinenbrand-Gratham, who is to remain in the German capital until next spring.

TRACY'S INFLUENCE

IT LIVES AFTER HIM AND HAS MANY VICTIMS — CORVALLIS PEOPLE TOUCHED BY IT.

An evil genius seems to settle on whatever was associated with Tracy. In the East, an old mother's life is embittered by the awful career of her son. In almost every state west of Wyoming, widows and orphans mourn because of the sorrow he sent to their homes.

The baneful influence of the outlaw even extends to division of rewards. There is trouble over the Merrill reward, because Tracy killed his pal. There is bickering over the Tracy reward, and there is no telling who will get it.

There seems no limit to the influence of the dead outlaw's evil spirit. It has entered Corvallis, that never saw Tracy, and that has always been a God-fearing and well behaved town. Like a hoary frost on a June potato vine, the outlaw's blight has struck the pool box of the local sports, who bought tickets on Tracy's capture. There was fun and benign contentment among the ticket-holders until Tracy killed himself in Farmer Eddy's wheat field. That happened about 8 o'clock the night of August 5th. One local sport held a ticket good for the entire contents of the pool box if Tracy's capture or killing occurred from August 1st to 5th, inclusive.

But Tracy's body was not found until the morning of the 6th, and the pool ticket of another man in good for that date. The finding is the climax of capture, and some of the ticket-holders claim, would be the only judicial act to constitute claim to the contents of the pool box.

Over this question the ticket-holders differ, and the potato blight, or brown rot, or swine plague, or whatever it is, of the fateful outlaw's evil genius is upon their associations. They argue and debate. They conjure up questions of jurisprudence, international law, justification by faith, government by injunction and the sanctity of marriage. The settlement is as difficult as a dispute over a church creed. They cannot go to the courts, because the pot isn't big enough to satisfy the lawyers. They dare not resort to arbitration, for fear that the arbitrators will get struck with the Tracy blight, and confiscate the pool box. Though they don't know it, their troubles are complicated by the fact that they are victims of the outlaw's spell, and when they find it out they are nearly certain to give the pool box to an orphan asylum or a missionary in heathen lands, as a sort of sacrificial offering to Tracy's ghost.—Corvallis Times.

Several Waters.

Water which contains a greater or less amount of mineral matter in solution. Rain water has the smallest percentage of solid impurities of any and therefore it is taken as the standard variety of soft water.

The terms soft and hard, however, as applied to water are scientifically considered purely relative.

Water is usually reckoned to be "soft" when it contains less than one five-thousandth part of its weight of mineral ingredients and "hard" when it contains more than one four-thousandth.

Soft water has the property of easily forming a lather with soap and is therefore suitable for washing purposes, while hard water will only form a lather, and that imperfectly, with considerable difficulty.

A mineral water has more than one two-thousandth of its weight of natural dissolved solids, and a medicinal water is a variety of mineral water containing a varying percentage of dissolved natural solid or gaseous drugs.

Sewing as a business is an exacting and exhausting occupation. Long hours, fine work, poor light, unhealthy atmosphere—these are only some of the things which tire the nerves and hurt the general health. Often there is a disease which causes backache or headache and the working of the sewing machine under such conditions is akin to torture.

Thousands of women who work have written grateful letters to Dr. R. V. Pierce, whose "Favorite Prescription" has cured their womanly ills and established their general health. "Favorite Prescription" establishes regularity, dries an unhealthy and offensive drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free, and so avoid the indefinite questionings, offensive examinations and obnoxious local treatments deemed necessary by some physicians. All correspondence private. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

I take great pleasure in recommending Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for female weaknesses. I was troubled for six years, and writes Dr. Pierce for advice. I tried his Favorite Prescription and it cured me. I feel like a new person and I thank Dr. Pierce for my health. I have had a burden to my mind and heart. I have had a great many of my friends about the great medicine I took.
