

Its a Shame

To have to slash prices on fine summer goods the way we are doing, but our fall goods are coming in and room must be made for them. It's a snap, though, for the housewife of economical mind, for it is the chance of her life to get beautiful summer fabrics of all kinds at ridiculously low prices. For instance: We've taken the bulk of our Lawns, Dimities, Organdies, Swisses, etc., at prices varying from 12c to 30c per yard and put them all on a table at the astonishing price of 14c a yard.

Then there's a line of Summer Corsets, good values at 60c—that we're closing out at 39c.

SHIRT WAISTS take up room that we must have for winter goods, and we've cut the very life out of the prices of them all.

Summer underwear and Hosiery can be bought now at our store for less than you would suppose.

Come in and see if there isn't something you can use at a SNAP PRICE. Our clerks are all polite and courteous and if you don't buy there's no harm done. We will gladly show you what bargains are, and we think you won't be able to restrain the temptation to buy.

Help Wanted!

We need a few experienced clerks for the fall and winter business, and two industrious boys as delivery and errand boys.

Call at office between 8 and 10.

OATS AND WHEAT POOLED

57 Cents Received for Wheat and Oats High

Final Bids to Be Opened Wednesday Evening

The Waldo hills farmers, who have for several years successfully pooled their grain, have sold their wheat to Mr. Gardner, of Stayton, for 57 cents per bushel. There were about 10,000 bushels in the lot. Bids have been received for the oats of 73 cents for spring at 75 cents for the fall oats, but these bids have been rejected. New bids for the oats will be opened Wednesday evening of this week, and the parties interested say that unless these bids come up to their expectations the oats, of which there are about 90,000 bushels, will be stored for the better prices that are sure to follow later in the year.

The farmers claim that they have thus far made about 5 cents per bushel on their grain by pooling, and at this rate they will have cleared $500 on their 10,000 bushels of wheat already sold. At the same advance on their 90,000 bushels of oats they will net an other gain of $4500, or a clear gain of $5000 for their community.

PERSONAL

R. E. McCowan, of Silverton, spent Sunday in this city.

C. W. Evans has returned from an outing at Foley Springs.

Miss Mildred Lister, of Eugene, was registered at the Hotel Salem, Sunday.

Paul Vandersol has returned from a three weeks' outing in the McKonzie country.

Mr. Frank Barry and Miss Anna Barry departed Sunday for Kirksville, Missouri, where they will complete their course in osteopathy. They will be gone about five months.

Win. Roger Anderson returned last night from Seattle, where he has been attending the races. He says he came back to look after his monkey, but at the same time says he had run out of money. In fact his money runs short very easily at a horse race. At all events he is back, and says he had a good time.

Spring Wagons Farm Hacks Delivery Wagons

The Studebaker people make the most complete line of these goods that can be found anywhere, and a prospective purchaser can always find something to suit him.

We have had a particularly large trade this year on our ever popular No. 655 village wagon. This is a 15-inch axle, with gears and wheels in proportion, comes with either pole or shafts, with brake or without, and with top if desired. We have sold dozens of these for general purpose hacks, and you'll find them on the farm, on the street, used as delivery wagons, used also for fruit wagons and for most any purpose you could name. Notwithstanding the large number of them in constant use all over the valley the question of repairs is one that never comes up. They are "Studebaker made" throughout. They are the cheapest wagon in all the valley for their size and durability. The first cost of certain others is a trifle less, but first cost don't begin to tell the tale.

Heavy hacks, too, and delivery wagons of all sorts. We carry a good line of these, and can always procure for you on short notice anything you may desire out of the regular line. The assortment carried in the Portland repository of Studebaker Bros. is immense, and we can always fill your orders.

For the fall trade we have also some special bargains in open buggies and road wagons. Some that fit the popular purpose. We can make it pay you to see these. We bought them cheap and sell them for less.

And wagons, too. We are sending out a large quantity of farm wagons these days in regular gears, and also in the half truck or header gears. Studebakers are the best, because they are made best. They cost a fraction more because they are better. If others were as good they would sell for the same price. They won't bring the same price, so the manufacturers have to sell them for less.

Call and make your own comparison.

SUPREME COURT ADJOURNS

Decree Modified in Flouring Mills vs. State

Court Practically Up-to-Date in Hearing of Cases

The Oregon supreme court at noon today handed down four decisions and adjourned, subject to the call of the court. Since the work of Oregon's appellate court is practically up to date, it is probable that the court will not be reconvened before the regular October term.

The cases decided today were: Salem Flouring Mills Company, respondent, vs. Wm. P. Lord, governor, and other state officers, appellants; from Marion county; R. P. Boise, judge; modified; opinion by Justice Wolverton.

This was an action brought by the Flouring Mills Company to restrain the defendants from unlawfully diverting water from Mill Creek, where that stream passes through the penitentiary enclosure. The Salem Flouring Mills acquired ownership and control of this water power, that was granted the Willamette Woolen Mills Company by the state legislature in 1856. The water was brought from the Santiam river to Salem via Mill creek. Nine years later the state of Oregon was given the right to appropriate from the stream at the penitentiary all the water that could be pumped through a pipe two inches in diameter, for the use of that institution, the insane asylum and the fair grounds. Instead, the state has been using two pipes, each four inches in diameter, through which to divert the water. The supreme court affirms the decree of the circuit court in all but one particular, and that is that the plaintiff company is not entitled to the natural flow of the water in Mill creek, but only to that part of the water of the creek as has been through its agency diverted into Mill creek from the Santiam river. The appellate court affirms the decision of Judge Boise that the state be restrained from "diverting from Mill creek for use at the state institutions, or otherwise, any water in excess of such amount as can be pumped through a pipe not exceeding two inches in diameter. The water power to be used for propelling machinery and for mechanical purposes is not questioned. Whatever pumps and appliances have been put into place, including water pumps and mains for the purpose of diverting water and applying it to use, have become the property and are now in the possession of the state, so that the decree cannot extend to affect them in any particular."

John Kiernan, respondent, vs. V. Kratz, appellant; appeal from Multnomah county; A. F. Sears, Jr., judge; reversed and new trial ordered; opinion by Chief Justice Moore.

Lusetta P. Beers, appellant, vs. C. A. Aylsworth, respondent; appeal from Multnomah county; A. L. Frazer, judge; reversed; opinion by Chief Justice Moore.

Leander Lewis, respondent, vs. J. E. Blackburn, appellant; appeal from Multnomah county; M. C. George, judge; affirmed; opinion by Justice Bean.

Petitions for rehearing were denied in the following cases: G. D. Simmons, respondent, vs. The Oregon Railway & Navigation Company, appellant, from Umatilla county, and Turner Oliver, respondent, vs. James H. and W. R. Hutchinson, from Union county.

Wright Not in Lane County.

It now develops that Harry Wright, the supposed accomplice of Tracy and Merrill, is not in Lane county, as has been reported. Sheriff Withers has made a thorough investigation of the entire country, and failed to find any trace of the outlaw. The following on the subject is taken from the Eugene Guard.

Some time ago the Guard gave publicity to the report from the Wolf Creek country, about 25 miles west of Eugene, that Harry Wright, the convict, who is wanted on suspicion of having aided Tracy and Merrill in escaping from the Salem penitentiary, was in that vicinity in hiding from the officers, and being concealed by friends or relatives.

Sheriff Withers made a thorough investigation of the report, and sent out a man who has a personal acquaintance with Wright, and who knows every foot of that country. He found that the report emanated from the fact that a man with a revolver strapped to his belt, and who seemed to be in a big hurry, was seen to pass along the county road. He somewhat resembled Wright, but it was found out that his name was Murphy, and that he was going into that country on timber business.

It is said that Wright would know better than to go into his old time neighborhood, as his folks have moved away, and everyone else there would be only too glad to inform the officers of his whereabouts and secure the $200 reward offered. His thieving proclivities exercised in that vicinity before he was sent to the reform school, and eventually to the penitentiary, made him decidedly unpopular.

TRACY SHIELDED ACCOMPLICE

Outlaw Destroyed Rifle With Which He Made Escape

Posse Has Filed Claim for the Reward Money

It has developed that Tracy, the dead outlaw, by destroying or hiding the original rifle with which he made his escape from the Oregon state penitentiary, has protected his accomplice, and has made the identification of the gun, and the detection of the party that delivered the firearm to him almost an impossibility. The Salem correspondent to the Oregonian has the following:

Another remarkable instance of the truthfulness of Outlaw Harry Tracy developed today, when it was discovered that the barrel of the rifle which Tracy had when he was killed was not the barrel of the rifle which Tracy used in making his escape. This fact destroys what seemed to be a probable clue that would lead to the detection of the person who carried the rifle into the prison.

Tracy told a number of persons that he would exchange the barrel of his rifle for another in order that no one should discover where it came from. While he was at the Eddy farm, near Davenport, a day or so before he was killed, Tracy told Eddy that he had placed another barrel in the stock of his rifle. He said at the time that the barrel did not fit the stock, and he found it necessary to use a piece of leather to make it firm. This story of Tracy's was given no particular attention, but Eddy related the circumstances to Attorney H. A. Myers a few days ago, and on his visit to Salem told Mr. Myers the story to Governor Geer. Governor Geer went to the penitentiary and examined the rifle, whereupon he found the facts just as Tracy had stated them. The barrel now in the stock is a very poor fit, and could not have been made serviceable without the use of a piece of leather. The barrel which belonged to the stock was probably thrown into a stream or well, where it will never be found. The barrel now in the stock was taken from a stolen rifle. The number was stamped upon the barrel, and there is no means of identifying the stock.

Will File Claim for Reward.

H. A. P. Myers, of Davenport, Washington, one of the attorneys for the five men who captured and returned the body of Harry Tracy, has returned home after having had a consultation with Governor Geer and Secretary of State Dunbar, as to the proper plan to follow in collecting the reward of $1500. After becoming acquainted with the Oregon law on the subject of rewards and claims against the state, Mr. Myers stated that he would file a claim for the reward in the office of the secretary of state, and will support it with affidavits showing the right of his clients to the money.

At a committee meeting of Capital Typographical Union No. 219, on Sunday afternoon, it was decided to take an active part in the Labor Day demonstration, to be held in this city on next Monday. The members of the union will wear a uniform, consisting of white cap and trousers; leather belt and a blue necktie, no selection being made in the matter of a coat. P. J. Beckett, president of the union, was selected as grand marshal of this division of the parade. It was decided to provide a carriage for the lady members of the union, while the gentlemen will act as an escort on foot. An invitation was extended to the union pressmen of the city asking them to join the printers in the demonstration. A special meeting of the union will be held next Sunday, when further details will be arranged. It was decided to fine members $10 for non-attendance in the parade.
