JOURNAL X-RAYS. There are still no petitions on file to reduce the city limits.

The Greater Salem Club should have 500 members. Query: Are you letting your neighbor pull the load?

Fairmount Park Wouldn't that sound nice if it belonged to the city? It may be a thousand years, my own Columbia.

The Journal has an improved telegraphic report, and hopes to appear Saturday as an eight-page paper, with several improvements.

The first fatality attending the President's hunting trip South, was the killing of a negro track-walker by his fast train. Let us pray that he come back alive and well.

Salem Press Club meets tonight. It is to be hoped that no concealed weapons will be carried. The club has one member in the city government, one in the legislature, and came very near having one in the penitentiary.

The Portland Telegram has an editorial to the effect that the next legislature will necessarily be an expensive one, and in the same paper prints a large picture of the Hon. Henry E. McGinn.

R. D. Hume, who has caught about all the fish in Southwestern Oregon, is to establish headquarters at Salem, and draw the net for a United States senatorship. Well, he is a good business man, and the state might do worse.

While there are some bad breaks in Mr. Flagg's record in the legislature, he also did a lot of good things, and on the whole the good overbalances the bad. This is said without intention to support Mr. Flagg, should he be a candidate for city reelection and police judge. We do not believe the people can get a man to fill that office any better than Mr. Judah has filled it for four years past. He is a horse of the right color, and has more than earned his keep, and will prove too swift on the track for anything that has been mentioned yet for the place. Mr. Flagg will some day, we predict, find his true "metre," as the French say, and make a success of it.

There is a big scheme being organized to hold up the business men for a large amount for a Portland Eastern advertising proposition. Beyond the "Adam and Eve" pamphlet prepared by the Salem Commercial Club, this city should engage in such enterprises. Good government, good schools, and some good public improvements are a better program.

The Citizens' Informal committee has acted with great wisdom in requesting the entire city administration to continue for another term. They will go into the campaign with an unbroken front, with fully redeemed pledges, and standing solely for the financial honor and integrity of the Capital City. New problems will have to be faced if it is doubtful if the city can be kept within its present borders yet if they are extended it should only be done after the most careful deliberation of the matter, from a standpoint of good business for the whole community. The suburbs should be regarded as a sacred trust to be held and administered in the interests of the home-builders, and the sanitary welfare of their families. A city is a growing organism, and with what nature has done for us, Salem will be come the most beautiful city in the Northwest, as it is now the best administered one. These are matters for pride and consideration.

The Salem Journal is in favor of a special session of the legislature to appropriate $500,000 to the Lewis and Clark Exposition—Woodburn Independent.

The Journal petitions were all for a special session to enact a flat salary law and put the Referendum into effect. But it would jar the seventy-story intellect of the Woodburn man to tell the whole truth about anything. The Journal pointed out to the Portland people the impossibility of getting their appropriation without passing laws to put at least an equal amount of revenue into the treasury. For this The Journal was rated among

The papers opposed to the fair appropriation. The Journal satly says it believes the state of Oregon has made a serious mistake. If there is going to be a Lewis and Clark Centennial at all, in not getting in and providing for it three months before the other state legislatures meet. When our state is trying to do something to get into the range of vision of the westward coming millions of immigrants it was an imperative necessity to do that thing early, and with sufficient vigor to attract the attention of the world. It always pays to do the right thing, and do it right.

The name of John H. McNary has been repeatedly used in connection with a place on the Republican ticket for mayor. Mr. McNary informs The Journal that he is not a candidate, never has been, and will not be a candidate, and will not accept the nomination if tendered to him by the Republicans or any other party. He has all he can attend to as deputy district attorney for Marion county, and wants no further official responsibility in public affairs. He is an active member of the Greater Salem Commercial Club, and chairman of the joint committee on charter amendments. Mr. McNary has a right to be asked to be excused, and respectfully requests that his name not be further used.

DIRECT LAW MAKING

Discussed by an Old Republican Farmer

Who Writes People With a Great Big "P" Always

Ed. Journal: There seems to be trouble in the mind of some men who are engaged in journalism concerning the referendum or direct legislation amendment. It has been frequently asserted that there should be an extra session of the legislature called for certain purposes, one of which is to put into operation the amendment above mentioned. Now, while I am in favor of an extra session for a flat salary law, I cannot see any reason for special legislation to put into effect the Initiative and Referendum; these propositions were submitted to the people of Oregon last June, and were settled beyond any question of doubt, and are now in full force. In reading the act we find two acts combined: one for submission, and one for operation; the first part sets forth the powers reserved to the people, and the second the basis of petition and method of procedure. Now, what more do we necessarily have to have? I say emphatically nothing more! All that the people of Oregon have to do is to proceed according to the law enacted by the two legislatures, and adopted by the people. The latter clause of the law says: "Petitions and orders for the Initiative and Referendum shall be filed with the secretary of state, and, in submitting the same to the people, he and all other officers shall be guided by the general laws and the act submitting this amendment until legislation shall be especially provided therefor."

Now, Mr. Republican and Democrats, what are you going to do about it? If you call a special session, or any other session, and pass an act to kill or cripple Direct Legislation, the people can have it submitted, as the law now provides, and we will see which is the greatest, the people or the state legislature?

We are aware of the fact that Direct Legislation is a bitter dose for Oregon politicians and their friends to swallow. The leaders of both old parties are opposed to it, and will do everything they can to kill or injure it. They want to foist some of their big appropriations onto the state of Oregon this winter. This is why they are anxious to throw dirt at Direct Legislation. They are afraid that if you call a special session, or any other session, and pass an act to kill or cripple Direct Legislation, the people can have it submitted, as the law now provides, and we will see which is the greatest, the people or the state legislature?

I say to the people of Oregon, let us stand by the amendment and the law, as it now is, and defend ourselves and our homes against this band of buccanniers who are always devising schemes to tax the public for local and private benefits. The ballot is the most powerful weapon of defense that we have; let us use it intelligently, as American citizens should, and not like party slaves, as we have done in the past. OLD REP. FARMER. McKee, Or., Nov. 10, 1902.

[The old farmer is all right in theory, but we fear in practice he will find the politician circumventing him. They will attack the amendment in various ways. They will call a constitutional convention. They will invent an emergency clause. They will use the amendment not in force and until it is legislated upon. They will use a contradictory and...

MISS IDA M. SNYDER, Treasurer of the Brooklyn East End Art Club.

Menstrual irregularities are generally the beginning of a woman's troubles. With the vitality at a low ebb, the blood weakens, the digestion disordered, she goes about pale-faced, hollow-eyed and happy, a pitiable contrast to the blooming health of her former self. Not over 1,000,000 women have found health again by taking Wine of Cardui. As a regulator of the menstrual period Wine of Cardui has never been known to fail. It has seldom failed to restore perfect health, even in the most persistent and aggravated cases of weakness. Miss Ida M. Snyder, of No. 535 Bergen Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., has used Wine of Cardui and she says it helped her into a new life. Health to Miss Snyder is worth a great deal. She is an attractive young woman with intellectual attainments and she occupies the position of Treasurer of the Brooklyn East End Art Club. This position marks her as a person of intellect, culture and refinement and it speaks highly of the respect and trust her fellow women have in her. She writes: "If women would pay more attention to their health we would have more happy wives, mothers and daughters, and if they would use more intelligence in the matter of medicines, observing results, they would find that the doctor's prescriptions do not perform the many cures they are given credit for. "In consulting with my druggist he advised McEwen's Wine of Cardui and Theodor's Black-Draught, and so I took it and have every reason to thank him for a new life opened up to me with restored health, and it only took three months to cure me." You may secure the same relief as Miss Snyder, if you take Wine of Cardui as she took it. Theodor's Black-Draught is the companion medicine of Wine of Cardui and it is a liver and bowel regulator which assists greatly in effecting a cure. If you take these medicines according to directions, the relief and cure is simple. Some cases are cured quickly and others take longer. Remember how Miss Snyder took Wine of Cardui and has health. The same medicines are offered you to-day.

'Chop! Chop! Chop!' Tiresome, isn't it, to get down the chopping bowl and knife and prepare something for the next meal? But the tiresome method is out of date.
