

DINING JUSTICE HARLAN

Celebrate Twenty-fifth Anniversary of His Elevation to the Supreme Court

Leaks Out That He Was a Kentucky Colonel

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8.—Eminent members of the bench and bar, distinguished representatives of the federal and state judiciary, are to gather about the banquet board at the new Willard Hotel tomorrow to do honor to Justice John Harlan of the Supreme Court of the United States. The banquet is to be given by the Washington Bar Association in celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the elevation of the justice to the Supreme Court bench. It is designed to make the affair a national one. The President and his Cabinet, the Justices of the United States Supreme Court, the Speaker of the House, the President of the senate and some other men of note will be guests of the bar, and about a thousand invitations have been sent to prominent lawyers in all parts of the country. Justice John Marshall Harlan will soon celebrate his seventieth birthday. He is a graduate of the celebrated Center College, Kentucky, in which so many noted Americans imbibed their early draughts of learning. After his graduation entered on the study of law at Transylvania University now the University of Kentucky, and on receiving his degree took up the practice of his profession in Frankfort and afterward in Louisville. He served as colonel of the Tenth Kentucky Regiment in the Union army under General Thomas for two years, but resigned his commission on the death of his father in 1863. About this time he entered on his political career, filling the office of Attorney General of Kentucky until 1867, when he returned to the practice of his profession in Louisville. He served as a member of the Louisiana Commission and also as a member of the Behring Sea tribunal in 1893.

Justice Harlan was appointed to the Supreme Court bench by President Hayes on November 29, 1877, and he took the oath of office on December 10 following. His length of service on the Supreme bench has seldom been surpassed, only seven or eight justices having exceeded it. The most noted of these are Justice Field, who died a few years ago after having served thirty-four years, and Chief Justice Marshall, who had a like term to his credit.

HANNA GIVES THE GLAD HAND

To the Labor Leaders of America

Expressed Satisfaction of Federations Work

English Reformer Pays Tribute to American Methods

New York, Dec. 8.—At the opening session of the executive committee of the Civic Federation ex-President Cleveland was not present, but Secretary Eastley said he was expected tomorrow. Alfred Mosley, the British reformer and philanthropist, and Karl Buezn, consul-general for Germany, were present; also D. J. Keefe, from the International Longshoremen's Union; James O'Connell, from the International Association of Machinists, and President M. Lynch, from the International Typographical Union.

When John Mitchell entered, prior to the formal opening at 11 o'clock, Mark Hanna warmly shook hands, and said: "Hello, John, glad to see you again." Senator Hanna then made the opening address, in which he said that he took particular pleasure in noting that the masses of the American people had demonstrated, by the experience of the past year, that they were in sympathy with the federation and its work. He touched incidentally on the anthracite strike, and said he believed no question in the world was paramount to that of good relationship between capital and labor.

Hanna closed by saying that it was the purpose of the meeting to discuss the economic questions at issue fully, seeking advice of thoughtful and experienced men of both sides. Governor Low then made an address, welcoming the Federation in behalf of New York. Hanna then introduced Mosley, who, in the course of his address, said that the Civic Federation would benefit not America alone, but the workers of the entire world. He came here to see America's methods, and was glad to say that he had been convinced that they were much better than those of England. He wished to express his gratitude to both American employers and workmen for the uniform courtesy extended to him during his visit to this country. He says the wages here are infinitely better than in England.
