Child Severely Burned.

The little 6-year-old child of Chas. Sullivan, an employe of the Curtis Lumber Co. at Mill City, was severely burned Monday morning, by her clothing catching fire while standing near the stove. Her clothing was entirely burned off, and her arms, face and ears were severely burned. Her ears were almost burned off. Her mother had stepped across the street to a neighbor's to get some cough medicine for a cold, and left the little girl near the stove, and she does not know just how the clothing caught fire. The child, when she discovered she was on fire, ran into the street, and the wind fanned the flames.

MRS. HELENA BLAU,

Young Milwaukee Society Woman.

Mrs Helena Blau.

TEN thousand cured women have written to tell how Wine of Cardui bestows the blessing of health on every woman who takes it, rich and poor alike. Mrs. Helena Blau, No. 123 Seventh Street, Milwaukee, Wis., is one of the young women whom Wine of Cardui has rescued from a life of suffering. She writes:

"Wine of Cardui is certainly 'worn out' women's best friend and I am pleased to give my experience with it. A few months ago I caught a severe cold, having been out in inclement weather, which settled all over me, particularly in the abdomen. I was in almost constant pain. I consulted a physician and took his medicine for a month and without any relief. I then decided I would try your medicine and it was a lucky day for me when I did so. I noticed a change in a few days and felt encouraged to continue taking Wine of Cardui, and my patience was rewarded, for in two weeks my pains had left me and I felt like a new woman."

The woman who has suffered from female weakness should do anything within reason to secure health. Wine of Cardui is the medicine that appeals to reasonable women—women who hold operations and cutting in horror—women who know that Nature is the best physician. Wine of Cardui gives women back their health by giving Nature a chance to build up the wasted and diseased tissue. Wine of Cardui regulates the menstrual flow and Nature, when relieved of the drains or of the poisons in the system, makes the functional organs strong and healthy again.

Any woman who is silently suffering untold pains because she is too sensitive to undergo a physician's examination and treatment can find no excuse for not securing relief when Wine of Cardui is offered to her. There is no publicity to deter her. She can take Wine of Cardui in the privacy of her home, with as much assurance of a final cure as though a dozen doctors recommended it. Many physicians do recommend Wine of Cardui to their patients.

Why not get a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui from your druggist today?

THE REFORMER

By Rev. Charles M. Sheldon.

The Reformer is a characteristic Sheldon story in the author's best vein. It is the story of a wealthy young man who gave up home and fortune and the sweetheart who would not follow him into poverty, to devote his life to the work of reform in a great city.

No fiction more popular than the Sheldon stories has ever been offered to the press. While there is always a HIGH MORAL MOTIVE, the stories are not of the goody goody sort. The author paints life as it is, and ALL RIGHT MINDED PERSONS WISH THAT HIS REFORMERS MIGHT BE SUCCESSFUL.

This Great Story will begin in the DAILY JOURNAL on January 17th and will be published as a serial several issues each week. This is the best production of the author, and will be read by more people than any story of the year. If you are not taking The Journal begin now, as this story alone will be worth more than the price.

TO WITNESS HER SON'S INAUGURATION

Mrs. P. H. Chamberlain From Mississippi

Governor-elect's Family to Reside in Portland

The inauguration of Oregon's newly-elected state officers, and more particularly that of Governor-elect Geo. E. Chamberlain, will be witnessed by one happy family group. It consists of Mrs. Geo. E. Chamberlain and six children, of Portland, and the mother of Mr. Chamberlain, Mrs. P. H. Chamberlain, of Natchez, Mississippi, who came alone to Oregon to witness the inauguration of her son as chief of the state. Mrs. Chamberlain is 82 years of age, and a remarkably well preserved woman for that age. It will be the crowning joy of her life to witness the installing of her son to the office to which he was elected last June, marking the last of a number of successful political contests in which he has figured. It has been with pleasing satisfaction and much pride that the mother has noted the favors that have been conferred upon her son by the people of the state.

The members of the Chamberlain family will remain in Salem only this week, until after the inauguration ceremonies, and the legislature has settled down to the regular routine of business, when they will return to Portland, where Governor Chamberlain will hold his residence. While in this city, Mr. Chamberlain will be located at the Cooke residence on Court street, where he has engaged rooms.

Ball Player Suicides.

San Francisco, Jan. 13.—Winnie B. Mercer, pitcher of the all-American ball team, playing here, suicided by placing a gas tube in his mouth at the Occidental hotel. He was formerly with the Washington team and the St. Louis Nationals. He left a note saying: "Tell Mr. VanHorn, Langham Hotel, that Winnie Mercer has taken his life." No motive was given.

Miss Mamie Montgomery, of Albany, is among the employes at the state printing office at present.

NATIONAL BOARD OF TRADE

Considers Postage Rates and Greater Matters

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—The National Board of Trade began its 33d annual meeting here today. About 50 commercial bodies were represented by 200 delegates. The programme of the meeting, which will occupy three days, contemplates the discussion of a wide range of subjects. Among the many resolutions advocated by some one or more of the constituent bodies for discussion at the meeting are the following:

Favoring a 1-cent rate for letter mail locally addressed; favoring a cheap postal system; favoring legislation by congress so as to permit railroads engaged in interstate traffic to enter into pooling arrangements under the supervision of the Interstate Commerce Commission; favoring the creation of an executive department of the government, to be known as the department of commerce; favoring improvement on the Ohio river and channel at the mouth of the Mississippi; declaring that commercial expansion is a necessity for the people of the United States; favoring legislation giving the Interstate Commerce Commission full control over rates and power to enforce its rulings and decisions, subject to review by the United States courts; urging the repeal of legislation which limits the retirement of national bank circulation to a total of only $3,000,000 in any one month of the year.

Favorable Talk on Oregon

J. L. Snyder, who recently came to Salem from Pennsylvania to visit with relatives, has written a letter, which recently appeared in the Sullivan county (Pa.) Herald. He states his opinion that, where all advantages are considered, the Willamette valley is the finest he ever saw. 'There is fine water power, lots of timber and the soil is adapted to the raising of all farm products and fruits that are grown in a moderate climate. Grass and vegetation grow luxuriantly. The growth of trees is especially rapid, there being forests of second-growth firs standing so thick that you can scarcely pass between them, many of them large enough for sawing, and all of them grown within the last 30 years. One 'old-timer' that grew on my brother's farm, six miles from Salem, measures eight feet across the stump, and made 26 cords of 4-foot wood, while a long, slim top is left on the ground.

"Salem has good public buildings, wide streets, and all the modern improvements, with plenty of room for 'expansion.'

"Of course, I came to Oregon expecting to find it raining, but there was very little rain until November, since when it has been quite frequent. I am keeping a record of the weather, so that when anyone tells me again that it rains all the time in Oregon, I can show them the 'documents.' Of course, the Wilamette valley is not all of Oregon. I am told there are many varieties of climate and soil within the state."

Wives as Guardians.

Oregon's lawmakers should follow the example of Washington's legislators. It is reported that nearly all the members of the Spokane delegation, at least, will be accompanied to Olympia by their wives who will remain with the ir better halves throughout the session.

The example is a good one.

It is to be hoped that this new departure inaugurated by the Spokane women will have general imitation.

Here in Oregon the presence of legislator's wives at Salem would have a most beneficial effect and be the means of doing away with many embarrassing things, the result of a free-and-easy custom that has always prevailed at the seat of lawmaking durthe legislative sessions.

Restraint is a good thing, even with good husbands—it keeps them straight and free from temptation.

The restraint only comes from the influence exerted by a good wife.

A good wife is everything.—Baker City Democrat.

The following are a few noteworthy occupations carried on by women, which give rather strong indication that unless the course of events change, it is pretty clear that whatever she may do, the twentieth century woman will keep the position she has attained in commercial and professional life.

Miss Daisy Stevenson, of Rochester is one of two women butchers in the United States. Mrs. Emma Van Dusen, recommended as assistant city marshal of Dallas, Texas., carries a gun like a man, and knows how to use the weapon too. Miss Christine Ross of Philadelphia is the only woman who is a certified public accountant under the Regents of the State University. Miss Anita Martin is acquiring a competence raising turkeys in a Texas country town. Miss Jane Stone is an oil speculator owning properties in Mexico as well as in this country. She holds the title to more than a hundred acres of oil land near Trombly, Ohio. Miss Asch, of Aiken, S. C. breeds the best hunting dogs in the state; and another Aiken woman, Miss Louise Cheatham, breeds mocking birds teaches them to sing and sells them to the Northern people who throng this winter resort during the season. Still another Southern girl, Miss Ida Norrell, of Augusta, Ga., has made a field for herself as a perfumery maker. She has her own recipe for distilling Cape Jasmines, and her output is highly appreciated.

Miss Virginia Smith, of New York, bathes cats for members of the Four Hundred who take to feline pets. At one cat show all but one of the prize winners were her clients, and she is prosperous.

Miss Loretta Elliott of Orient, Me., has had years of success as a raiser of race horses. Mrs. M. E. B. Culbertson, of Richmond, Ind., models hands and makes death masks. Mrs. Kate Collins, of Philadelphia, makes dainty cotillion favors at fancy prices and has a big patronage.

A singular occupation is that of Miss Blanch Milton, also a New Yorker. She packs trunks for guests at hotels. The idea came to her as an inspiration, and the first day she tried it she made $17. She often makes as much as $25 a day, and has had to take in her younger sister as an assistant.

Miss Sadie Webb is a mail contractor in Porter Township, Ohio. She has a route thirty-five miles long, which covers five towns. She drives her own wagon, and carries passengers as well as mail.
