

THE DRESS PARADE OF THE SILVERWARE ARMY

An army of choice Silverware holds daily dress parade in the Barr Store. So large, brave and well groomed a Silverware Regiment is not to be found in any other store in Salem. "Everything in Silverware" that expresses the scope of the stock; Orange Spoons, Oyster Forks, Soup Ladles, Tomato Slicers, Salad Forks, Sugar Tongs, Knives, Forks, Tea Spoons, Table Spoons, Dessert spoons; this forms only the briefest sort of extract from our list. The famous R. Wallace brand is our leader. We also have the greatly advertised Rogers Bros., 1847 Silverware. In both, our prices, true to the Barr policy, are decidedly less than it is the custom to charge for these fine wares in other stores.

It is officially announced that Queen Wilhelmina's stay at Schaumburg has had a very beneficial influence on her health, but precautions still have to be observed.

The late king of Saxony, who had a rooted objection to exchanging his old clothes for new ones, is said to have one day sighed for "the good time the old knights had in their armor. They were troubled with no creases."

The crown prince of Germany has developed into an automobile expert. He knows every piece of the machine, and the other day when his automobile broke down the prince himself alighted and repaired the damage.

BITS OF PHILOSOPHY.

If we struggled half as hard to keep down expenses as we do to keep up appearances, we would soon have a bank account.

This little item of "common sense" which we hear so much about as being necessary in the affairs of life is not so common after all.

Some men are so rushed in this world that if they were to die tonight they would want to come downtown in the morning and work until the hour set for the funeral.—American Thresher.

A FISH.

"That," remarked the young trout, "I conclude, is a fly."
"Yes," returned his more experienced companion, "but it's advisable not to jump at conclusions."—Philadelphia Record.

China Pays Indemnity

Washington, Jan. 13.—China has made representations to the powers that, inasmuch as they are unable to pay an installment of the international indemnity in gold, will it be allowed to pay silver, and increase the duties on imports so that hereafter they may be collected in gold instead of silver, at the same figures. America replied that they were willing to accept silver in payment, but can't consent to the collection of duties in gold, which would practically double the present collections.

TURNER BOYS' TRIAL

For Obtaining Money Under False Pretenses

Robert and Andrew McFarlane, of Turner, are having an examination before Justice of the Peace Horgan this afternoon, on the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. The complaining witness is C. G. Ransom, a merchant of that place, who charges that the accused young men sold to him property to which they did not hold the legal title. John A. Carson is conducting the prosecution, while the defendants are represented by G. G. Bingham and P. H. D'Arcy.

Band Will Play Tonight

If the weather is favorable, the Salem Military band will tonight give a concert on the principal business streets of the city. This announcement has been made a number of times, but inclement weather has repeatedly prevented the appearance of the players, as advertised, but there is every indication that the evening will be a delightful one, and there will likely be a large number of people out to enjoy the program, which will include some new music.
