DEAR TO MY HEART IS THE JUNKET.

There is probably no more charming diversion than the legislative junket. It has been much condemned, and is not in great vogue at this season, but has lost none of its old-time alluring charms.

What can be a more enticing picnic than for a few clever senators and representatives, not too many, but good fellows, and mutually interested in their respective "local measures," to go off on a trip to some inland city, and be met by the band and grateful constituents of the home member, all redhot for an appropriation.

Not many of the members are situated so as to enjoy the society of their wives at Salem, and a few of them always find it necessary to have the blue-eyed, yellow-haired stenographer or the brunette Topsy committee clerk go along on such trips.

Then there is a good feed, free entertainment, a public reception, chances to make jolly speeches about "our glorious state" and this "bright and beautiful little city of yours," and other resurrected gags.

The junketing business in Oregon is probably reduced to a minimum. The ways and means committee quietly divided up, and had its members in the sub-committee go over the grounds and buildings of all the local state institutions at the capital.

The day of big junkets may be over in Oregon, but there has been many a nice, little side trip taken, even at this economical season, where a bunch of souls has stolen away from the cares of state to ride out a free pass that will be solemnly charged up as mileage.

But our Oregon log-rollers are not nearly so bad as some of the same profession in other states. Listen to the wall of the San Francisco Chronicle, a Republican paper, lamenting the degeneracy of the Republican legislature of that state:

"The season of junketing is over. Perhaps the sinning of members in this respect may be condoned on the ground that the precedent set by previous legislatures was bad. Many of the latter were greivous offenders. Most of the legislative session was wasted in junketing from one end of the state to the other, the most flimsy excuse being enough to suggest a pleasure party, and a prolonged absence from the halls of legislation. Naturally, the latter days of the session, under such conditions, witnessed the most discreditable scenes and the rushing through of

HOPELESS CASES.

When the doctor leaves and says the case is hopeless, what remains to be done? Nothing, if you will listen to the statements of men and women who were once "hopeless" cases given up by doctors, and who were perfectly and permanently cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

Nothing is more sure than that thousands of men and women with diseased lungs, obstinate coughs, hemorrhage, emaciation and night-sweats, have been restored to perfect health by the use of the "Discovery." Will it cure you?

It has cured in ninety-eight cases out of every hundred where it was given a fair and faithful trial. By that record you have only two chances in a hundred of failure and ninety-eight chances of being restored to perfect health. It is worth trying.

Abram Peetz, Esq., of Rockledge, Oregon Co., Ill., writes: "My wife had a severe attack of pneumonia and lung trouble. The doctors gave her up to die. She commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and she began to improve from the first dose. By the time she had taken eight or ten bottles she was cured, and it was the cause of a large amount of good sold here. I think the 'Golden Medical Discovery' is the best medicine in the world for lung trouble."

vicious bills, immature measures and poorly digested laws, to the prejudice of the best interests of the state. The practice had grown to be a fixed institution, and the members of the present legislature doubtless felt justified in its indulgence. In a limited degree, at least, without imperiling their own standing or the interests of the state. It is a hopeful sign for the rest of the session, however, that they are waking up to its actual necessities. There is enough of the season still left for both houses to do good, honest work."

EASTERN OREGON RECOGNIZED.

The Journal regrets that Henry Downing could not be appointed as superintendent of the pen, but is very much gratified that Eastern Oregon has received substantial recognition at the hands of the Chamberlain administration.

Mr. Wheelon's plea in the legislature for a single committee clerk for the minority of seventeen members, illustrates the condition of the bunchgrass and sage-brush section of Oregon in holding office.

Eastern Oregon and the Willamette valley gave Mr. Chamberlain handsome majorities, and in return have a right to expect consideration at his hands, and The Journal considers his action in naming his first two important appointments, state land agent and prison superintendent, from that section as a proper and appropriate recognition.

Mr. Downing and his friends take their defeat with good grace, and consider that they made a clean fight for the place, and have no regrets or sore places. They think the governor did the best under all the circumstances, and will show him that they are loyal Democrats still, and will not be found faltering in support of the party or its principles because they were turned down.

Charles W. James, the appointee, is about 52 years old, has a family, mostly grown, and has been by occupation a real estate man, and has had some experience in holding offices, and is also possessed of recognized executive ability, and considered a power in the party of his county. His selection will be approved by all Democrats and a great many Republicans in Baker county. His appointment will gain for the governor the friendship of Eastern Oregon Democrats, and he will be socially and in every way an efficient member of the administration. It is said of Mr. James that, while he is a humane man, and will favor reforms in prison management, he will prove a strict disciplinarian and guarantee an excellent business administration at the prison. If he meets these specifications at all reasonably well, the state will have cause for congratulation over his appointment.

Secretary Moody was resigned to Hobson's resignation and accepted it with cheerfulness and alacrity.

JOURNAL X-RAYS.

The 27th day of the session was held in Portland and the 28th will be.

We do not use the word "pants" in speaking of the nether garments of gentlemen. It is trousers.

King Edward has been sick ever since General Miles' visit. Maybe it was the sight of that new uniform.

A tremendous blizzard is reported in the East, but even the rugged edges of it have not struck the state house.

If any of the legislaturemen CAN'T go to Portland to worship, there are about 25 churches at Salem where divine services will be held tomorrow.

Three bills that are imperative, and you'd do well to investigate, Mr. Legislator—the Direct Primary Law, the Fair Salary Law and the Williamson Irrigation Law.

Over in Russia the newspapers are not allowed to say what they believe. Well, that is not so bad. Here it is quite common for them to not believe what they say.

Strange is the ingratitude of man. When some industrious legislator tries to appoint someone to oversee other people's business for them, then other people, ungratefully protest.

Apostle Smoot says he will fight any and all things that stand in his way to the United States senate. Here's a chance for Teddy. He has all kinds of game to his credit except a Smoot.

A BILL FOR THE MINERS

Commission Composed of Five Members

Who Are to Collect Mining Exhibits for the Fair

House Bill No. 229, introduced by Mr. Robbins of Baker and read for the first and second times on January 26, is "For an act to provide for the establishment, maintenance and support of a bureau of mines, to be known as the 'Bureau of Mines of the State of Oregon,' for the appointment of a board of governors and for the duties and powers thereof; for the appointment of a commissioner of mines and deputies and to define their duties and powers; to promote and encourage the collection of minerals and mine products to be used in the mineral exhibit of the Lewis and Clark Centennial and American Pacific Exposition and Oriental Fair; to promote the mineral resources of the State of Oregon, and to make appropriations for and provide for the maintenance of such bureau of mines."

The author, J. H. Robbins, of Sumpter, is a practical mining man. He has been interested in the mineral industries of Eastern Oregon for 30 years, and is now engaged in operations of actual mines. His bill was drafted after careful consultation with mining men of both Eastern and Southern Oregon, and it is the fruitage of their experience during many years of residence in this state, and investigation into the conditions that govern.

From a survey of the various bills that have been offered, the Robbins bill bears the apparent marks of greater wisdom in the handling of mining properties, and it provides for the establishment of a bureau along lines that are practical and comprehensive.

Mining Men on the Commission. One of the distinctive features of the Robbins bill is that it provides for the appointment of a commission of five men as commissioners, or "governors," as the bill names them, with this safeguard against turning the commission into a political machine: "Who shall be citizens of the State of Oregon, not more than three members of them to belong to the same political party, and the chief occupation of whom shall, at the time of their appointment, be that of mining."

It is an axiom that members of such a commission should be practical mining men, and, as most persons will concede, they should not all be residents of Portland. It is understood that Representative Myers has a bill touching the same subject, and providing the naming of members who live in this city.

Manifestly, if experts are to be selected to handle the mining interests of Oregon, they should come from those portions of the state wherein are the mines. Portland should be represented on the commission, but it should not have all of the commission.

Some Practical Provisions. The practical provisions of the bill may be judged by the reading of section 22, which in part is: First—That explosives must be stored in a magazine provided for that purpose alone; said magazine to be placed far enough away from the working shaft or tunnel or incline to ensure the same remaining intact in the event of the entire stock of explosives in said magazine be exploded; that all explosives in excess of the amount required for a shift's work must be kept in said magazine; that no powder or other explosive be stored in underground workings where men are employed; that each mine shall provide and employ a suitable device for thawing and warming powder and keep the same in condition for use; that oils or other combustible substances shall not be kept or stored in the same magazine with explosives.

Second—That the commissioner of mines shall have authority to regulate and limit the amount of nitro powder stored or kept in general supply stores in mining camps or mining towns, where there is no municipal law governing the storage of same.

Third—That oils and other inflammable material shall be stored or kept in a building erected for that purpose, and at a safe distance from the main buildings, and at a safe distance from the powder magazine, and their removal from said building for use shall be in such quantities as are necessary to meet the requirements of a day only.

Fourth—That no person shall, whether working for himself, or in the employ of any person, company or corporation, while loading or charging a hole with nitro-glycerine, powder or other explosive, use or employ any steel or iron tamping bar; nor shall any mine manager, superintendent, foreman or shift boss, or other person having the management or direction of mine labor, allow or permit the use of such steel, iron or other metal tamping bar by the employees under his management or direction.

To Collect Exhibits for the Fair. One of the sections, No. 27, provides for the collection of an exhibit for the Lewis and Clark and the St. Louis Expositions, which latter exhibit, of course, would be kept, or added to, for the fair to be held in Portland. The section reads: "Section 27. It shall be the duty of the board of governors, with the aid and assistance of the commissioner of mines, inspectors and other assistants, to devote so much of their time and of the funds made available for their use as in their judgment may seem proper, toward the collection, preparation, classifying and listing of a mineral exhibit, to be used in the State of Oregon's mineral exhibit, at St. Louis, in the state of Missouri, in the year 1904, at the International exposition, to be held in said city during said year, and in the mineral exhibit of the Lewis and Clark Centennial and American Pacific Exposition and Oriental Fair; and for use at such other fairs or exhibits as in their judgment will best promote the development of the mineral resources of the State of Oregon, and for which appropriations may be made or for which funds may become available."

Breath Ceased During Fainting Spells.

Revived by Artificial Respiration.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure Cured Wife.

Fainting spells are a sure indication of a weak heart. The heart cannot do the work required of it and stops beating. If it ceases for more than a minute death ensues. Weak hearts must have aid from the outside, such as Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, alone can give. It is a heart tonic. It regulates the pulse, enriches the blood and improves the circulation. "For two years my wife was in very poor health. At first her back troubled her a great deal, then she had shortness of breath and irregularity of the periods. The pain in her back grew worse and extended to the connection of the spinal cord at the base of the brain and from there to her heart. She had two very bad sinking spells, when the breath stopped. The second time we had to resort to artificial respiration to revive her. We were advised to give Dr. Miles' Heart Cure a trial and I bought a bottle and began giving it as directed. We found the doses were too strong, so I gave her half-doses three times a day, and she began to improve. After she had taken two bottles the pains were all gone and she was feeling like a new woman. She continued the Heart Cure in small doses for several months and is now enjoying better health than for the past six years."—M. J. THOMPSON, Dept. County Clerk, Klamath P. O., Cal.
