Thirty Years of Severe Heart Trouble.

Obtained No Relief Until I Tried

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure—It Cured Me.

Since the advent of Dr. Miles' Heart Cure the general public has learned to know that heart disease is curable. Fluttering, palpitation, shortness of breath and heart pains rapidly disappear before its magic influence. It is unequalled as a heart and blood tonic.

"My case was one of long standing. As early in life as my thirty-sixth year, or more particularly November, 1867, when returning home from a journey, I was taken with a severe congestive chill, which caused my whole frame to shake, and which a noted physician pronounced a case of severe congestion of the heart. From that time on for thirty years I gradually became enfeebled in health, until 1892, my sufferings became intense from shortness of breath and palpitation of the heart. I could obtain no permanent relief, although I spent much money in procuring medical advice, until I took several bottles of Dr. Miles' New Cure for the Heart. I continued the remedy until my health was restored, and always keep a supply on hand for any emergency. I am now past 70 years of age and weigh 175 pounds. I have also used Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills, Anti-Pain Pills and Nerve Plasters with good results. The Anti Pain Pills proved most effective in a most painful attack of neuralgia, and also for sciatica. It is my experience that the remedies can be relied upon absolutely every time they are properly used."—W. G. BOWEN, Beaver City, Utah.

HE WAS THE FELLOW

"My dear fellow, your ideas of women are all abominable rot, if you'll excuse my saying so."

"Don't mention it. All the same, I know more of women than you do. I'm only putting you on your guard. Tell me about your goddess."

"Can't you be serious? I'm in earnest this time. I want to talk seriously about her. I want to know what you think of her."

"Well, I think she's pretty; I think her eyes are blue and guileless; I think her hair the brightest and her figure the neatest I have ever seen, and I think I have met her before somewhere. Yet she didn't seem to remember me, did she? It must have been before I went to the cape. Let me see—two years ago. Tell me, has she ever loved before? For surely, with so much beauty and soul yours is not the first heart she has taken captive."

"Look here. Drop poetry. That's just what I want to tell you about, only, upon my word, you make it so jolly hard for a chap to tell you anything. What's come over you? One would think by the way you talk about women that you'd been crossed in love or something, only I can't think any woman would be such an idiot. I suppose you're about the most popular man about town. Why don't you drop cynicism and get married?"

"Never mind me, you were going to tell me that."

"She's been engaged before."

"Well, that's not serious. Most of them have. Who broke it off?"

"She, of course. You don't imagine any fellow who had once won her dear little heart would part with it in a hurry, do you? From all I can make out the man was a laxy scoundrel, and she, to show you the good sort she is, didn't care to marry a man who lounged about all his days and never exerted himself to work for her."

"Had he no money?"

"Only a paltry £2,000 a year. What's that to a girl like her? Of course naturally she wants, with her good looks, to hold some sort of a position in town. She, like the good angel she is, tried to spur him on to work, but he as good as told her that if £2,000 a year wasn't enough for her, well—it ought to be, or something like that. Then he went abroad."

(Tom Goring to himself) "To the cape and returned unexpectedly, but in time." (Aloud) "Yes? Anything else?"

"Yes. Not only that, but he was a confoundedly jealous brute."

"Absolutely without cause?"

"Of course, just as though a girl with her lofty ideas would stoop to flirtation when she was engaged to be married."

"Look here, Malcolm, you take her part. Naturally you're a bit down on the chap she was engaged to. Do you think it's quite fair when you've only heard one side? Suppose I told you I knew the fellow she was engaged to?"

"Well, I should still take her part."

"Quite right. I admire you for it, but give the other fellow a chance and look before you leap. Love is all very well, but beware of infatuation, my boy. You've known her how long?"

"Two months, and I've seen her every day. Last night, as you know, she accepted me."

"And your £10,000 a year and your future chance—a very good one—of a baronetcy. No, don't get up; keep calm. I don't want to see you make a mess of your life. First of all, when you began to talk about her I thought it was just another of your larks. I thought probably you could take care of yourself. But, upon my word, you're a bit too trustful, not to say green, for this wicked world; so, though I don't like interfering, I'll just tell you something you ought to know, and then you can think it over and take your own way. I'll have no more to say. You've known me all your life—haven't you?—and you profess, I believe, to have a good opinion of me. At any rate you know I'm not a liar. I know the fellow she was engaged to. I have known him for years. He wasn't a bad sort; a laxy perhaps, but still—well, anyway, he's got heaps of friends. I don't want to say anything bad of your—you fiancée—but just this—she never spurred him on to work. She knew work was out of the question for him. He wasn't so very young, poor chap. Had to winter abroad occasionally, and that sort of thing—nothing serious. When she heard his income was only a paltry £2,000 a year she just set about finding an excuse to be out of it."

"Once with his own ears accidentally this fellow overheard her talking to her dearest girl friend, and this was what she said: 'I haven't the heart to break it off with him, he's so much in love, but I'm just flirting about all I can so that he may have an excuse to back out of it.'"

"I don't believe it. It's a gross slander. If I could get hold of that fellow, by Jove, I'd thrash him. That's his story. Why should you believe it more than hers? You bring me face to face with that fellow, that's all."

"That's very easily done."

"What do you mean?"

"I am that fellow."

Her Feast.
 "I love all that is beautiful in art and nature," she said, turning her dreamy eyes to his. "I revel in the green fields, the babbling brooks and the little wayside flowers. I feast on the beauties of earth, and sky, and air. They are my daily life and food, and—"

"Maudie!" cried out the mother from the kitchen, not knowing that her daughter's bean was in the drawing room. "Maudie, whatever made you go and gobble up that big dish of mashed potatoes that was left over from dinner? I told you we wanted them warmed up for supper. If your appetite isn't enough to bankrupt your poor pa!"

Spoke From Experience.
 A man who tries to uphold all his statements with the prop of personal experience is pretty sure, sooner or later, to find himself in difficulties.

"What kind of posts should you say I'd better have for my piazza?" asked a summer resident of the oracle of Bushville, "Cedar?"

"No," was the instant reply; "not less you want to pay for poor stuff. Get pine. Pine will last you a hundred years."

"Are you sure?" asked the summer resident doubtfully.

"Sure!" echoed the oracle. "I never state a thing without I can prove it. I've tried 'em both. Tried 'em twice on my south porch. I tell you!"

Asian Women.
 The women of Ainu, north Japan, admire bearded faces, and they tattoo their own faces to make them seem sprouting with whiskers.

Rice Water.
 In Persia no one thinks of throwing away the water in which rice is cooked. It is used in the preparation of tomato sauce, in stewing prunes, apricots and other fruits and for various culinary purposes.

It is stated that the surgeon who came over from Vienna to perform an operation on the five-year-old daughter of J. O'Brien Armour of Chicago receives $75,000 for his fees and expenses. Mr. Armour, it will be recalled, is one of the gentlemen who fix the price of beef.

Rectiplicity.
 Suburbanite—Well, you have told my fortune. How much?
 Gypsy—Only 50 cents.

Suburbanite—Here it is. Now I'll tell your fortune for nothing. If any of my chickens are missing tomorrow morning, I'll have your entire gang run in.—Chicago Tribune.

A Big Platinum Nugget.
 Platinum rarely occurs in nuggets, though once in awhile a lump of it is found. The biggest on record, about the size of a tumbler, is now preserved in the Dresden museum.

The Benefit of Change.
 We are like house plants. We need a change of soil now and then—to be replanted. New scenes, new experiences, new surroundings—a change of climate, dry air instead of moisture, sunshine in place of cloud. This is something essential to health. There are conditions near at hand that are better than Europe can offer. Take a month or two in California. Plant yourself for a time where there is no irritations, where the hotel is beyond criticism, the landscape pleasing, and where warm, sunny weather invites walks and drives. Pure and dry air, and the increased electric influences of sunshine are vastly helpful.

You can make this trip at very little expense, and enjoy a ride over the scenic Siskiyou and Shasta Mountains, which, at this time of the year, with their snow-covered peaks, are unsurpassed for their grandeur.
