Buttonholes are the bane of a bachelor's (married man's, as well) existence. No wonder the blankety-blanks are forthcoming. Don't worry, don't fume, don't swear. Simply let us do the laundering, and the collar bands will remain intact until the end of the chapter. We are thinking of offering a prize for buttonholes despoiled here.

WHAT FASHION DICTATES

Flowers of all Kinds are in Demand

Diaphanous Materials Trimmed with Lace

New York, April 24.—Flowers as an accessory of fashion were never in greater demand than this year. In deed the modish woman's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of flowers—with apologies to Tennyson—as the young man's fancy turns to thoughts of love in the springtime.

Blooms of all descriptions run the entire gamut of new dress and millinery trimmings and there are even variations for those who wish flower bedecked lingerie.

A pretty effect contains in an afternoon gown of pastel green cloth of light weight and high finish. The corsage and skirt are almost covered by a white and green braiding upon which are applied small sprays of silk rosebuds and green leaves. From the waist broad plaits are interlaced by inlet pieces of the cloth worked over with the dower trimmed braiding.

Plaits similarly braided on the bodice meet a triple pointed yoke having shoulder epaulettes forming a double perline.

Accompanying this toilette is an oval toque with loops of shaded green and white straw arranged in flower shapes, massed closely together over the crown and around the deep brim. These flowers—if they may be called so—are each formed of four loops, the white one fitting in the interstices of the green. Around the deep brim a few green and white grapes with the bloom on and some tendrils, curl.

Elegant separate skirts of crepe de Chine, voile and etamine designed for wear with separate bodices have exquisite founces of chiffon and net embroidered with flowers of all kinds. Though black pond lilies and wild roses are blooms that exist only in the modiste's mind. They make an effective trimming for these deep founces. The upper parts of the skirts are either tucked transversely plaited or shirred all the way around at intervals of about eight or ten inches.

With restrictions the separate bodices still enjoys popular favor despite predictions to the contrary. Dame Fashion has succeeded, however, in reducing the subject to the white waist and no other is possible with a separate skirt. This is as ornate and beautiful in detail as ever and may be carried out in any of the silky diaphanous materials trimmed with lace, embroidery and flowers.

There is an extensive range of cream and pastel grounded volles stamped and embroidered with flowers for late spring and summer gowns. One of the favorite blossoms is the gardenia which is worn on bouquet with violets and imitated in embroidery or water color decorations.

Sharing some of the favor accorded the gardenia is the simple old-fashioned geranium. It is remarkable how well the flower holds its own against the fleeting changes of fashion. One reason is that it is so realistic in the variety of reds that are now de rigueur. And, incidentally, red was never more fashionable. Whole costumes in glowing scarlet relieved with black are seen everywhere and have a stunning ensemble when topped with a chic hat to match.

A smart chapeau worn with an afternoon gown in red grenadine had a foundation of pale grey tulle and was very large and flat. Caught in careless clusters all over the tulle was a mass of purplish-red berries. While at the back a large scarlet velvet bow with purplish sheen glistened against the hair.

The bodice of the grenadine gown has insertions of heavy cream lace threaded with black and there was a lace yoke with incrustated bunches of black and steel beads.

An elegant costume which might serve as a model for the home dress-maker and developed in champagne ladies cloth. The corsage has a quaintly shaped tippet collar bordered with a similar colored taffetas upon which are incrustations of needle point lace.

The skirt, having a hip emplacement of taffetas incrustated to correspond falls into innumerable narrow plaits to the hem. This falling from a flat emplacement gives the figure a sheathlike effect distinctly becoming and allows the supple cloth to follow the figure in the plaits in the graceful lines, destroying any tendency to bulkiness.

Her Life Might Have Been Saved

Two-thirds of the inmates of our hospitals are women. They are in most cases either for treatment or for an operation, made necessary by advanced stages of female troubles which have resulted in a tumor, or displacement of the womb.

"AN OPERATION NECESSARY."

How these words after the examination strike terror to a woman's soul, and with what regrets she hears them, when she considers that the operation has become necessary through her own neglect. Female derangements cannot cure themselves, and neglecting the warnings of nature only means putting it off until there is no cure. The woman who lets her trouble make headway pays the penalty of a dangerous operation and a lifetime of impaired usefulness at the best, and the operation often proves fatal when her life might have been saved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhœa, displacement or ulceration of the womb, the bearing down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, bloating (or flatulence), general debility, indigestion and nervous prostration; or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, or the blues, they should remember that there is one tried and never-failing remedy; Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound at once removes such troubles.

READ THE FOLLOWING LETTERS.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I cannot tell you how much good you have done me and how thankful I am to you for it. For five years I have not been free from pain for a day. I have had backaches, headaches and those awful dragging sensations with leucorrhœa, and when menstruation appeared I was in such condition I could hardly sit up. I doctored all the time, but nothing helped me, and I was told that operation was necessary."

"Two months ago a friend suggested that I try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and one knows what it has done for me and how thankful I am for it. It brought me the first well day in five years. It did for me what doctors could not do, and I want every suffering woman to know about it."—LOUISE NAUER, 751 E. 100th St., New York City.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wish to thank you for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I had terrible hemorrhages, being lacerated from the birth of my child. The doctor said that if I would have an operation I would be well and strong. I submitted to it, but was worse before; no one knows what I suffered. Finally a friend advised me to try your Vegetable Compound, and so, and commenced to feel better; I continued its use, and it has done for me what doctors could not do, and I am strong and well. If women with any kind of female troubles would only consult you before submitting to an operation they would be spared many hours of pain and suffering. I cannot thank you enough for what you have done for me."—ANNA KIRCHHOFF, 156 E. 100th St., New York City.

WISE IS THE WOMAN WHO HAS FAITH IN

all description and are graceful and effective when properly used. A blue mirror face voile—a charming new material which may be mistaken for and is less expensive than crepe de Chine—affords a striking arrangement of fringed ornamentation. It begins in an unlined yoke of blue lace from the lower edge of which a fringe of fine steel beads falls to the waist line.

The skirt, which is scant and clinging, trails in the back and is formed entirely of overlapping rows of fringe matching that on the bodice. The lowest row is very wide and each succeeding row is narrower, although that at the top is fully nine inches deep.

No woman with fashionable pretensions is ready for any day time function nowadays without a bag of some sort, consequently there are a number of designs from which one might make a selection. The prettiest bags are of delicate gold and silver filagree finished like many of the silk bags with draw strings in the shape of chains to match the bags, run through metal rings a couple of inches from the top; the tops then fall back in metal ruffles and have little points finished with tiny round pendants.

Black jewelry is very fashionable and one does not have to be in mourning to wear it. It comes in enamel, gun metal, dull jet, bog oak and bright cut jet. Set with gold and studded with pearls—grey or white—the dull or bright jet is delightfully pretty and loses all the sombreness which one might be apt to associate with it. These odd trifles are at all prices from fifty cents for a gunmetal safety pin ornamented with a single baroque pearl, to $50 for a brooch of cut-jet flowers.

It is an assured fact that elbow sleeves and collarless waists will be quite the rage as soon as real warm weather arrives so the girl with skinny arms and scrawny neck should consider herself forewarned and look up grandmother's receipts for the skin-foods and creams that will build up relaxed tissues and fill out the hollows. Nothing looks prettier than a well rounded neck or arm and there will be an opportunity this summer to show them off more fashionably than ever.

For the woman who does not get approval on the collarless line there will be narrow necked transparent lace supported by bands or delicate ribbons run through the
