Glad Salem Hand in Honor of a Master Elocutionist

Salem Society Ladies Reception to Miss Glenna Smith of Chicago

The Grand Opera House stage was a dream of beauty and a blaze of color Friday evening on the occasion of Miss Mabel Lankton Carter's reception to Miss Glenna Smith, in her interpretation of Monsieur Beaucaire. A brilliant audience had been invited. The elite, socially and educationally, were enlisted to make the affair a brilliant success, and the bon ton of the city were ushers, assistants and entertainers of the guest of the evening, and it should be said that only on rare occasions is Salem granted the privilege of doing justice to talent of so high an order, under such delightful circumstances. The audience felt before it was over that they owed Dean Carter a great debt of social gratitude for the treat she had graciously and generously provided for them, and adding to her reputation of ever doing anything worth doing in a whole-souled manner, and giving our city the reputation of showing most handsome hospitality to the stranger within our gates. Her felicitous speech of introduction, and the response of Miss Smith were alike well received, and greeted with enthusiastic applause that put the audience and reader in the most perfect rapport.

Besides vocal solos by Mrs Purvine and violin solos by Prof. Gesner, the reading of three acts from the masterpiece of Booth Tarkington, an Indianapolis newspaper man, that is acted by the greatest tragedians of the age, comprised the evening's entertainment. Mrs. Purvine sang "The Answer," and for encore "The Robins," in a sweetly sympathetic voice, showing much culture. Mr. Gesner also gave an encore, and both were well received.

Miss Smith's Reading
Was followed by an encore, when she recited a description of an old plantation mammy putting a baby to sleep, with great effect, holding the audience in a suspense of admiration for her art and amusement at the realistic humor of her portrayal. Her masterpiece was the reading of Beaucaire, the light-hearted Frenchman's adventures in the court of Beau Nash, and his final denouement as Louis Philippe, heir to the throne of France. Taking all the parts, announcing the changing phases of the comedy and tragedy, the depth of passion and tender playfulness of the scenes rapidly following each other, held the rapt attention of the audience, and won thunders of applause. Those who had read the story were fascinated anew with its beauty and the moral of true manhood revealed at the end.

Grand Social Event.
The house was packed with the best people of Salem, if there be any such thing, and the boxes were bright and gay with parties of solid citizens and their better halves, many of them in full dress for the occasion. Dean Carter was assisted in receiving the guests at the foyer by Mrs. Sutherland, Mrs. Cartwright, Miss Mackay and Miss Mabel Jones. Miss Smith wore a gown of black mousseline over peau de sole, with trimmings of rich lace, and pink roses. She is a handsome brunette of very lively expressive features, and after the program there was a general reception to the audience on the stage. The reception party occupied boxes, and among others in the boxes were Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Bean, Mrs. and Miss Moore, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Burnett, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Sutherland, Mr. and Mrs. R. Cartwright, Mr. and Mrs. G. O. Bingham, Mrs. Williamson and son, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Werner Breyman, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Thielsen, Misses Gilbert, Heulat, Iida Jones, Gabrielson, Nicklin, Gesner, and Rineman.

Messrs. Maurice Walker, of Seattle; Prof. McCall, Prof. Gesner, Fred and Ed. Thielsen, Dr. McNary, Ted Crawford, Will Evans, Albert Jesup, Louis Hooker.
Miss Smith was delighted at the cordiality of her greeting in the Capital City, and said to a reporter that she had never been in a city where all the people seemed to go out of their way to make it very pleasant for a stranger. She leaves for the East Monday, and will always feel that she has become a part of Salem, and that

Salem people have become a part of her life. She is a resident of Chicago, and fellow graduate of Columbia School of Oratory with Miss Carter, of this city, where she was also an instructor. She is the founder of the school of oratory of Iowa College, at Grinnell, associate principal of the St. Paul College of Oratory, and public reader for colleges and universities.

SHOW NEXT WEEK

Norris & Rowe Will Exhibit Trained Animals Thursday

While Norris & Rowe's big shows were exhibiting at San Francisco, Oscar, who is one of their largest monkeys, managed to escape from his cage and to elude his pursuers. He finally found refuge in a Chinese laundry. The wily celestials not recognizing him as a brother took flight in all directions, leaving him in full possession of the premises. It is needless to describe the condition of the interior when a policeman, arrived on the scene. The officer taking matters in at a glance, determined to catch the intruder. The monkey also the officer but he refused to receive him on terms of equality and went out through a window into the street where by this time a crowd had collected. "This is a cinch" said the policeman, as he reached for Oscar, but the monk had been there before, and darting through his legs started down the street at a rapid pace. Arriving at a safe distance he again stopped and began making faces at the officer. Even a policeman does not tolerate an insult, so he dashed on with new determination. At this moment a squad of policemen hove in sight believing there was a riot and they joined in the chase, eventually capturing him. The police force of San Francisco never had so exciting and ludicrous an experience, and it is doubtful if they would enjoy such another.

FRUIT GROWERS UNION

Holds Meeting at the City Hall Today

There was a well attended meeting of the Salem Fruit Growers' Union at the city hall this afternoon, at 2 o'clock.
All report good prospects for a large crop. Reports from members of the Union indicate that the crop of cherries and strawberries will be a record-breaker.
Contracts have been closed between the Union and most of the growers to secure uniformity of picking, packing and grading.
Frank J. Davis, the local representative of the Pearson-Page Co., has a cherry cartoon that will be used extensively this year. It is a very neat package, and holds one pound, and will be retailed in the city markets at 10 cents.

WHAT IS A HEADACHE?

Some Pertinent Points of Interest to All.
Are you subject to headaches? If so, we can cure them without drugs. Give us a trial.
What is a headache? What makes the brain hurt? In answer we would ask, what makes a pig squeal, a calf bawl, or a child cry when it is hungry?
The cerebral arteries are not supplying the brain with nourishment, therefore it gets very hungry, and extremely hungry too.
When the veins, assisted by the molar nerve, or those that convey blood in its circulation, become obstructed, pain follows, which is the effect—headache.
There are other kinds of headache which we can also explain to your satisfaction.

A Small Suit.
A complaint was filed in department No. 1 of the circuit court today by John Wolford, doing business under the firm name and style of John Wolford & Co., against A. S. Moser. The complaint sets forth that the defendant executed and delivered a promissory note for $36.22, and that neither the whole nor any part has been paid, except the sum of one dollar. The plaintiff asks judgment, together with costs and interest in the sum of $36.62.

South Salem Personals.
Miss Gertrude Johnson came down from Albany last evening to spend Saturday and Sunday with her parents. Miss Johnson is the trimmer in one of Albany's leading millinery stores.

Prof. J. O. Hall, of Portland, came up last evening, and is visiting among his South Salem friends.

Allen Wilson, of Tacoma, Wash., was a business visitor in the southern part of town yesterday.

Mrs. J. H. Rook, of Marshfield, is visiting friends in the city.

A most enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Blackwell last evening, they having entertained the Epworth League of Popcorn neighborhood, one of Mr. Blackwell's charges. A large number of young people were present, and the evening was spent most pleasantly in playing numerous games, and interspersed with music. At the usual hour dainty refreshments were served. At a late hour the guests departed, and all voted Mr. and Mrs. Blackwell royal entertainers.

To Lower Twelfth Street

Since the council has ordered the grade of Twelfth street established somewhat lower than the old level, in order to have the Southern Pacific tracks lowered, the misapprehension has come to the surface that the street is to be improved at the expense of the property owners. With this idea in mind several of the interested parties have considered circulating a remonstrance, but since the only thing contemplated is the establishment of a new grade at the expense of the city, the matter will be dropped.
