All baggage not accompanied by owners is carefully examined. Officers are not inclined to regard the affair as a joke. The English lines are suffering a great loss, the crowds changing their bookings.

CHICAGO STRIKE GROWING

Promises to Be the Most Serious City has Ever Known

At Any Moment 23,000 Employes May be Called out of Windy Cities' Packing Houses

Chicago, May 11.—A thousand workmen in the Laessing division of the American Bridge Company were locked out this morning for attempting to organize a union.

The strike situation at the stock yards is so acute that 23,000 union employes are liable to be called out at any time. Conference of the executive committees of the unions have been called to meet this afternoon, to discuss means to assist the striking engineers. The packers' combine today shipped in non-union engineers from Kansas City and Omaha to break the strike. If the union declares a general sympathetic strike, it will tie up 60 per cent of the meat supply of America. The situation is grave, as it would mean the most serious strike Chicago has ever known.

Omaha, May 11.—The strike situation is more complicated than ever, owing to the closing of the laundries this morning, as a result of the employes refusing to handle business of unfair customers, and promises to continue indefinitely. The barbers' union meets tonight to consider a sympathetic strike.

"Risk One Eye."

Washington, May 11.—After due investigation by postoffice inspectors, a fraud order was recently issued by the postoffice department debarring from the use of the mails a certain woman in Chicago, who has been found guilty of misusing the mails for carrying on a form of business that is not strictly legitimate. The reports of the case, however, did not show anything in particular as to the person debarred. A few days after the fraud order was issued, over the signature of the postmaster-general, Mr. Payne received a letter from the woman in the case, pleading for the recall of his order, and asking permission to continue to use the United States mails. She concluded with a request for an interview with the postmaster-general, that she might present her case in person.

"I feel sure if I might get a chance to look you straight in your beautiful brown eyes you would hear my story."

After perusing the letter carefully, and being at sea as to the proper thing to do, Postmaster-General Payne turned it over and endorsed on the back the words:

"Respectfully referred to the secretary of war for advice."

In a day or two back came the letter, with the endorsement of the secretary of war, which read:

"Risk one eye. Ellihu Root."

Santa Cruz, May 11.—During lunch under the big trees the President made a speech denouncing the desecration of the great work of nature by tourists, who carve their names and pin their cards where they offend the eyes of those who come to study beauty. He pointed to one of the "Three Sisters," where several thousand cards were tacked up, and said: "Those cards have no more business there than so many tomato cans." In a few minutes the President went for a stroll among the trees, and while he was gone Mayor David G. Clark, of Santa Cruz, led a charge on the offending cards. It took a quarter of an hour's hard work to dislodge them. The topmost one was a card labeled "Den of Howling Galsoots," a social club of Santa Cruz. When the President returned from his walk all the cards were scattered over the ground.
