

Not a Rival in Sight Anywhere
When the linen that has been done up at the Salem Steam Laundry is put in contrast with that laundered anywhere in Salem. The beauty of our laundry work makes us justly proud, and we feel like crowing every time we see the difference in our superb color and finish on the shirts, collars and cuffs done up by our methods with the linen worn by anyone laundered by any other process.

UNDER THE DRAG

Mrs. Ralls Successfully Passes Under Roller and Harrow

Horses Tramped on Her, and all of the Farm Machinery Went Over Her

Mrs. Cliff Ralls, lies at her home near Monroe seriously injured. The fact that she is not in her grave is almost miraculous. Last Tuesday, she was knocked down and run over by a runaway four horse team, which also dragged over her a combined clod-masher and harrow, such as is in use on many farms.

The accident happened while Mrs. Ralls was alone in the field with the outfit. She often works a field, and was so engaged on this occasion. In the team of four horses there was one animal that was not well broken. It became necessary for Mrs. Ralls to stop the team to adjust a check rein on the unbroken horse. As she did so, the animal shied and knocked her down. The incident started the whole team and as they dashed away, Mrs. Ralls was prostrate under their feet. Then came the clod masher, a machine so heavy that four horses are usually required to draw it. Attached to it behind is an ordinary drag harrow arrangement, in which, however, the teeth slope backward. Mrs. Ralls passed completely under this awful contrivance, and for a wonder, lives to tell the tale.

The flight of the horses attracted the attention of others in the vicinity and help was soon at hand. Mrs. Ralls was taken home where she now lies with many bruises and cuts, but happily with no injury so serious as to cause alarm.

Mrs. Ralls is a daughter of Wesley Hinton of Monroe, and a niece of Mrs. Martha Burnett of this city.—Corvallis Times.

He Lit His Pipe

The fact that a certain man at a certain moment was seized with a desire to light his pipe, is believed to have saved six men from terrible trouble in Kings Valley the other day. The men were Luckamute loggers, employed at the Miller camp. They were building a roadway. In the process of their operations, a huge tree had been cut, but in its descent it had lodged against a big snag which held it suspended at a considerable distance from the ground, directly over where the men worked. It seemed, however, to be securely fastened there, and the men went on with their work.

Suddenly one of the men yelled a hurried note of alarm to his comrades. He had raised from his work to light his pipe, and as he did so he observed a slight movement of the tree. A gust of wind was dislodging it from its resting place. Even as the men were running for their lives it came down with a terrible crash. Nearly all of the men had a brush with the extreme ends of the limbs, and several knocked down; but none were injured. One of the men when he saw the tree coming, dropped into the hole he was digging, and was so covered by the debris that his companions had to dig him out.
