THE IOWA CURE FOR DRUNKARDS.

The state of Iowa is successfully trying the experiment of committing confirmed drunkards to the state asylums for insane.

About fifty such unfortunates are sent for treatment each month, and it is stated seventy per cent recover from the disease.

There is no "Keeley cure" employed, and no mysterious drug is slipped into their coffee, without their knowledge and consent.

Intoxicants are denied them from the moment they enter the asylum on the simple theory that the way to stop drinking is to stop drinking.

No matter whether he has delirium tremens or not, the drunkard is taught that he must suffer the full penalty of his own sins.

The inebriate's false sense of pleasure in intoxication must be destroyed, and reformation alone can cancel the crime against himself.

It is a heroic treatment that the man who punishes whiskey for the pleasure he finds in it shall take the full measure of his punishment.

In Oregon the worst cases of hopeless inebriety have since years been committed to the asylum for the insane, and with good results.

Those who are foolish enough to begin again after being discharged are very small in number, unless their punishment has been mitigated for the time being by the use of drugs, which is a questionable policy.

The "Iowa Idea" of letting the patient sweat out his delirium, and suffer the terrible punishment of his un-restrained appetite is a good one. To dull the effects of a debauch with morphine only prepares the victim for a more deplorable slavery.

This cure for drunkenness is to let the inebriate suffer under restraint, remove all supplies and let him come into his right mind.

Anyone who will turn to the proceedings of the New York State Medical Society for 1859 will be surprised at the progress in medical practice.

Delirium tremens was the subject that engaged the largest part of the time of that convention.

All agreed as to the remedy—bleeding and calomel—but differed as to the amount of the latter.

The only limit to the bleeding was the amount of blood the patient, or rather victim, had in his body. The rule was to take nearly all of it.

As to calomel, the limit was salivation. Administer all you can, and not have his teeth all drop out.

There is great evidence of progress in the treatment of drunkards from that day to this.

The intemperate man is a sinner against himself, his family and society, and there has been too much disposition to let others share his self-inflicted suffering.

There are fewer grave acts of injustice done by the newspaper profession than almost any other, but it does not deserve to have Johnny Barrett attributed to it.

The general public seems perfectly willing that Grover Cleveland and Wm. J. Bryan should tear each other's political eyes out. And they seem willing to do it.

Samuel H. Piles, the Seattle man who wants to be United States senator, is said to have L. S. J. Hunt's money back of him. Hunt is the Coran millionaire of fabulous wind-blown wealth, and that probably settles it—the senate will have to have a dose of piles.

Salem has a mounted chief of police. He was at the scene of the great Portland street car holdup, or very near to it when it occurred. That city got one efficient chief of police from Salem, and might get another. For the force he has, Chief Gibson has made a pretty good record in the past.

Well, the Portland newspapers keep competent reporters employed at Salem, who dig up about half the interesting stories published down there, and about half the living of those papers is made on the stuff they print from Salem, while Portland is overrun with thieves and robbers.

Chicago University has an abundance of students, 400 professors, and the president says all they need is a million-dollar library. But do they want to turn out men of brains and originality? Where are the poets, orators, writers of that institution? They have turned out a little educational hash called text-books.

As the only nation that excludes the Chinese, why should we expect anything but tariff regulations against American goods. Can any political demagogue tell what awful calamity would happen Oregon industries if 50,000 Chinese were employed clearing land in this state? White labor cannot be hired to clear land, even at $2 per day, and many a farm is going back to brush.

Washington Bankers

Whatecom, Wash., July 22.—The annual convention of the Washington State Bankers' association in session here is one of the best attended meetings in the history of the association. The three days' program that has been arranged for the meeting calls for a number of papers and addresses by representative bankers and financiers of Washington and other states of the northwest.

Cincinnati, O., July 23.—Although few recall the fact, it is nevertheless interesting to note that today was the 40th anniversary of the capture of the daring confederate leader, General Morgan July 23, 1863. There are many living in Cincinnati and vicinity who remember the Morgan raid through Kentucky, Ohio and Indiana, in one of the darkest periods of the Civil War. The news of Morgan's coming

EX-POST MASTER CROASMAN

Of Portland Was a Newsboy in the War Times

Sold the Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin When the People Wanted Papers

(Evening Wisconsin, July 13th.)
Forty years ago a stentorian-voiced newsboy shouted on the streets of Milwaukee "extras" concerning the newest developments in the war of the rebellion. Today he returned to Milwaukee with something else to sell, this time a million dollars' worth of lumber in the state of Oregon.

Mr. Croasman, of Oregon, where he has made his home for many years. Until last March he was postmaster of the city. Now he is connected with a large lumbering concern, and his mission here at this time is to dispose of timber.

Mr. Croasman says he sold the Evening Wisconsin on trains on the Prairie du Chien division of the Milwaukee road. During the war news-papers that gave comprehensive reports of the movements of the troops were in great demand.

Interest in War News.
"Milwaukee was the point where the drafting for the whole state took place," said Mr. Croasman today, "and I remember very well the demand there was out in the state for The Wisconsin. Every man in the state wanted a paper at that time, if he never wanted one before. We used to get postage stamps for the paper, and the air was literally green with the stamps when the train stopped at the stations along the line. We used to get the papers unfolded, and I had to get a couple of men to help me fold. The crowds at the depot were so great that Conductor LaRock refused to let me get off. I had to telegraph ahead to find out the number of papers wanted, and I would have them ready for them."

"Milwaukee has certainly grown since I left the city, and I can see the city is prosperous."

Cardinal's Birthday

Washington, July 23.—Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore who is now in Europe to attend the conclave which is to choose the successor of Pope Leo XIII, is 69 years old today. It is an odd coincidence and especially interesting in connection with the gossip concerning Cardinal Gibbons' chances of succeeding to the chair of St. Peter to note the fact that the cardinal has now reached the exact age at which Leo XIII, then Cardinal Pecci, was elected Pope.

Cardinal Gibbons was born July 23, 1834 in the state of Maryland. After spending some time in Ireland with his father he returned to Maryland, and in 1857 graduated from St. Charles college. June 30, 1861, the late Archbishop Kenrick ordained him a priest of St. Mary's seminary. So rapid was his advance in the priesthood, and the recognition accorded him for his great abilities, that August 15, 1868, he was consecrated bishop and vicar apostolic of North Carolina. Four years later he was transferred to Richmond, Va. In 1877 he was appointed coadjutor with the right of succession to Archbishop Balley, and in October of the same year he succeeded to the see of Baltimore. In 1886 he received the crowning honor of his life, and distinguished tribute was paid to the church in America by his elevation to the cardinalate.

A Strange Coincidence

Cincinnati, O., July 23.—Although few recall the fact, it is nevertheless interesting to note that today was the 40th anniversary of the capture of the daring confederate leader, General Morgan July 23, 1863. There are many living in Cincinnati and vicinity who remember the Morgan raid through Kentucky, Ohio and Indiana, in one of the darkest periods of the Civil War. The news of Morgan's coming excited the greatest alarm. Militia companies were hastily formed and equipped, good housewives were busy getting up stores of supplies and rations, old campaign cannons were pressed into service, and the city generally put upon the defensive. But the dashing leader's march was cut short although it was long before the general alarm subsided. There has been more or less dispute as to who was entitled to the credit of Morgan's capture, but the investigations of late years appear to confirm the claims of Major George W. Rue, who, with a small company of cavalry, trailed Morgan through Northern Kentucky and finally surrounded him on the Beaver creek road near the Ohio river.

Elks Take a Feed of Crabs

Baltimore, Md., July 23.—Probably without parallel was the great crab feast given at Love Point today in honor of the delegates and visitors to the national convention of Elks. The chief business of the convention was all disposed of yesterday, and with decks cleared, the 20,000 Elks were prepared to enjoy to the utmost the unique feast arranged by their local brethren of the antierd herd.

One hundred and fifty thousand is the estimated number of crabs that fell victims to the repast. They were served stewed, broiled, steamed, fried, in sandwiches, in soup and in salad. Two hundred negro "mamies," with bandannas and aprons were employed to do the serving. They were strung along the shore with tripods for the preparation of soup and other forms of cooked crab. Each mammy was assisted by two little black pickinannies, and the scene was truly typical of the "Sunny South."

Youngsters Must Hang

Lexington, Ky., July 23.—Arrangements have been completed by Jailer Wallace and his deputies for the execution tomorrow of the two youthful murderers, Earl Whitney and Claud O'Brien. Seldom in the criminal annals of the state have more heroic efforts been made to save the condemned from the gallows than in the case of Whitney and O'Brien. So conclusive was the evidence of their guilt, however, that the higher courts as well as the executive declined to interfere.

Whitney and O'Brien entered the home of A. B. Chinn, a prominent Lexington merchant last winter and when discovered shot Mr. Chinn to death in his bed. His son, Mr. Asa Chinn, was desperately wounded by the burglars in the battle in the hall. He wounded Whitney in the struggle and this wound led to the discovery of the murderers.

Snake With Two Heads.
San Francisco, July 23.—A double-headed snake that can back up as readily as it can move forward has been added to the natural history department of the memorial museum. It is about 32 inches long, about as broad as the handle of a table knife, with the tail blunt at the end as the index finger. It belongs to a wholly tropical species called Amphibanna, defined as "a species of tropical lizard, distinguished by the obtuseness of the head and tail."

The reptile has hitherto been only found in South America and the West Indies is sluggish and mostly nocturnal. The specimen just presented to the museum was found at Half Moon bay, in this state, and how it came to be living in this temperate zone, 4,000 miles from its only known habitation, is what is now puzzling local scientists.
