Correspondent Notes Change in Portland Papers

Country Yahoos and Back Numbers Become Noble Farmers and Great Fair's Backbone

Ed. Journal: I see by a recent Oregonian editorial that the "country papers about are still trying to put a damper on the fair by calling it a Portland show, etc." The Oregonian then states that the exhibition will be a great benefit to Oregon, and that, in spite of our opposition, we will be rewarded just the same in the same manner, I presume, as the sun, which is said to "shine upon the good and had alike." Therefore, if we are bound to have this benefit by this exhibition whether we want it or not, we certainly owe our greatest help to the exhibition, or to the Oregonian, which appears from things that are one and the same thing. Owing to what is termed reflex action, the country papers around the valley fail to see how the fair is going to be benefited without boosting the Oregonian, which, of course, is not the immediate business of country papers. Of course, there can be no doubt of the wisdom of the Oregonian in calling names if you don't put your shoulder to her wheel and help her show. Methinks the Lewis and Clark will be changed to the Morning Oregonian centennial, with a generous privilege of letting Oregon be a sideshow. People who have been fed on the St. Louis fair, covering 1,100 acres of land and having $40,000,000 worth of buildings, will not be very apt to suffer from the gout when they are set down to the Lewis-Oregonian-Clark-Centennial Oregon-as-a-sideshow-exposition-Oregonian fair table.

The common taste for vanilla is formed on tunka, a strong coarse flavor. Real vanilla—Schilling's Best—is delicate soft fine rich creamy and not overstrong.

The time has come when even the great Oregonian will appreciate this fact: That you can't expect even "country" newspapers to "stand in" with your pet ideas and fat results after you spend all your time in scathing criticism of everything from the lowest to the highest, from the U. S. senate, the president and all other representative men down to the lowest office-holder, from the fields of philosophy to the mesmerism of religion. In years of reading the great morning daily it seems nothing has escaped its rebuke. Upon every pretext, upon every occasion, daily, the columns are free in handing out advice and criticizing all nations, classes and walks. Busy picking the beams out of the brother's eye, it is blind to the mote in its own eye, until, alas! it gets a $500,000 show on its hands; then it suddenly sees that there never was a beam in the other fellow's eye. Of course not. You are all right. Come and get in the handwagon. But alas too and again! the sting of unimported censure accumulating these years carries a sharp remembrance, and, indeed, "we have no taste nor appetite." Every paper in Oregon is willing and ready to help in the great Oregonian, so everlastingly pleased to never fail to mention, have some sense of duty to the state and appreciate public benefit. Put up a show for Oregon, and then the "country" papers will likely respond. The "country press" is evidently weary of being based on the solar-plexus all the year around until Portland gets an exposition, and then being invited in to see cream (and pay for it by way of a joke). The day has now come when the "country press" means more than heretofore. The "country" papers are needed to boost. The word "country" has suddenly changed its Oregonianized meaning of "back numbers" and "uncivilized" inhabitants of Oregon to the "backbone" of expositions and the source of the "necessary stuff" to make an exposition go. You can mark these words in big red ink (the color the signers of the initiative and referendum petition were to have their names printed in) that the "country press and people" will stand in relation to this fair before Portland gets through with it, as a dog to his tail. When the farmers refuse to respond, then the tail will not wag very loud. While, if in the past any disposition of fairness had been shown, and a little less calling of names, and making us feel how much of the backwoods order we were when we already knew it, things might be different. There has, fortunately, been enough emigration from the "country" towns to the city of Portland to keep alive the one lone spark of civilization which exists in Oregon outside of Portland, for which we are thankful. Would it not be advantageous to call for a meeting of ye editors to look over the situation? Portland is putting up nearly all the money for this fair so the Oregonian says, but she does not say where all that money is going to be spent. We are led to presume it will probably be spent outside of Portland, among the valley towns and Eastern Oregon. How? CUMMIN T. O. SENSES. Salem, July 29, 1903.

Only Colored Folks.
On the outskirts of a certain town where a lot of negroes lived, a citizen had a house to rent, says an exchange. A young darkey, married, called on the citizen to bargain for the house, and the following conversation took place: "When were you married?" "But three months ago," replied the darkey. "How many children have you?" "For the Lawd's sake, boss, wese no only cullud folks, wese no Belgian hares"—Coast Mail.

State Wants The Interest

The claims of Phil Metschan and E. C. Giltner against the receiver of the Williams & England Banking Company for moneys deposited in that bank by the two claimants before the failure are again attracting attention through the action of the state authorities, in making for interest on the claims to be recovered into the state treasury. A petition has been filed in Judge Boise's department of the circuit court in the case of J. A. Baker vs. The Williams & England Banking Company by Secretary of State Dunbar, praying that the receiver, W. T. Slater, be ordered to pay to the state $4467.96, as interest on the money deposited in the bank by Phil Metschan, $8013.15, and E. C. Giltner, as agent for Phil Metschan, $25,000. The petition alleges that the money in question was the property of the state of Oregon, that from the date the claims were filed against the receiver by Giltner and Metschan to the several dates when payment was made interest should be allowed the state, and this interest is computed at $4467.96. The secretary of state, therefore, asks the court for an order to that receiver to pay the interest, alleged to be due to the state. Attorney-General Crawford represents the state in the case, and will make a vigorous fight to secure the amount claimed.

Receiver W. T. Slater has filed a demurrer to the petition, and the matter will come up for hearing at the July term of the second department of the circuit court, which convenes next Monday.

Woodburn Has a Blaze

John Naze's place of business had a narrow escape from destruction by fire at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning. In the residence portion a little boy had trodden on a match which set fire to a lounge, and the flames began to spread, and threatened to destroy the entire building, containing Mr. Naze's big stock of buggies and farming implements. By heroic efforts the fire was extinguished before other than the lounge and curtains were burned and the crowd of running people, aroused from a lethargic state by the fire alarm, arrived. The chemical engine, fastened to Hicks' dray, was bowling along toward the tumultuous scene, when W. H. Goulet, on a coal black charger, dashed down the street and stopped further advance with the statement, "Gentlemen, save your chemicals; the fire is out." The fire was put out by Mrs. Naze, who got a burnt hand, but succeeded in smothering the blaze with a quilt.—Woodburn Independent.

Barbecue at Stayton

There will be a harvest home picnic and barbecue at Stayton tomorrow, Saturday, August 1. It is given primarily for the purpose of introducing the new Stayton cheese factory to the people, and everybody is invited to visit the factory on that day, and see how cheese is manufactured. W. E. Thomas will be president of the day, and Thomas Smith, marshal. Dr. James Withycombe, of the Oregon Agricultural college, will deliver the address, and every farmer and farmer's wife should hear him. He is an authority on farming and dairying, and will give much valuable information. There will be other speakers, music, recitations, etc., and the Stayton Cornet band will furnish music during the day. For the barbecue there will be sheep, calves, etc., and roast meat for every one. In the evening there will be a dance in the opera house, given by the Stayton band. Those who attend are promised just as good a time as such an occasion will permit, and the committee will spare no pains in looking after the general comfort and pleasure of all.

Bed Time
I take a pleasant herb drink, the next morning I feel bright and my complexion is better. My doctor says it acts gently on the stomach, liver and kidneys, and is a pleasant laxative. It is made of herbs, and is prepared as easily as tea. It is called Lane's medicine. All druggists sell it at 25c and 50 cents. Lane's Family Medicines moves the bowels each day. If you cannot get it, send for free samples. Address, Orator Woodward, LeRoy, N. Y.

The express company want the agent at Newberg to make good the loss of a package stolen from the office safe. The package stolen from the bank closed, and the agent deposited it in the company's safe. Now the company takes the position that he was criminally careless in not working for a company that was not too stingy to provide a good safe. If the safe had been as strong as the company's, the money would have been safe, too.

Governor Objects

Some time ago a contest was heard before the state land board between the Warner Valley Land Company and settlers in the Lakeview land district, as to their respective rights to certain lands in that district, the land company claiming ownership through the state, and the settlers claiming to secure their titles through the federal government, which latter they would be unable to do, in case the state would agree to the contention of the land company, and secure the title from the general land office, under the swamp land act, which action would make the claim of the land company good. The Warner Valley Land Company has title from the state now, but the state has never received a patent from the government, and an investigation is now being made by the state officials as to the exact status of the case. Now the land company is making efforts to secure a patent from the government to the state, which in turn would make the land company's deed from the state good, and would effectually settle the case of the settlers. The Warner Valley Land Company claims the lands under the swamp land act, asserting that they are swamp or overflowed lands, while the settlers' contention is that it is not swamp land, that they are unable to secure water short of 40 to 50 feet below the surface, and they urge the state land board to visit the lands and make a personal inspection of the property and the conditions, before asking the government for patents under the swamp land act. The case comes up before the board again next Monday morning, and the governor has about decided to go and make a personal investigation of the matter, if he can make suitable arrangements.

Yesterday Governor Chamberlain received an approved swamp land list from the general land office, embracing the lands in dispute, and he at once sent the following telegram to the secretary of the interior, at Washington, D. C., as a note of warning: "Hon. E. A. Hitchcock, Secretary of the Interior, Washington, D. C.:

"Approved List Number Seventy, Swamp Lands, Lakeview District, Oregon, received. Again I earnestly request that no patents issue until request therefor is made by me, pursuant to acts of congress, September 29, 1854 extended to Oregon by act of March 12, 1869. No one has authority from me to represent the state of Oregon in requesting issuance of patents for the lands, or any of them, embraced in said list, though I am just informed that some one pretends to represent the governor of Oregon for that purpose. The matter is being investigated by me, and until satisfied as to the bona fides of the claim of the state to these lands I will make no request for issuance of patent."
"GEO. E. CHAMBERLAIN, Governor."

MISS MAY MARKELL,

A Society Belle of London, Canada.

MISS MAY MARKELL of London, Ontario, Canada, is a beautiful girl who knows what suffering is and Wine of Cardui has brought her back to health. She is one of the social favorites of her home and her recovery to health has permitted her to enjoy the company of her many friends instead of lying on a bed of sickness and suffering. For the health she now enjoys she gives credit to Wine of Cardui. She writes: "I have found Wine of Cardui an excellent remedy for female trouble. I suffered for three years with terrible bearing-down pains at the menstrual period. I could hardly stand on my feet and was never real well. Wine of Cardui was the only medicine that I could depend on to do me any good, as I tried several with no success. Wine of Cardui cured me and I have now enjoyed perfect health for two years, and give you all the credit for I know you deserve it."

For a young girl Wine of Cardui is the best remedy to guide her through womanhood by starting the menstrual flow in a healthy and natural manner. Menstruation started right is very easy to keep regular through the years of mature womanhood. Then the "change of life" need not be feared. The Wine of Cardui is woman's best relief from youth to old age. A million women have secured blessed relief from their sufferings by taking this treatment. It relieves menstrual troubles in an incredibly short time. In a simple case of deranged menses Wine of Cardui never fails. To relieve disordered menses is to remove the cause of other female troubles. Any physician will tell you that to remove the cause of a disease renders the cure easy, in fact seldom fails to complete the cure. If you would have the same relief which Miss Markell secured by Wine of Cardui. You can take it without an examination and without any publicity whatever. You can take it in the privacy of your home and seem just as much benefited as if a doctor had prescribed it for you. Thousands of women are feeling the vigor of returning health by taking Wine of Cardui.
