DR. J. F. COOK

Has come to the conclusion that all profession of the healing art outside of the vegetable kingdom is a failure. When your system is run out without pure blood. You will only find vitality in the vegetable kingdom. Poisonous drugs nor doctors' knives nor thunder and lightning will not remove the cause, but lay the foundation for all kinds of disease. Those poisons go into your bones, and kill the life of them and create all kinds of diseases, cancerous tumors, consumption, dropsy, bone diseases, etc. You must bear in mind that his medicine is not a poisonous tonic, nor a stimulant, nor temporary relief which you get from poisonous drugs, where the results are sure death sooner or later. Do not blame the medicine, when it takes an effect and stirs up the poisons or disease in the system. You must not expect to be cured in a few days, for your sickness or disease has been a long time coming on, and it will take a long time to get it out of your system. It will take months or a year to build a new body from the bones up. This is what the people do not understand. They are used to being humbugged. His medicines are composed of Nature's Herbs—what the human system requires. When the animals get sick they will help themselves to those herbs, for they have the instinct, and the people have not, so we have to make a study of it. It has been a life study with Dr. Cook. Do not get weary; this life is too short and too sweet to worry out of this world.

WHAT WOMEN WEAR

Maud Griffin Tells of the Latest Fashions

Soft Laces Bright Ribbons and Dainty Things Artistically Contrived for Man's Undoing

New York, August 1.—This month will be one long to be remembered in the history of fashions. Gala occasions always have their influence upon the adornment of womanhood, and the international yacht races will be almost as conspicuous for the exquisite gowns worn by the ladies in attendance as for the test of skill displayed in handling the contesting boats.

These gowns will not necessarily be yachting gowns. That is, there will be little of the nautical effect about them, for the costumes now being designed for yachting week will be apropos on all semi-dress occasions.

Heavy linens, crash canvases, voiles, etamines, foulards, nun's veillings and serges are the materials employed, and tailor effects are replaced by feminine frills and fripperies designed with no thought of the disastrous caress of salt breezes.

Red has grown so much in popular favor that it is combined with every possible shade that harmony will permit. A smart gown to be worn by a matron who will entertain a large yacht party is carried out in smoke grey foulard. The skirt is shirred at frequent intervals from the knees to the hip-yoke, which is pointed and composed of vertical rows of shirring alternated with bands of coarse lace.

The bodice blouses over the front and the shoulder seams are strapped with the lace, under which are hidden here and there medallions of crimson satin. The side-fronts of the bodice are shirred from shoulder to bustline, and the lace and satin are employed to carry out a fanciful decoration that is as novel as it is pretty. The trimming is as twisted in a series of little circles that intersect each other but eventually form a large square outlined with Persian embroidery.

Completing the costume is a hat of grey chiffon, bent perfectly flat at the back. The brim at the sides and front is spreading and massed with pink roses that are veiled with a fold of grey chiffon, lined with cream white.

A stunning linen frock has a bolero effect, falling from the shoulders to the top of a high girdele at the front. The bolero is laid in plaits and finished irregularly at the bottom by having a border of scalloped Russian lace. The pack is inset with medallions of the lace, studded with French knots and blouses very slightly over the girdele. The sleeves have a trimming of lace at the shoulders below which are groups of tiny tufts reaching to the elbow. From here the full lace-trimmed puffs fall to the wrists, where they are caught into bands, of the dress material.

The skirt is a simple, seven-gored affair, with a flounce at the bottom that is decorated with appliques of lace set in frames of stitched linen bands.

It would be hard to conceive of anything more fetching than a white etamine suit emphasized with touches of black. The skirt fits closely over the hips and has an exquisite open-work braided flower design let into the etamine and arranged from the bottom in graduated effect all the way to the top. Despite the fact that trailing dresses are the rule, this frock has a skirt that just clears the ground, but flares very much over the feet.

The bodice has a long bolero effect, open-work design, which gives it the long-waisted effect; this opens over a fine white tucked mousseline and in-sertion vest, which blouses very much in front, hanging over a white silk girdele, which comes from two tails in the back and forms a point in the front. Over this vest is carelessly tied a black ribbon sailor knot, with the ends hanging down. From the bolero effect come two caps of the plain etamine over the sleeves and to the strap of open work, which goes directly down the back and forms the tails. This is edged with bias bands and tiny buttons. The sleeves are rather tight above and then composed of the open-work design, very full and flaring at the wrist. As a crowning glory, there goes with the toilette a big, black plaited illusion hat with a long black ostrich feather at one side, going from front to back.

Maude, that most fashionable of pale tints, has at last been produced in the linen fabrics. A dream of a mauve frock is very simply made, with collar and cuffs and a bias band down the center of the bodice, embroidered in Many a man would better go without lunch at all than eat the hurried lunch which forms the noon-day meal of many a business man. Hasty eating, foods hard to digest, and no time allowed for digestion are the cause of many a case of stomach "trouble."

Disease of the stomach seriously threatens the health of the whole body and should be promptly cured. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enables the perfect assimilation of food and the proper nutrition of the body on which physical strength depends.

"Nine or ten years ago my health became very poor, and in 1902 was so far gone that good doctors pronounced my case the worst they had ever treated," writes Mr. Harvey Phillips of Florence, Ala. "I had acute stomach trouble, liver complaint, catarrh and was nervous to such an extent could not sleep. I finally got three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and some 'Pellets.' Took them according to directions on the bottles, and in a few days noticed a decided improvement. I commenced to get more rest at night and could eat with pleasure, where formerly food was like chips to me. When I had used three bottles of the 'Discovery' I was a new man; could eat mince pie for supper, go to bed at seven P. M. and sleep until seven A. M. I am now working in my trade (carpentry), every day in all kinds of weather, and think if I had not taken your medicine I would now be under the sod."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cleanse the clogged system from accumulated impurities.

white of a delicate flower design, the rest being tucked and opening down the front under the embroidered band and blousing very much over a wide girdele at the waist. The sleeves are tucked above and fall full and loose over the embroidered cuffs.

The skirt, likewise tucked and stitched to within a foot or so from the bottom, where it flares over the feet, is not too long and has a band similar to that on the bodice down the center of the front.

Anything so elegant as an all-lace gown seems wanton extravagance when worn on the water, but, as a matter of fact, both lace gowns and coats will be prominent features of yachting-week fashions. Something extremely chic in coarse black lace and black silk may be made over white. The lace should be so arranged upon the skirt that the white will show through. A pretty way would be to have it run up in lines, the lace and then the silk fitting closely over the hips, with a long, sweeping train at the back and flaring gracefully over the feet.

The bodice might have a white silk and chiffon vest let in, and the belt might blouse over a girdele of crushed silk.

Not content with its natural elegance, smart modistes are outlining many of the Renaissance braid dresses with cut steel and jet beads. The effect, of course, is regal. When glistering passementeries, beads and the like are employed, however, it is better to have the gown entirely of black, because the effect is always more elegant. An exception may be made in a touch of white without spoiling the ensemble but this should be veiled with a little black lace or chiffon—probably both—to avoid a sharp contrast.

The important thing in all fashionable effects is to avoid sharp contrasts and hard lines. Every little device is sought, and almost anything is permissible that will lend a soft touch to a bodice especially, and nothing accomplishes this better than a bit of chiffon and lace.

The woman whose supply of summer gowns is not as ample as she would wish can in a measure make up the deficiency by keeping on hand a stock of ribbons of all widths, for nothing adds a smarter touch to a bodice than a ribbon flower garniture. Double-faced satin ribbon is used for the purpose and about ten yards are required for a pretty corsage bouquet.

In the great demand for novelties plain and figured organdies have become popular for summer coats as well as dresses. And this is at it should be when we consider the fact that the coats are made simply for show. The softest of foulaines and fiber satins are used to line the organdie, and a square collar embroidered or trimmed with lace is all the decoration that such a design requires.

Ostrich tufts nestled in folds of chiffon and lace make effective ruches for the neck. Should they get out of curl easily, it is well to know that holding them over a steaming kettle, then placing near the stove or a lamp, will cause the curl to return with better effect and less trouble than performing the operation with an ivory knife or set of scissors.

Cases of nervous involvement following la grippe are the hardest to reach and cure by medicinal measures, and the surest to yield to Osteopathic treatment.
