

CIRCUS TRAINS WRECK

Wallace Bros. Shows Meet With Terrible Disaster

Second Section Crashes Into First Killing Nineteen and Injuring Many More

Durand, Mich., Aug. 7.—Wallace brothers circus, running in two sections, was wrecked half a mile east here this morning, and 19 were killed and many injured. This is a partial list of the dead: Andrew Larso, special agent for the Grand trunk; John McCarthy, trainmaster of the Grand Trunk, and the following all showmen: John Porelli, John Larson, C. Thomas, John Leary, Andrew Haviland, Frank Thorpe, Robert Wright, Chas. Rando and Joseph Wilson. Among the fatally injured, five of whom are reported dying, is James Foley, commercial agent of the Grand Trunk railway. The trains were running from Charlotte, where they exhibited last night, in sections, half an hour apart. The first section was delayed, and was standing on the main track, near here, when the second section, at full speed, crashed into it. The engineer saw the train ahead, but the air brakes refused to work. A train with nurses and surgeons has been sent to the scene. The list of injured has increased to 20. The Richelieu hotel is being used as a temporary hospital. Seven of the first cars of the first train, and the engine and two cars of the second train, in which many were sleeping, were piled up. Many were killed while asleep. Some of the bodies were crushed and mangled beyond identification. One big elephant, two zebras, and several less valuable animals were killed. Some of the animals escaped.

As the wrecking progresses it is announced that 18 were killed outright and 20 injured, seven fatally. Many of the menagerie animals were killed.

George Bartley, of Los Angeles, and many of those killed, were animal keepers. The scene of the wreck is a constant turmoil. The death list includes all the bosses, save one.

The death list is now 22. Injured 70. George Bartley is not dead, but will recover. George Smith and W. J. McCoy have been identified among the dead.

One Convict is Captured

Folsom, Cal., Aug. 7.—Seavia, the captured convict, has been brought here from Auburn. Two convicts stole a horse and cart, belonging to Charles Seavia, three miles west of Folsom, during the night. They left a tin can behind in which they had been cooking. These men are supposed to be Case and Fahey.

Auburn, Cal., Aug. 7.—Convict Albert Seavia, the colored convict, one of the 13 who escaped last night and is in jail, with bullet wounds in both of his legs. He was captured shortly after 3 o'clock, when the train came in from Newcastle.

Sheriff Keena received word from Newcastle that a negro, answering the description of Seavia, had boarded the night train there on the way out, and when the train came into Auburn, Keena and Deputy Sheriff Coan were at the depot. The negro was called upon to surrender, and he immediately opened fire on Coan, but failed to hit the deputy.

At the same time Keena and Coan opened fire and shot the negro, who begged that his life be spared.

Countable Donnelly found the stolen horse and cart today in Sacramento. Two men held up a citizen on Twenty-first street, in Sacramento, with rifles, last night. The police are certain they were the convicts.

Sacramento, Cal., Aug. 7.—Sheriff Reese has gone to Yolo, and is close on the trail of Howard, whom he expects will be captured soon. Seavia says, in running up the hill, near Auburn, Case fell on his face. He waited half an hour, and then left him. Case is sick with fever. There is much excitement here, and two posses have gone out to look on both sides of the river. The Amador gang is near Copper Lead mine, and the trail is close after them.

Stock Market is Stronger

New York Aug. 7.—The market opened up uniformly strong, and London is again full of confidence.

Sheriff's Sale at Woodburn

Deputy Sheriff Palmer was in Woodburn this morning, where he conducted a sheriff's sale, under foreclosure of chattel mortgage. The property sold was that of E. J. Dodge, consisting of a steam threshing outfit, and it was sold to Edward Hall, of South Salem precinct for $650. E. McNary held the chattel mortgage for $470.

Ice Falls in Ten Inch Chunks

Denver, Col., Aug. 7.—Details of the storm which prevailed along the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains, in Colorado and Southern Wyoming, Wednesday night, show it to have been much more severe than at first reported. In some sections the hail fall was unprecedented. In the neighborhood of Greeley and Eaton, in Northern Colorado, chunks of ice measuring in some instances, ten inches in length, fell, and the damage was immense. Sheep were killed and horses and cattle severely injured. Farm houses and barns were wrecked, and crops utterly destroyed.

Assistant Superintendent Campbell and family, of Chemawa, left this morning for Newport, for a few days' stay at the seaside.

VERY POOR STUFF

From Which to Make American Citizens Says Mr. Carson

Taft Trying to Make Whistles From Pigs' Tails, and Silk Purses From Sows' Ears

John A. Carson returned last evening from a 10-weeks' trip to the Philippine Islands, where he went on business in connection with his Alaska Bonanza mining suit, for the purpose of cross-examining witnesses upon their depositions for the plaintiff, Mr. Carson being one of the attorneys for the defendants. He reports a very pleasant trip, having gone by San Francisco and Honolulu to Japan, thence to Manila, and returning by Hong Kong and Yokohama to Victoria.

"I left San Francisco on June 11th for Manila, arrived in Honolulu in eight days," Mr. Carson said, in speaking to a Journal reporter, "and I think that Honolulu is the prettiest place I ever saw. We spent several very pleasant days in that city, and regretted the fact that we had to leave so soon. Our next place of anchorage was Yokohama. Here I left the Japanese liner, and traveled on the government railroad to Kobe, where I again boarded the steamer. On the way I stopped at Osaka, and visited the great exposition, now in progress there. Unfortunately I did not meet the Oregon commissioner, Col. H. E. Bosch, he being temporarily absent, but I inspected the exhibit, and found that, though the exposition is only a national affair and not international, a great many foreign exhibits are there, and of all the foreign exhibits those of Oregon and Canada are the only ones receiving any consideration at the hands of the Japanese judges. All have the highest respect for the Oregon commissioner, Col. Bosch, and his admirers are far more plentiful in Japan than are his acquaintances.

"At Kobe I again boarded my steamer, and reached Nagasaki on July 4th, and was very much gratified to find that the city was gaily decorated in honor of our national day. We spent the day there, and called on the American consul, Hon. C. B. Harris, and were by him treated right royally. He is the most popular foreign representative in that city, and a good American, as well as a royal good fellow.

"We next left for the Orient, where I spent only a few days on the business that took me to the Orient. Here I made a study of the conditions existing under American rule, and I can say I was not very highly elated with all that I saw. Governor Taft has the Utopian idea that he can build up a nation of Filipinos there, and the commission, therefore, does not encourage Americans in locating in that country. The Filipinos themselves have none of the virtues of the Japanese and Chinese coolies, and will never, in my opinion, make American citizens. How Taft hopes to make Americans out of that kind of material is more than I can see.

"In the Philippines no American can express his private opinion of public matter, and it is common for newspaper men to be thrown into prison for criticizing the commission. This commission has the law-making power, and they are supreme. The liberal laws of the islands are a terror, and no mistake.

"The war department, relying on Taft's recommendations, has ordered the return to this country of one-third of the military force now there, and the officers and men ordered home are evicted by every man compelled to remain in the islands. The rebellion is not yet crushed, and money is being collected in Manila for the junta at Hong Kong, for ammunition and supplies for the rebels, although these are now given the milder title of 'ladrones.'

"Leaving Manila, I sailed for Hong Kong, where I had to take a steamer for Victoria, in order to make the quickest time possible. We remained in Hong Kong for two days, and left on the Canadian Pacific steamer Empress of Japan. We called at Shanghai, going thence to Nagasaki, where we had considerable trouble with the health authorities. We had a large number of Chinese coolies aboard, and the health officers sent us to quarantine, claiming that one of the Chinese was afflicted with bubonic plague, and it was not until the higher health officers were appealed to that the permit was given for the steamer to proceed, a critical investigation showing that the plague was not threatening the passengers.

"The action of the subordinate health officers having been revised by the superior medical officers, we proceeded on our way, happy at not being compelled to remain in quarantine, which meant a tedious delay. We again went to Kobe and Yokohama, and then took the longest way home, following the great circle. We came, in sight of the Aleutian islands, and, while all the balance of the trip had been very pleasant, here, in the far northern latitudes, we suffered some from cold, heavy fogs hung over the sea, and overcoats and winter clothing were extremely welcome. In sailing from San Francisco to Manila we consumed four weeks' time, while, returning by the great circle, we made it in three weeks.

"There are few people taking this trip for pleasure, and most of my traveling companions were men going to the Orient on business. A few there were who were on pleasure trips, but these only went with us as far as Japan. This latter country is intensely interesting to me, and the Japanese treat Americans with great consideration, being apparently anxious to please the citizens of this country, and to make a good impression on them."

Mr. Carson looks well after his sea voyage and has a fine, healthy color in his cheeks. He is well pleased with the success of his mission, and is now well fortified for the trial of the case in which he is interested, in Alaska, and which will be tried in the courts of that territory some time next month.

Received Gibbons

Rome, Aug. 7.—The Pope passed a quiet morning in the Vatican. He was much disappointed because he received no message of congratulation from the King of Italy. Later Cardinal Gibbons was received in private audience. The Pope sent his apostolic benediction to all Catholics in America.

Gibbon's Taken Ill

Rome, Aug. 7.—After being received by the Pope today, Cardinal Gibbons was taken ill, and removed to his hotel. The physicians attending him ordered him to leave Rome immediately to escape the overpowering heat now prevailing. Gibbons refused to obey, saying he will assist at the coronation of the Pope Sunday.

Albany Woman Breaks the Yoke

Albany, Or., Aug. 7.—Mrs. W. B. Hayes, the wife of a Southern Pacific bridge carpenter, of this city, eloped yesterday with a gambler, who has been in the city for the past few days. Last week Mr. Hayes bought a new piano and some furniture for the house, and gave his wife $50 to complete the purchase. She took the money, and with the gambler left the city. As yet their whereabouts is unknown. The woman left two children, both girls.

SCALPED BY BIG GRIZZLY

George Bain Has Few Seconds Mix-up With Mamma Bear

His Scalp Torn Off and Much Other Damage Done on Very Short Notice

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 7.—To be nearly scalped by an infuriated grizzly was the misfortune that came to George Bain, in the Lardeau country, a day or two ago. Happily Mr. Bain remembered the yarn in the fourth form readers, to the effect that a bear will never touch a dead body, and, after the first encounter, he pretended to be dead, so bruin made off. As it was Bain was certainly half killed. His scalp was hanging around the nape of his neck, and an arm was crippled, the left ear was cut in two, the forehead, was bare of skin on one side from the top of the nose to the ear, and the eyebrow was torn across by a narrow, gaping wound. Just a few seconds sufficed to place the moping man in this pitiable condition.

The unfortunate man was out on the mountains above Hall Creek with Mine Manager John Kennedy, of the Rossland Homestake. They were about three miles from their mountain cabin, and were making a short cut home through the dense scrub and underbrush, when they heard sounds as of a bear cuffing her cub. They were wholly unarmed, but took no particular notice of the sounds. Mr. Kennedy was leading his companion by a few yards, and heard a bear crashing through the scrub. He turned around just in time to see the animal fling itself furiously on his companion. A blow from the huge paw carried Mr. Bain to the ground, where he lay as dead. In falling the bear snapped the man's right hand and arm in her jaws several times. The attack hardly lasted five seconds. Seeing her victim still as death, the animal crashed back again through the cover. Mr. Kennedy approached his companion, who had not lost consciousness. Mr. Bain struggled to his feet, his bleeding scalp hanging down on the left side of the face, and he generally presenting the appearance described above. The sight almost unnerved Mr. Kennedy, so dreadful was it. As well as he could he bound up the wounds with his handkerchief.

Bain bore himself bravely. Not once did he complain during the long, rough three-mile trip down the mountain to the cabin. The men had to go through tangled brush and over logs and rocks, not knowing the moment the attack might be renewed. At the cabin Captain Davey, of Camborne, was waiting for them. He and Mr. Kennedy resorted to their best means to make Bain comfortable for the night. At best it was but makeshift surgery. The next morning they placed Bain on horseback and took him to Ferguson. For 10 hours Bain was in the saddle—a remarkable feat for a man so seriously injured. He was at once taken to the hospital, and the surgeons are afraid of blood poisoning, which so often follows wounds from wild animals.

Von Sternberg is Ambassador

Oyster Bay, Aug. 7.—Ambassador Von Sternberg, accompanied by Assistant Secretary of State Loomis, Colonel Sims, official introducer, and several members of the German legation, arrived this morning, and were driven to the home of J. West Roosevelt, where he donned his official garb. The President received him in the parlors at Sagamore Hill, Loomis introducing Sternberg, who presented President Roosevelt the official recall of VonHoltzben from the post, after which he presented his own credentials. The President, in reply, highly complimented Sternberg, and referred to his many friends during his previous residence in America.

Ready For Butchery

London, Aug. 7.—A news agency dispatch from Vienna says the Macedonian central revolutionary committee has fixed August 31st as the date for a general uprising, and that Boris Saratoff, one of the leading Macedonian agitators, has been appointed commander of the revolutionary forces, with Alexieff as his principal lieutenant.

The London papers print mail letters descriptive of the Macedonian situation, and dated the latter part of July, which indicate that the committee was vigorously preparing for an uprising at the close of the harvest. The members of the committee, according to these advices, have been vainly hoping for an outbreak of war between Turkey and Bulgaria, or some other sensational occurrence, such as a massacre of Christians, then give them an opening, but nothing has happened, and altogether the situation is critical. It is just possible that the committee may still further put off the date of the outbreak.

Meanwhile the Turks are more ready than ever to strangle any rising at its birth. The imperial troops, poorly paid and poorly fed, exasperated by the prolongation of the crisis, and the necessity of incessant duty night and day, are preying on the peasantry, and would indulge in barbarities upon the slightest pretext.

The Naval Side Show

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 7.—Information is given out this morning that the enemy in the maneuvers was sighted last night off Bar Harbor.

Shamrock's Last Trial

Highland, N. J., Aug. 7.—Today is probably the last of the Shamrock's trials. It is ideal weather. The floats left their anchorage at 10 o'clock this morning.
