The Warden Has Resigned

Edward A. McPherson, warden at the penitentiary, has resigned his position, and will remove to Portland in a few days, where he will reside hereafter. Mr. McPherson has contemplated this step for some time. Jay J. McCormick, chapel guard at the prison, has also tendered his resignation, and will retire from the prison work in a short time. Both of these gentlemen have made an excellent record for efficiency, as they have had thorough training and wide experience, and it is to be hoped that their places will be filled by equally good men.

Mr. McPherson was an officer at the prison during the time that G. S. Downing was superintendent, and he also served for a time as an officer at the Walla Walla penitentiary, where he made an excellent record for efficiency. Since coming to the Oregon penitentiary he has made a good record as an official. He came here in January last, at the time when Deputy Warden Dilley was suspended on account of the unjust charge brought against that officer by a female prisoner. Mr. McPherson at once took hold of the work, and when, three months later, Superintendent James succeeded Mr. Lee, he assisted materially in the work of improvement that was inaugurated by the new administration.

Messrs. McPherson and McCormick will leave the prison this evening. It is believed that Deputy Warden Smith will succeed Mr. McPherson as warden, though Supt. James is not ready to make the announcement of the appointments.

Brings Suit for Wages. C. W. Moore has brought suit in the justice court against R. D. Gibson, to recover $24.22, alleged to be due on account of labor performed. The defendant is a farmer, and plaintiff worked for him last winter, and claims that amount due him on wages.

Charged With Robbery. Edward Cole and Frank Lamb, the two men arrested by Chief of Police Gibson yesterday, on request of the Portland police, were this morning taken to that city by Detective Hartman, who came after them last evening. The men are charged with robbery.

Paper Clips

In the name of the 'GEM' we have the most satisfactory device for holding papers together, attaching enclosures, etc. It is the only clip that can be used over and over again—does not mutilate the papers and is adopted by all state institutions and a great many business houses. The price is only fifteen cents per hundred.

bers, and two women, under arrest in Portland, are believed to be their accomplices. The men had a trunk here, and in it was found what the detective claimed was incriminating evidence. The men were hiding in this city, having been here for a week, most of the time being spent in a room at the lodging house.

Adage Was Affirmed. Judge Cox of the United States Circuit Court, while delivering a lecture at Columbia University, told of a young lawyer who came before the Supreme Court to argue a case in which he was also defendant. Addressing the Court, he referred to the old French adage declaring that he who argues his own case has a fool for a client. After the case had been heard he left for his home in St. Louis, asking a friend to notify him by wire when the decision was handed down. This was the pithy telegram he received: "Old French adage affirmed."

Miss Lucy Woolsey has returned to her home at Berlin, Or. On Standing Still. (Dallas Lore Sharp in August St. Nicholas.)

If I were asked what thing, above all others, one must know how to do in order to get acquainted with the wild wood folk, I should answer: Learn to stand still. One night last summer I got home rather late from a drive. I had left several cocks of hay spread out in the little meadow, and after supper, although it was already pretty damp, I took the fork and went down, and cocked it up. Returning, I climbed by a narrow path through some pines, and came out into my pasture. It was a bright moonlight night, and leaning back upon the short-handled fork, I stopped in the shadow of the pines to look out over the softly lighted field.

Off in the woods, a mile away, I heard the deep but mellow tones of two fox-hounds. Day and night all summer long I had heard them, and all summer long I had hurried, now here, now there, hoping for a glimpse of the fox. But he always heard me and turned aside. The sound of the dogs was really musical. They were now crossing an open stretch leading down to the meadow behind me. As I listened, I heard a low, easy murmuring from a covey of quail sleeping in the brush beside the path, and before I had time to ask what it meant, the fox trotted up the path behind me, and stopped in the edge of the shadows directly at my feet.

I did not move a muscle. He sniffed at my dew-wet boots, backed away, and looked me over curiously. I could have touched him. Then he sat down, with just his silver-tipped brush in the silver moonlight, to study me in earnest.

The deep baying of the hounds was coming nearer. How often I had heard it, and how often exclaimed, "Poor little fox!" But here sat poor little fox, calmly wondering what kind of a stump he had run up against this time.

I could only dimly see his eyes, but his whole body said: "I can't make it out, for it doesn't move. But if it doesn't move I'm not afraid." Then he trotted to this side and to that for a better wind, half afraid, yet very curious.

But his time was up. The dogs were yelping across the meadow on his warm trail. Giving me a last unsatisfied look, he dropped the path directly toward the hounds, and sprang lightly off into the brush. The din of their own voices must have deafened the dogs, or they would have heard him. Round and round they circled, giving the fox ample time for the study of another "stump" before they discovered that he had doubled down the path, and still longer time before they got across the wide scentless space of his side jump, and once more fastened upon his trail.

SAILOR AND HORSE.

How the Retired Sea Captain Made a Purchase.

In "Horses Nine" Sewell Ford tells how a retired sea captain bought a horse. The story runs: As one who inspects an unfamiliar object Captain Bean looked dazedly at Barnacles. At the same time Barnacles inspected the captain. With head lowered to knee level, with ears cocked forward, nostrils sniffing and under lip twitching almost as if he meant to laugh, Barnacles eyed his prospective owner.

Captain Bean squirmed under the gaze of Barnacles' big, calm eye for a moment, and then shifted his position. "What in time does he want anyway, Jed?" demanded the captain.

"Wants to git acquainted, that's all, cap'n. Mighty knowin' hoss, he is. Now, some hosses don't take notice of anything. They're just naturally dumb. Then ag'in you'll find hosses that seem to know every blamed word you say. Them's the kind of hosses that's 'wuth havin'."

"I should say he did, cap'n. If there's anything that hoss ain't done in his day, I don't know what 'tis. Near's I can find out he's tried every kind of work, in or out of traces, that you could think of."

"Must be some old by your tell," suggested the captain. "Sure his timbers are all sound?"

"Dunno 'bout his timbers, cap'n, but as fer wind an' limb you won't find a sounder hoss of his age in this county. Course I'm not sellin' him fer a four-year-old."

Again Captain Bean tried to look critically at the white horse, but once more he met that calm, curious gaze, and the attempt was hardly a success. However, the captain squinted solemnly over Barnacles' withers and remarked:

"Yes, he has got some good lines, as you say, though you wouldn't hardly call him clipper built. Not much sheer forward an' a little too much aft, eh?"

At this criticism Jed snorted mirthfully. "Oh, I s'pose he's all right," quickly added the captain. "Fact is I ain't never paid much attention to horses, hein' on the water so much. You're sure he'll mind his helm, Jed?"

"Oh, he'll go where you p'int him." "Won't drag anchor, will he?" "Stand all day if you'll let him." "Well, Jed, I'm ready to sign articles, I guess."

ORIGIN OF OLD SAYINGS.

The Honeymoon.—For thirty days after a wedding the ancient Teutons had a custom of drinking a mead made of honey.

The Bridegroom.—In primitive times the newly wedded man had to wait upon his bride and the guests on his wedding day. He was their groom.

Sirlon of Beef.—King Charles I., being greatly pleased with a roast loin of beef set before him, declared it "good enough to be knighted." It has ever since been called Sir Loin.

A Spinster.—Women were prohibited from marrying in olden times until they had spun a full set of bed furnishings on the spinning wheel; hence, till married, they were spinsters.

Cabal.—This word was coined in Charles II's reign and applied to his cabinet council. It was made out of the initials of their names, which were: Clifford, Arlington, Buckingham, Ashley, Lauderdale.

Criticizing His Own.

"But, my dear husband, it really is unjust of you to abuse mothers-in-law so. There are good ones."

"Well, well! never mind. I haven't said anything against yours. It's only mine I'm grumbling about." —Boston Traveler.

Goat has a Costly Feed

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 13.—A special from Memphis says: The stomach of a goat is to be analyzed by expert chemists, in an effort to account for the disappearance of a number of United States revenue stamps, involving several hundred dollars. This morning a wholesale whiskey firm sold several barrels of whiskey to a saloon keeper. The whiskey was delivered and left on the pavement in front of the store. The proprietor's pet goat ate the revenue stamps off the heads of the barrels, and soon after a government inspector inspected the whiskey, and found the necessary stamps missing. He thereupon confiscated the whiskey. The proprietor explained that the goat ate the stamps. The inspector declined to accept this explanation. After a conference it was agreed to kill the goat and examine its stomach, to locate the missing revenue stamps, in order to protect the saloonist from a heavy fine.

Oregon City Boy Drowned

Oregon City, Or., Aug. 13.—Perrin, the 11-year-old son of Banker D. C. Latourette, of this city, was drowned while bathing in Abernethy creek, at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The body was recovered.

Young Latourette was bathing in the creek with some companions. He could swim, but was apparently seized with cramps, and sank before his associates could reach him.
