The Weather.

Tonight and Thursday, fair.
WEATHER TOO FINE.
That is the only danger for Western Oregon.

The weather has been perfect for hop picking, for gathering the prunes, and for the state fair.

Last year this fine weather lasted until nearly the first of November, and the grass did not start.

We really need rains this month and next to get a good grass crop up for the winter pastures.

Stock was on short pasture all last winter and spring because we did not have the usual amount of rain fall. Beef was thin and poor and butter-fat was high, the quality of both was poor and many cattle starved.

So there is danger that the weather will be too fine, and the farmers who have stock better not sell off all their hay and straw and grain.

Shelter and feeding are necessary in Oregon during any winter, and both should be provided by all who have stock to winter.

JOURNAL X-RAYS.

Some genius should devise a plan to boil the raindrops as they come down.

Even silver is advancing, and Mr. Bryan should take another hitch in his trousers.

An organ of the politicians that has no use for The Journal never quotes from its columns but to slur its motives and belittle its methods—paying its high commendation of never approving. This is no slight compliment to The Journal because it is a confession of its continuous sincerity in treating public questions.

A woman's club exhibit at the Portland carnival is said to consist of one hundred and fifty-seven essays on ancient and medieval art, fourteen addresses on Browning's poetry, a scathing criticism on President Roosevelt's ideals of family life, and one chubby-complexioned girl baby that has been named after the President of the club the past year, used as an advertisement for babyfood.

There are $2,000,000,000 in the savings banks of the country, a sum sufficient to buy practically all the stock of all the railroads in the United States worth buying at present prices, and this is largely the money of the laboring people.—Albany Herald.

There is only a trifle more than half that sum in the United States. A third of this is in the United States treasury. Another third in other than savings banks.

A crowded car was stopped by a lady with a bustle. It had only 150 passengers on board. The lady was met at the wrong crossing. The motorman waited for her to come along. She took all the time an indignant woman could who is outraged at a new rule about stopping only at the farther crossing. At last she got aboard, amid the general anathemas of the passengers at the lady with a bustle, who would make a restle or get there with a bustle.

from Alaska tend to confirm the reports of rich coal and oil finds in the far northwest territory. It is even said that resources of these products in Alaska will rival those of Pennsylvania. Companies are now at work drilling for oil and rich finds are reported. Tests of the Alaskan oil, it is said, show it to contain more paraffine and illuminant than the best grade of Pennsylvania oil.

A scramble to secure the coal and oil lands is now on. An anthracite coal belt, already known to be 30 miles long by 20 miles wide, has been discovered lying adjacent to the oil fields. Tests by experts show the coal to be of higher grade than British Columbia coal, which the United States navy is using on the Pacific.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood as mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address F. J. An Indian on Whisky.
(New York Post.)

A sturdy plea for prohibition is that made by Jim Barnett, a full-blooded Creek Indian, in a letter to one of the two newspapers in the Indian Territory printed both in English and in Indian dialect. Under the caption, "What an Indian Thinks About Whisky," some old truths are tersely and effectively, if crudely, stated. Whether or not one agrees with the assumption that "whisky is a fine drink, and it seems like everybody likes a drink," it is impossible not to be impressed by the force of the following homely illustration: "I know whisky is a murderer and a robber, too, and it takes all the money away from a man. When a man goes to town and tells his wife he is going to get such things, and so his wife would depend on him and also his children, but when he gets back he would be drunk and his wife's feelings is hurt and also his children, because he come home drunk and broke. This tells us the whisky is a bad thing." Barnett's observations are founded on experience, "I used to drink whisky myself," he confesses, "about twenty-five years ago, and I quit ever since." The larger part of his advice is cunningly contrived to appeal with greatest force to the pocket: "Well, my friends, don't touch no drink and save money, and you will get rich. And so, I never seen a whisky drinker fall to get poor and stay poor for all his life." This dark Poor Richard, besides stating the prohibitionist's case succinctly, offers good material for those who are working for a "dry" state when Oklahoma and the Indian Territory get into the Union, whether as one commonwealth or two. It is a pertinent question he propounds when, after confessing his old fault, he hopefully adds: "And if everybody, too, was like me, wouldn't it be good?"

COTTON MARKET STIFFER

Salem Stores Selling at the Factory Prices

The Mills Will Take no Orders for Future Delivery -- Prices Advancing

A review of the cotton market the past two weeks is not without interest. Spool cotton has been as high as 13 cents, while the new crop coming in is rated at 10 to 12 cents. Last year at this time raw cotton was selling at 9 to 9 1/2 cents.

Inquiry of the Salem merchants shows that cotton staples are up about 30 per cent above prices three months ago and merchants who bought large stocks early in the year have made a fine advance, although Salem merchants have not advanced cotton goods according to the advance in the wholesale price. A large Salem merchant is in receipt of a letter from which we are permitted to quote as follows:

"The present condition of the market is very strong, and it is more the question of getting goods than it is to secure a low price. The great trouble all season has been to get goods delivered, and have them on hand to give to the trade.

"That there is a scarcity of cotton goods there is not the least doubt. The mills are reluctant to make them up on present prices; in fact they can not afford to sell them at the present prices if raw material continues at the prices quoted.

"Now the question comes right back to the point, how much cotton are we going to have. That is beyond the power of any human agency to tell. If there should be a normal crop of cotton I can not understand how there can be any change in present prices during the year 1903. Stocks on hand are so reduced, and the manufacturers are reported as having few goods on hand (and the fact of their slow deliveries bears out that statement), the jobber has not a large stock, and if there should be the regular crop of cotton I can not for the life of me, see how there can be any variation in prices of good goods during the year 1903, and there is strong probability of there being still further advances. I believe that 1904 cotton will open at a higher price than it did in 1903; consequently all staple cotton goods will be higher than they were at the beginning of 1903. It would make no difference if we had eleven or twelve million bales of cotton, in the early part of spring cotton goods will rate higher than they were in the spring of 1903.

"I have given you my views the best I know. I send you a list of prices on mailings, prints, ticks, etc. All these prices are made subject to having the goods on hand at the time order is received. The stock is changing so rapidly that we could not make prices and leave them open. I give you all the advice that I can, and give it to you conscientiously and cheerfully. If I were in your place I would buy all the cotton goods I needed for 1903. I would let 1904 take care of itself. The scarcity of goods is such that the point is as I have already stated, to get them delivered."

Rough Ground for a Canal.

In his survey at Celilo, on the route of the government canal, Major Langfit discovered that high water rises only eight feet above low-water mark, while at Ten-Mile Rapid, three miles distant, the high water mark is 30 feet above the lowest stage of the river. Laying out a line for a railway and a route for a big canal through a mountainous country are entirely two different things. Many railroads have been built through rougher sections, but it may be asserted that no canals have ever been. It is necessary to get around the high water, and it follows a very uneven and irregular course. At one point it will be on the mountain side and at another down in the valley, says the Observer.

The Excitement Not Over.

Cable Ship Goes North

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 16.—The United States cable ship Burnside sailed for the North last night, to continue the work of laying the cable from the head of Lynn Canal by way of Sitka, the capital of Alaska, to this city. She has a stretch of 600 miles of cable aboard, which was transferred from the steamship Texan, which brought the cable around the Horn from New York.

On board the Burnside when she sailed were General A. W. Greely, chief signal officer of the United States army; Colonel James Allen, of the signal corps, under whose general supervision the line will be laid; Captain Edgar Russell and Captain George C. Bushnell, of the signal corps; Henry Winter, cable engineer; Lieutenant Charles P. F. Chandler, of the quartermaster's department. Captain A. H. Laffin is in command of the vessel.

The Burnside proceeds direct to Juneau, where, after making a shore line connection, she will leave for Sitka, paying out about 250 miles between the two towns, and continuing south from the capital by the open ocean, as far as the cable rope will reach, possibly to a point off Queen Charlotte Island.

Relief

From Nervousness and Insomnia

Through Dr. Miles' Nerveine. I Use

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills For Headache.

"I have been troubled greatly with sleeplessness and nervousness for twenty-five years. I have never taken Dr. Miles' Nerveine steadily for a long time but it never fails to help me when I do take it. In addition to this I can say that my general health is much better since my occasional use of Nerveine, than it was several years ago. I have used Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills for neuralgia and nervous headaches and have always had prompt relief. The headaches usually occur at intervals in the morning and by taking a Pain Pill when I feel the headache coming on I can prevent the attack entirely. My husband is also subject to headaches and finds the same relief from the Anti-Pain Pills that I do. We are perfectly willing that you should use our names because of the relief we have found in using Dr. Miles' Remedies."—Mrs. W. H. HARRISLEY, Moscow, Idaho.

There is nothing that will so surely undermine the health as sleeplessness. A slight affection of the nerves is sufficient to bring about this distressing condition and unless treatment is at once begun it grows worse rapidly, bringing about loss of appetite, indigestion, a gradual undermining of nerve force and vitality, until finally the victim suffers from nervous prostration. Dr. Miles' Nerveine quiets the nerves so that sleep may come and it cures the nervous system against the attacks of any or all nervous disorders.
