Judges Make Awards on the Foreign Exhibits

Officers Elected This Afternoon are Having an Instructive Meeting and a Good Time

The photographers' convention is again in session today, and interesting papers have been presented by several members of the convention. During the forenoon session the report of the judges on exhibits in the foreign class filed their report, showing the prizes awarded to the several exhibitors whose work excelled in the exhibition. The awards made were as follows:

- Gold medal—Stephenson & Co., of Atlanta, Ga. Silver medal—Morrison's Studio, Chicago, Ill. Diploma—A. J. Proctor, Huntington, W. Va. Honorable mention—Otto Boye, San Francisco, Cal.

These were only a few of the foreign exhibits passed upon by the judges, the competition for the several prizes being close and keen. There is a large list of exhibits from every part of the United States, and all of them outside of the territory of the association were eligible to compete for the prizes.

During the forenoon the election of officers for the ensuing year was held, and Salem secured one of the principal positions for the year. The selection of the next place of meeting will be made this evening. The officers chosen are:

- President—Milton Loryea, of Spokane, Wash. Vice-president—George Brass, of Seattle, Wash. Secretary-treasurer—H. D. Trover, Salem.

- State Vice-Presidents. Washington—O. W. Pantake, Ellensburg. Idaho—C. F. Stemper, Boise. Montana—J. W. Brittain, Kallispell. Oregon—Miss Sue Dorris, Eugene. British Columbia—Howard H. King, Vancouver, B. C.

Mr. Loryea, the new president, is the retiring secretary of the association. During this forenoon demonstrations on Artisto Platino and Colodion-Carbon paper were made, and the members of the association watched the work of the demonstrator closely. This afternoon demonstrations under the skylight of the Trover Studio will take up the time of the members, and this evening routine business of the convention will again be taken up. Tomorrow the convention will continue in session, and the afternoon will be given to the public. From 1:30 to 5 o'clock the people of Salem, interested in the art, are invited to visit the convention hall in the armory, and inspect the exhibits there to be found, and see the wonderful progress made in photography in recent years.

The visitors to the hall are struck by the artistic arrangement made there. The old cannon that has stood in the armory for years has been placed to face the door, and so draped as to give the impression that it is a huge camera, pointing directly at the visitors. The carriage has been beautifully draped and decorated in the national colors, and a large flag placed over the whole, making a beautiful and attractive picture, and a setting that is admirable. The cannon is labeled: "Snap-shots."

Circuit Court Jury List

Sheriff Colbath and County Clerk Roland this morning drew the jury list for the October term of the circuit court, which will convene in this city the second Monday in October. The list of jurors drawn is as follows:

- P. K. Johnson, farmer, Mt. Angel. L. W. Durant, mechanic, Woodburn. J. B. Miller, farmer, Stayton. W. H. Scheurer, warehouse man, Butteville. John Holm, blacksmith, Salem No. 4. Frank Smith, butcher, Prospect. David Brodie, farmer, Scotts Mills. M. L. Meyers, merchant, Salem No. 2. Wm. Flatts, carpenter, Hubbard. J. B. Vandale, farmer, Gervais. D. W. Matthews, druggist, Eaglewood.

- W. M. Cline, farmer, Howell. J. W. Wilson, barber, Salem No. 2. W. H. King, farmer, Stayton. Hawley Smith, farmer, Mt. Angel. A. W. Drager, farmer, New Park. M. O. Buren, merchant, Salem, No. 4. G. A. Gist, farmer, Mohama. Adam Burns, farmer, Sublimity. Frank E. Libby, farmer, Jefferson. John Outerson, timberman, Breitenbush. J. C. McFarlane, farmer, Brooks. W. A. Hunt, farmer, Horeb. John A. Taylor, merchant, Gervais. S. H. Brown, farmer, Gervais.

The Governor Accepted

Governor Chamberlain is in receipt of a letter from W. H. Moore, of St. Louis, president of the National Good Roads Association, asking him to accept the vice-presidency of that association, and to name four good men, located in different parts of the state to act on the advisory committee.

Governor Chamberlain last evening answered the letter, accepting the vice-presidency, and suggested the names of the following four gentlemen as members of the advisory committee to represent Oregon:

- John H. Scott, county judge, Salem; G. A. Hartman, county judge, Pendleton; Dr. B. Daly, county judge, Lakeview; J. O. Boothe, county judge, Grants Pass.

In his letter to the governor, President Moore says:

"This association is preparing an extensive campaign, reaching into the counties and townships of the several states and territories.

"We are glad to inform you that the governors of 30 states have consented to act as vice-presidents or to serve on the advisory committee, and that the directory, when completed, will have many of the most distinguished men of the nation, who are giving special attention to the necessity of the betterment of the common roads. We hope to have Oregon well represented in the national movement."

Salvation Army Harvest Festival

It is a thank offering of man out of the abundance wherewith God has blessed him, in keeping the command, "The first fruits of thy land thou shalt bring unto the House of the Lord." The proceeds will be devoted to the reduction of Corps debt and the extension of the social and spiritual work of the Army.

There is probably no section of the country, certainly no community or class, which the influence of The Salvation Army has not in one way or another permeated, never ceasing its work, adapting itself to all times, seasons and places. It has converts, lovers and friends in probably every town and village throughout the land.

Thus it is that, be the season what it may, be The Army's seasonable efforts what they may, there is always throughout the country an interest quick to respond. While the cold of winter and early spring are with us we hear of the Army's gigantic operations in supplying coal, clothing and sustenance to the wretchedly poor; when the summer is under way we learn of the noble charities in the shape of fresh air camps, outings, excursions and the like, as also of the penny ice wagons; then with the coming of fall comes the annual Harvest Festival, the year's last special effort until the huge Christmas dinner begins to loom up.

Confronting us just now is the Harvest Festival, the dates of which are set for October 3 to 6, inclusive, and for the celebration of which the local corps is making active preparations.

THE OLD RELIABLE

ROYAL BAKING POWDER Absolutely Pure THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE

Will Build Malt House. C. Griesser, of Chicago, one of the best brewery and malt house architects in the United States, was here Sunday and Monday, examining the plant of the Salem Brewery Association, with a view of drafting plans and specifications for a malt house, which will be built next summer, in time to begin work when the barley harvest is finished. The malt house, as planned, will cost about $30,000, and will make the malt for several breweries. This will furnish a fine market for good brewing barley, and is another link in the chain of events that tends to the upbuilding of Greater Salem.

A Needed Improvement. Street Commissioner Griswold has constructed a new walk across Marion street, on the west side of Commercial. This walk was sadly dilapidated, and the new one will be hailed with delight by the many people who are compelled to pass over that portion of the streets of Salem every hour of the day.

Loyal to Salem. A great many people are complimenting The Journal for its loyalty to Salem and the progress and the development of the Capital City. Salem people who take a Salem paper are themselves loyal to Salem business interests. A daily paper maintains a large payroll, and every dollar it receives is a contribution to the development of Oregon. The distribution of a little cheap free chinaware is a poor recompense for taking a paper from Portland or San Francisco, that never fights for the improvement of streets or the erection of new buildings and public improvements in general.

Died at Stayton. Mrs. Cooper, wife of Henry Cooper, an old and respected citizen, died today at her home in Stayton, after an illness of about one year. She was 72.

New Yorks Latest Fashions

Fall and Winter Materials. Styles. Individual Gowns. Millinery

The coming winter will be one of contrasts. Nothing will be more elegant or stylish than broadcloth, its smooth surface commending itself especially and the numerous shades, running close to two hundred, show the great expected demand for it. On the other hand, one sees fleecy zibelines, the more expensive reaching a limit of shagginess, in which aggressive hairs an inch long, will render wearers of the same, quite animal like shown what paucity of idea prevails. Some Elegant Gowns. Seen at fall exhibitions, are worthy of special mention and a beautiful example in tan broadcloth, is made walking length with strapped seams, the waist confined by a cord and tassels and handsome pendants appearing on the sleeves and waist about the shoulders, where 't is met by a lace yoke laid over white satin. The sleeves

Princess Gown. are in modified bishop shape. With this, is worn a three-quarter length coat. A second gown in fine pastel blue cloth, is made with a slightly flaring addition to the skirt, with tucks on the flare. The upper portion of the skirt is cut in points each one edged with several rows of narrow silk braid, completed by small buttons, tight fitting coat. Both dresses are bound with the S. H. & M. velvet braid skirt protector, for which autumn exhibitions disclose continued preference. It is used by our best modistes and while giving the most elegant finish, it is most easily applied, as it requires only one sewing. Moreover, it does not deface the shoes. Contrasts are very noticeable in New Millinery. Thus while fashionable examples remain on the plateau order or with scarce the pretence of a crown, recent introductions show high crowns in Gainsborough style and as a special finish of the season, are two or three ostrich plumes nodding on the left side. Smooth beavers, the hairs lying flat and glossy, have much showing, but then again are seen rough, hairy felts in which aggressiveness as to surface is a leading characteristic. White beavers and felts as well, will be very fashionable, but there are dark brown or blue felts that command attention. Red beavers are also prominent and the old-time combination of white and black, again makes a bid for favor. Combinations of chevillie and felt appear. Wings are much used on felts for general wear and quilt feathers as well, the former showing decided preference for manufactured examples, rather than the natural.

years old, and leaves two daughters and three sons. One son resides in Montana, and, awaiting his arrival, the funeral will probably not take place until Sunday.

The Military Board. Governor Chamberlain is busily engaged in arranging for his new military board, and, as is usually the case, there are more applicants than places to be filled, and the governor, of course, is in the unpleasant predicament that he cannot make places for all who desire them. The places to be filled are those heretofore occupied by the following officers: Brigadier Chas. F. Beebe, Surgeon-General A. B. Gillis, Inspector-General James Jackson, Commissary-General David M. Dunn, and Judge Advocate-General S. C. Spencer. These, with the adjutant-general, which place was recently filled by the appointment of W. E. Finzer, of Woodburn, makes the military board.

Violating Game Law

Albany, Or., Sept. 24.—The first fine imposed on any one in Linn county this year for violation of the game law was by Justice of the Peace W. S. Ribley, in this city, Wednesday afternoon, on Hugh Brandon, a Halsey boy, who is now a student at the Oregon Agricultural College. Brandon was arrested on complaint of a deputy game warden at Halsey, on a charge of having a China pheasant in his possession, which is contrary to law during the present closed season. He pleaded guilty to the charge, and was fined $15 and costs.

Although the open season for hunting the pheasants does not commence until October 1st, hundreds of the birds have already been killed here in Linn county. The statement is not based on mere hearsay. Farmers have been killing the pheasants all summer, and now several Albany hunters have joined in the apparently popular pursuit of hunting Oregon's best game birds out of season.

Last Sunday several hunters were in the fields, killing the pheasants almost openly. Shots could be heard in the immediate vicinity of Albany almost any hour in the day. A large China rooster, very evidently frightened by being hunted, flew about in the southern part of the city, hiding in different places, just as the pheasants often do when the open season has just begun and a great many hunters are in the field. There is no doubt but that the law in regard to killing pheasants out of season has been very flagrantly violated in this county during the past month.

The Recorder's Daily Grist.

The police last night arrested William Queast, a lodger in the Salem Lodging House, who claimed to be in fear of being killed by two men. The fellow had once before been taken in by the officers on suspicion of being demented, but in daylight he appeared to be all right, and he was released. Last night he went to bed, but soon arose and came on the streets, complaining that he was threatened by a couple of invisible men. He was locked up, but this morning, appearing to be perfectly sane, was again released. If he gives any more trouble he will be examined as to his sanity, and probably committed.

John Lane, the old man who was arrested by Recorder Judah for taking a coat out of the marshal's office yesterday noon, was this morning released on the promise that he would leave Salem by the 11 o'clock train, and went south.

John F. Fuller, employed as a laborer on the new building at the reform school, was arrested last evening for drunkenness, but was discharged this morning, on his promise to return to work at once, and he left for the school immediately. He will probably not offend in the same way again.

Wants to Be Free.

Jennie Maud May, of near Woodburn, yesterday afternoon filed a divorce suit in the circuit court against Claud May. The plaintiff alleges that they were married in Marion county, September 12, 1901, and that defendant, in February, 1902, deserted her, and refused to support the family. There is one child, a girl 18 months old, the issue of the marriage. Plaintiff asks for a divorce, the custody of the child, and for the right to resume her maiden name, Jennie M. Kenworthy, and for her costs and disbursements.

No Money for Improvements.

Postmaster Hirsch has received notice from the treasury department at Washington, D. C. that there is no money on hand to improve the postoffice grounds in this city this year, and that all bids for the work have been rejected. The work will have to wait until next year, by which time, it is thought, congress will appropriate sufficient funds to make the necessary improvements.

A GOOD DAIRY FARM

The Play Last Night First Class, and House Full.

The Stage Settings were Realistic, a Horse and Peddlers Cart Being Among Them

"The Dairy Farm," at the Grand Opera House last night, was greeted by a crowded house, Salem's best people being everywhere in evidence, and the presentation was thoroughly appreciated and enjoyed by everyone in attendance. "The Dairy Farm" is a play of the olden times, written according to modern methods, with every character true to life. It is located in historic Old Hurley, Ulster county, New York, in the fifties. It is a pure, sweet and wholesome story of everyday life in a country town. There is nothing to offend the most delicate and fastidious taste, but much to amuse everyone who has a sense of that dry humor which is so characteristic of the true American.

The center of attraction on the stage, for the Salem people, was, of course, Edwards Davis, the former minister, who so often electrified his audience when he was in the pulpit. Mr. Davis appeared as the hero of the piece, and his first appearance was greeted by a storm of applause by the audience, that had evidently been waiting for the appearance of the former young minister. Mr. Davis showed that he was no less at home on the stage than he was in the pulpit. He has wonderful dramatic power, and is well fitted for the difficult part he essayed to present last evening.

All of the players, many of whom have presented their parts for the past two years, did exceedingly well, and the play throughout was entertaining and amusing in the highest degree. One of the best sustained characters was that of "Minty," by Miss Ora Waldrop, a bright young lady, who successfully portrayed the vivacious "sweet sixteen," whose love affair is one of the amusing and entertaining parts of the play. Miss Margaret Kinkore, as "Lucy," the heroine of the play, was another one deserving of especial mention. Miss Kinkore is an actress of great ability, and has a bright future on the stage, which she has chosen for a profession. In fact, all of the members did well, and their work has rarely been equaled on the stage in this city.

Grand Lodge in Session.

The grand commandery, Knights Templar, of Oregon, is in annual session in Albany this afternoon and tonight, and a number of the members of DeMolay Commandery No. 5, of Salem, went up by the 11 o'clock train this morning to attend the session. Among those going were the following: M. L. Meyers, Lot L. Pearce, W. D. Mohney, Judge F. A. Moore, Wm. Warner, A. H. Steiner, Dr. W. H. Byrd, Governor Chamberlain and State Labor Commissioner O. P. Hoff, both members of the commandery, also went up to attend the meetings.

Sunset, a Splendid Magazine.

Mrs. S. V. Anael, representing the Southern Pacific's new magazine, "Sunset," is in the city. The Southern Pacific put up $100,000 to establish the magazine, which is devoted entirely to making known the beauties and resources of the Pacific coast. It is magnificently illustrated, and nearly every issue contains one or more articles on Oregon. At an early date a descriptive article on Salem and its surroundings will appear.

He Dropped the Subject.

Ten thousand dollars for a dog! he exclaimed as he looked up from his newspaper. "Do you believe anyone ever paid such a price, Maria?"

"I'm sure I don't know, James," she returned, without stopping her needle work even for a moment. "Does the paper say that much was paid?"

"Yes. There's an article on valuable dogs, and 't speaks of one that was sold for $10,000. I don't believe it!"

"It may be true, James," she said quietly. "Some of these blooded animals bring fancy prices, and there's no particular reason why the paper should lie about it."

"I know that, Maria; but just think of it! Just try to grasp the magnitude of that sum in your weak, feminine mind. You don't seem to realize it."
